THE FLAG ON THE FARM.

While the American flag is seen floating from almost every vantage point in every city and town, and where, even in many of the smallest towns, villages and hamlets, patriotic citizens have combined and contributed to a fund with which they have set flag poles and raised the nation's colors, there is yet lacking a sight of the flag upon many farms.

One observes the flag as an emblem of patriotism. Its significance cannot be overlooked; its effect is thrilling. But singularly enough, though the towns and villages have responded, few flags are to be seen floating over the homes of the farmers whose fields and meadows and woodlots border the highways and the railroads and trolley lines connecting these settlements.

The absence of the nation's colors from the farm homes does not mean, of course, that the farmer is less patriotic than his cousin of the village, town or city. The farmer is generously and nobly doing his part. He has heeded the country's call for more food; he has turned more land to the plow; he has taken upon himself added burdens and responsibilities and harder work.

But one could still wish that he would find it possible to fly the flag over his home. He is busy, to be sure, and the work he is doing absorbs his time, strength and attention. Still it would be an additional credit to him if he worked literally as well as figuratively under the stars and stripes.

JUDICIOUS ECONOMY.

Besides buying liberty bonds the conservation of products of every sort, both natural and manufactured, is necessary to the successful prosecution of the war. Time, money, resources, labor must not be wasted. Extravagance is not a virtue even in peace times.

Money must be kept freely in circulation. An undue parsimony, bordering on miserliness, will solve none of the problems with which we are confronted. On the contrary, it will produce additional problems. The dollar must be kept at work. True and not false economy is the requirement of the day.

Mr. and Mrs. Randolph Speers and Miss Luella Radford of Cottrell, spent Sunday with the latter's brother, Alonzo Radford and family.

In a lecture at one of the Des Moines, Iowa, churches a missionary from India told of going into the interior of India, where he was taken sick, that he had a bottle of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy with him and believed that it saved his life.

dant, must be dried or canned or otherwise preserved; nothing this year must be permitted to rot in the garden, field or orchard because of seemingly lack of immediate demand.

The exercise of judgment, care and discrimination are essential. And if these faculties are brought properly into play, there will be no parsimony, no miserliness, but, instead, the elimination of waste, which is precisely what the situation requires.

An ounce of meat is not a very great quantity of food, but we have heard that it will hurt no family to reduce their meat consumption an ounce a day. And if each American family will unmeat to the extent of an ounce a day it will amount to 400,000,000 pounds of meat in one year, which is equivalent to 400,000 average sized cows.

They say that an undersea freighter of 1000 tons has been designed by an American that can be standardized and speedily constructed in vast numbers. If this be true it will not be long before the Oregon troops will be telling us about the sights of Berlin.

How is it that Oregon land agents have never caught on to the possibility of bringing a colony from Boston to Oregon by telling them that there are 25,000 acres planted to beans and a bumper crop in sight?

Those 81 indicted onion speculators in Boston worked their coin separators too hard. The farmers got but 2 cents a pound and the operators got the goats of the public.

Produce Row says there are not enough frying-size chickens. If Mr. P. Row doesn't get in too great a hurry there will be enough of them for the Fourth of July picnics.

Perhaps it would be well to take some steps toward conserving the rain supply. There is some evidence of waste as the weather bureau reports a deficit below normal.

An army lieutenant says adaptability to aviation is a natural gift. We thoroughly believe him. We likewise believe that we were not born with any such adaptability.

The mouth of the Columbia river seems to be the only ship channel in the western hemisphere in which some hobo with tattered overalls hasn't seen a submarine.

We are compelled to say that the pranks of those Russian democrats bear a striking resemblance to some of the old-time stunts of the Oregon democracy.

The Washington girl who was arrested for wearing male attire evidently failed to complete her disguise by trying to enlist or carrying a hoe.

One thing that makes it advisable to buy the liberty bonds right soon is that another $2,000,000,000 will be ready for the country by Christmas.

The government might raise the rest of the $2,000,000,000 by placing a small tax on each of the coming aspirants for Senator McNary's place.

The fellow who sawed his way out of jail with a safety razor, probably has a job by this time as advertising manager for the maker of the razor.

A sweet girl graduate is a very important person if you happen to be the daddy or sweetheart of one.

Who is going to suggest a plan to make use of the muskmelon seeds?

We know that conscription is right. Emma Goldman is forinst it.

SANDY BLUFF

In last week's paper the mention of Mrs. Henry Kane and J. B. Smith as visitors at the home of Mrs. Mary Edwards, was a mistake. The visitors were Mrs. Henry Kane and Mrs. Florence Smith.

Harry King, of Grass Valley, is visiting his sister, Mrs. Laura Barnes.

Ray Davis, of Clifton, is visiting at the home of A. C. Browning.

A party was recently given at the home of A. E. Browning. All present enjoyed a good time.

FREEDOM'S DEFENDER.

Oregon's greatest orator, Col. E. D. Baker, made one of his famous speeches in San Francisco, while on his way to Washington as senator-elect. That was at the commencement of the great rebellion, fifty-six years ago, when Freedom was being assailed as she is even now.

"Here, then, long years ago, I took my stand by Freedom; and where the feet of my youth were planted, there my manhood and my age shall march. And, for one, I am not ashamed of Freedom. I know her power; I glory in her strength. I have seen her again and again struck down on a hundred chosen fields of battle. I have seen her foes gather around her, and bind her to the stake. I have seen them give her ashes to the winds, regathering them again, that they might scatter them yet more widely. But when they turned to exult, I have seen her again meet them, face to face, clad in complete steel, and brandishing in her strong right hand a flaming sword, red with insufferable light. And, therefore, I take courage. The people gather around her once more. The genius of America will at last lead her sons to Freedom."

Col. Baker went into the war and gained imperishable renown. He fell at the battle of Ball's Bluff while battling for the Freedom of his country, but his clarion notes are echoing yet and should serve as a rallying cry to every man throughout the land. The words he uttered might be said again today with the same truth and forcefulness as in 1861, lacking only the fervid oratory that stirred every listener into instant action. We can only reprint them now, but their strength is not lacking.
