PREVENT A SHORTAGE.

Right now is the time of year to make preparations for this year's food supply. Every farmer should produce this year every particle of food he can.

The world's surplus of food has become almost exhausted due to the circumstance that the great war has drawn from European farms a vast percentage of its most efficient energy.

So palpably has European production diminished that the United States is being drained of its supplies so heavily that we have a food situation in this country that is apt to become still more embarrassing unless the production is greatly increased.

All this is even reflected in the price levels prevailing everywhere. Making due allowance for such supplies as may have been cornered by speculators, there is a shortage of stocks that will become very pronounced before another crop is harvested.

Commercial organization can render no greater service at this critical moment than by planning the agricultural activities of their communities for the production of food crops to meet an extraordinary demand.

Even with much greater production food prices are bound to be high, and the markets keen for heavy supplies. The warning everywhere is that no state can produce too much food, that Oregon ought to double its output.

PATRIOTIC WOMEN.

At a time when devotion to the country is conspicuously to the fore; when Americans of every racial origin are pledging their loyal support to the government, and when men are freely offering not only their time and energies, but also the use of their manufacturing establishments and of the products of their inventive genius in the event of serious international difficulty, it is worthy of note that the women of America are not a whit behind the men in their offers of any and all assistance in their power.

That conclusion results from the statistical table prepared after investigation by the Association of American Colleges.

Thirty-three per cent of all ministers—at least in the northern states, where the statistics apply—came from the homes of farmers and 18 per cent from the homes of ministers.

Other vocations furnish the following per cent of candidates for the ministry: Physicians, 2 per cent; clerical workers, 4 per cent; carpenters, 5 per cent; merchants and laborers, each 8 per cent; all other vocations, 20 per cent.—Chicago Tribune.

Grayfish as a Food. It used to be called the dogfish and was looked upon as a worthless nuisance. Now, through the efforts of Uncle Sam's bureau of fisheries, it is called the grayfish and is in great demand as a valuable food product.

Nor is this by any means an inconsequential matter. The war in Europe has demonstrated almost innumerable ways in which patriotic women can and do help. Not only do they care for the sick and wounded close to the battlefields, but they provide clothing and bandages and medicines and practically every other known means of bodily relief and comfort which soldiers in the trenches must have; they work side-by-side with men in munitions factories, or occupy onerous positions which men are forced to vacate for the business of actual fighting.

It is devoutly to be hoped that circumstances will not impose these burdens on American women; but it is an inspiration to know that American women, like American men, are in a frame of mind to give their best services in any eventuality.

We are beginning to wonder if the advance in cigar prices has any connection with brown paper or cabbage at $100 a ton.

The bone dry laws say nothing about winking at the clerk at the soda fountain. At least we have one liberty left untrampled by the law.

SEVEN WONDERS OF TODAY.

They Will Probably Become the Commonplaces of Tomorrow.

Not a great many years ago a spectated and skeptical old scientist wrote a long thesis in which he claimed that the world's great discoveries all lay in the past, that the future had no new wonders to disclose and that all the really fundamental inventions, discoveries and researches had already been made.

"For," said the pessimistic philosopher, "there are no more strange lands to explore, no more conceivable inventions for the benefit of mankind. The telegraph, electric light, telephone and electric motor are already here. The camera and microscope, telescope and linotype, printing press and sewing machine, airship and steamboat are already discovered. What else is there left that is really new?"

But Mother Nature seemed to have kept her most wonderful secrets for just such an occasion. As if deliberately to disprove the foolish scientist the next ten years brought out the most astounding collection of new inventions and discoveries the world has ever known, for, in the period immediately following the bold claim of this doubting Thomas, Hertz discovered electric waves, Marconi invented wireless telegraphy, Roentgen stumbled upon the X ray, Mme. Curie isolated radium, Sir William Ramsay found five new chemical elements, Edison made his first moving picture machine, the Wright brothers conquered the air, and countless greater or lesser discoveries astounded the scientific world.

So the seven great wonders of today will become the commonplaces of tomorrow.—J. S. Newman in St. Nicholas.

MOST COMPLEX ART IS MUSIC

In the Key of "C" Alone There Are 382 Distinct Scales.

With 382 separate and distinct scales in the key of C alone, it is no more than natural that the realm of harmony should be considered as infinite. Yet few laymen are familiar with this, according to Carl W. Grimm of Cincinnati, speaking on "The Realm of Scales." Mr. Grimm lamented the ignorance of the millions who persist in the contention that music is no longer susceptible of a single original note; that in a short time no new tunes will appear because every possible variation will have been made up of.

"No great composer"—Mr. Grimm paused a moment and then repeated by way of emphasis—"no really great composer, I say, has yet complained that the resources of music have been exhausted. The present day composer fails to realize that any scale may be turned into a monstrosity through improper treatment, which explains the great majority of our popular music. Scales are not the product of imaginative inspiration; each must be considered as a scientific achievement, and its pitch should be carefully and exactly determined through the application of certain fixed laws which form the backbone of all true music."

Mr. Grimm made it clear that music instead of being the most primitive has evolved into the most complex art known to twentieth century civilization.—New York Post.

Farm Boys Fill the Pulpits.

If you are a salesman there is little chance your son will become a minister, while if you are a farmer the chances are the best, and if you are a minister the chances are the next best.

That conclusion results from the statistical table prepared after investigation by the Association of American Colleges.

Thirty-three per cent of all ministers—at least in the northern states, where the statistics apply—came from the homes of farmers and 18 per cent from the homes of ministers.

Other vocations furnish the following per cent of candidates for the ministry: Physicians, 2 per cent; clerical workers, 4 per cent; carpenters, 5 per cent; merchants and laborers, each 8 per cent; all other vocations, 20 per cent.—Chicago Tribune.

Grayfish as a Food. It used to be called the dogfish and was looked upon as a worthless nuisance. Now, through the efforts of Uncle Sam's bureau of fisheries, it is called the grayfish and is in great demand as a valuable food product.

Nor is this by any means an inconsequential matter. The war in Europe has demonstrated almost innumerable ways in which patriotic women can and do help. Not only do they care for the sick and wounded close to the battlefields, but they provide clothing and bandages and medicines and practically every other known means of bodily relief and comfort which soldiers in the trenches must have; they work side-by-side with men in munitions factories, or occupy onerous positions which men are forced to vacate for the business of actual fighting.

It is devoutly to be hoped that circumstances will not impose these burdens on American women; but it is an inspiration to know that American women, like American men, are in a frame of mind to give their best services in any eventuality.

We are beginning to wonder if the advance in cigar prices has any connection with brown paper or cabbage at $100 a ton.

The bone dry laws say nothing about winking at the clerk at the soda fountain. At least we have one liberty left untrampled by the law.

CAREFUL SPEECH.

It Aids Clear Thinking and the Expression of One's Ideas.

Nothing is more of a help to clear thinking than careful speech. Very often we discover a flaw in our logic when we attempt to put it into words, observes the Irish World. But sometimes we really have ideas, though we experience difficulty in expressing them.

People of sympathetic natures are frequently dumb in the presence of sorrow. Some who are very intelligent are so silent and diffident that nobody ever gets the benefit of their bright ideas.

A recent poet has intimated that for the deep things of life language is altogether inadequate; but, however that may be, it is the principal means at present by which human beings get close together.

We learn to talk, as we say, in the first few years of life, and some of us get very little beyond that start in babyhood. We can ask for what we want to eat and drink, but we are unable to express sympathy tactfully and gracefully.

We have a great many ideas that we never try to put into words, because we feel that we do not know the right words. We have not really learned to talk while we remain silent regarding the things which mean most to us.

NEGLECTED CHILDREN.

If There Were Fewer of Them There Would Be Less Crime.

A St. Louis judge recently made the statement in an address delivered before a local bar association that "if one-fourth as much as is spent for keeping up our courts, jails, poorhouses and paupers was applied to help neglected city children make a proper start in life the high tide of crime surely would decrease."

This is a remarkable statement to make; but, coming from the source it does, it is worthy of consideration of all philanthropic men and women. Had the speaker made his statement more general and applicable to the country as well as to the cities it would all the same be worthy of credence.

The life of every one depends largely upon the start made. There are those who are started right and then depart from the straight but narrow path, but they are the exception and not the rule. Thousands of little unfortunates may be said to be born criminals, the offspring of criminal parentage. If not so born they are so bred. But it is true, as said by this St. Louis judge, that if a benevolent and righteous public would deal with the problem as it might there would be less crime and fewer criminals.—Knoxville Journal and Tribune.

Our Public Health Service.

In the fields of preventive medicine and in all matters in which the public health is concerned the public health service does work which is not only unsurpassed but unequalled in any country of the world. This is recognized and fully appreciated in Europe, and recently in one of the chief medical journals of Europe high praise was given to the service for the extremely valuable information with regard to disease and preventive medicine which was disseminated by the agency of its bulletins and other publications. In fact, the United States public health service is unique and is an institution of which this country has every reason to be proud. It remains as an ever ready foundation upon which to erect the department of public health whenever congress shall see fit to establish it.—Medical Record.

Guessing a Star.

Mira, the wonderful star in the constellation Cetus (the Whale), stands foremost among those variable stars which have produced so much guesswork. Besides the theory that its even months' variations are due to the flickering up and down of gas, it has been conjectured that this distant sun is subject to particularly acute sun spots, that its obscuration are due to eclipse by huge planets revolving round it and even, according to Maupeirtuis, that it is not spherical in shape, as other heavenly bodies are, so that we see it sometimes in sections, sometimes in plane. Occasionally, as in 1789 and 1839, it has blazed up actually to first magnitude, while from 1672 to 1676 it disappeared altogether.—Boston Transcript.

Warming a Serpent.

Down in Bermuda Mark Twain made a speech about snakes to a group of little girls. The speech was great. The only trouble was that the little girls could not appreciate it. It flew over their heads. This was the humorist's conclusion: "Never warm a serpent in your bosom. It is far easier to warm it by placing it under the pillow of an intimate friend."

His Ear For Music.

"Has your daughter finished her musical education?" "I suppose so," answered Mr. Twobble. "But sometimes when she is playing one of those classical pieces it seems to me that she is starting to learn all over again."—Birmingham Age-Herald.

Translation.

"What on earth did that fellow mean when he said he was a peregrinating pedestrian, castigating his itinerary from the classic Athens of America?" "He meant he was a tramp beating his way from Boston."—Baltimore American.

Rank Foolishness.

You occasionally see it stated that colds do not result from cold weather. That is rank foolishness. Were it true colds would be as prevalent in midsummer as in midwinter. The microbe that causes colds flourishes in damp, cold weather. To get rid of a cold take Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. It is effectual and is highly recommended by people who have used it for many years as occasion required, and know its real value. Obtainable everywhere.—Ad.
