PLEASANT HOME

Elene Sloop is suffering with a severe attack of erysipelas. Mrs. F. S. Ford has returned from Tillamook, where she has been for several weeks.

The Misses Eva and Alberta Schneider plan to enter Good Samaritan hospital for a three-years' course in nurses' training. They will begin work next Monday.

Mrs. D. T. Williams wishes a correction made in a statement in the last Outlook. Mr. Wire of Newberg did not do any caponizing in her poultry flock, but hoganized them, which is a method of selection of the birds, with reference to their excellency.

At the Baptist church next Sunday, services will be held at 7 o'clock, lead by C. E. Meets, followed by preaching at 8 o'clock by the pastor, Rev. A. J. Ware.

SCENIC

The guests entertained last week by Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Duncan were Mrs. Nelson and son Milton, of Kelso, Mr. and Mrs. Milton Phillips, of Tacoma, Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Counsel and son Joe, of Milwaukie and Mrs. Lottie Pellette of Portland.

Miss Ellen DeHaven is spending fair week with Mrs. I. McColl, of Gresham.

A surprise party was given Mrs. D. D. Jack Monday in honor of her birthday. It was well planned and successfully carried out, with not a "leak" from any source, which goes to prove that women can keep a secret. The hostess was presented a nice piece of hand-made lace and a generous purse for a present of her own selection. Those present were Mesdames David Lauderback, Denney, Wuner, Altman, Bauder, Duncan, DeHaven, Pitts, Goger, Craswell, Miller, Lusted, Schneider and the Misses Ellen DeHaven, Mammie Denney, Hazel Goger, Suddie Jack and Ida Miller. After a very pleasant afternoon and a bounteous lunch furnished by the ladies, goodbyes were said with many happy returns of the day.

Taxing War Profits.

All of the profit can not be taken out of war without disaster to the normal business structure, according to the attitude of the British government. But that profit can be commandeered for the uses of the state after it has been made. This is what the government is doing.

The present fiscal year will show $1,000,000,000 commandeered, one of the government's financial authorities told the United Press.

In the year ending on March 21, the British government claimed and received $700,000,000 as its share of excess business profits, or 60 per cent of the total excess. The prediction of $1,000,000,000 is based on the new 80 per cent tax now in force.

"There has been some argument against making the tax as high as 80 per cent," said the authority, "on the ground that it would discourage enterprise and thus defeat its own purpose. The objection came from theorists rather than the business men themselves, however. Business certainly shows no signs of discouragement."

Earlier in the war the government took only 50 per cent of excess profits. The increase to the point where only 20 per cent is left to the business concern has been gradual.

"This does not mean," it was explained, "that these concerns are allowed profits of 20 per cent. It means only that of their war time profits, they may retain only 20 per cent of the increase. The taxation of their normal profits continues just the same though the taxation, too, is at a much higher rate than it was before the war."

"Many ways of reaching these excess profits were considered but the one adopted appealed to us because of its simplicity. We had the means in existence for ascertaining what the profits had been in the years immediately preceding the war and computing the difference after the war began. Our income tax records and machinery removed many of the difficulties. Practically the only concern whose profits could not be ascertained readily are concerns doing too small a business to come within the operation of the act."

Evasions or attempts to evade the tax have been uncommon. British business men, whether engaged in manufacturing munitions or retailing luxuries, have accepted the principle of the law.

"The man who could not accept it would be a pretty patriot," said the official. "Fortunately for the credit of the British people, such poor patriots are rare."

"There has been the suggestion that all war profits should be confiscated. We believe there is hardly room for doubt that this would discourage industry to a point that would mean serious injury to our national life."

"America has been doing such splendid things in a financial way for the benefit of the allies that we hope to hear she is protecting her own interests in this vital matter."

Apple Men Warned.

A very serious epidemic of apple tree anthracnose developed in western Oregon last winter says Prof. H. P. Barss, and an increase of the disease may be expected this fall and winter if growers do not spray. Where there is a crop of fruit especially in the red varieties, the application of Bordeaux is undesirable on account of the mottling effect which results from the presence of the spray deposit on the fruit. This may to a large extent be avoided by using Burgundy mixture. This application will largely prevent the rot due to the anthracnose fungus which develops during wet falls both on the tree and in storage. As soon as the crop is picked, or in early November another application with winter strength Bordeaux or lime-sulphur should be given to insure against winter infections. Thoroughness in spraying is absolutely essential as the object is to coat the entire surface of the tree with the poison and where this is not done there will be left opportunities for infection. Directions for the preparation of the spray materials may be secured from the Oregon Agricultural College, Corvallis, Oregon, without charge.

Continuation of Story.

last Thursday the 15th. We procured a couple of horses and went to visit our outlying posts. The purpose of which was to acquaint me with their location, etc. Next morning Mr. Jessop and Mr. Owens, supervising secretary, came out on a tour of inspection. I had to conduct them about to these various places having only been over the ground once before, namely on the day previous. If you were familiar with this country you would know that it was no easy job as there are few landmarks to go by. However, after losing ourselves several times in the sand, barwire entanglements, etc., we made our rounds, taking all day however, to the evident satisfaction of both parties.

It may be interesting for you to know that all or most of our little places are under the shell fire of the enemy. I say this in no sense whatsoever but of statement of fact. It is some little satisfaction to know that we are under the same dangers that the trenches or those who go over the parapet are the only ones who come closer to danger than ourselves. Bits of shrapnel fall almost daily on one or the other of our dugouts and several times pieces have been sized by as I was out on field work. Stray bullets in East Liverpool, Ohio, was a Rhodes scholar from Kenyon University and had been away from home 3 years, one and a half of which was spent in Y. M. work in Egypt. I have written of him many times—how we worked together at Ballot on the Canal and how we chatted of old acquaintances and college life. I just received a letter from him a week or two ago telling me that he was planning to "go home with me and enlist."

He was a fine lad, volunteered for the field work although he wasn't really strong enough for it. I am going to get a picture of his grave and bring his things home with me when I come also write his people. Well, must close again. Best wishes and love to all. BILL

Experience the Best Teacher.

It is generally admitted that experience is the best teacher, but should we not make use of the experience of others as well as our own? The experience of a thousand persons is more to be depended upon than of one individual. Many thousands of persons have used Chamberlain's Cough Remedy for coughs and colds with the best results, which shows it to be a thoroughly reliable preparation for those diseases. Try it. It is prompt and effectual and pleasant to take.—Adv.

Little Dagmar Antonsen was painfully injured Sunday evening, being run over by a machine while crossing the Base Line road with her mother. Mrs. Geo. Eastman was seriously hurt Sunday, while riding with her husband. In some way the seat became dislodged, throwing her to the ground, cutting a gash on her forehead and otherwise bruising her.

Mrs. W. H. Sanford was called to Castle Rock on account of the serious illness of her infant niece. Mr. and Mrs. H. S. Benson have recently purchased a new Ford.

Translated by the Waiter.

The order is repeated to the cook in slightly different language. "Mutton broth in a hurry," says the customer. "Baa-baa in the rain! Make him run!" shouts the waiter. "Beefsteak and onions," says the customer. "John Bull! Make him a giddy!" shouts the waiter. "Where's my baked potatoes?" asks a customer. "Mrs. Murphy in a sealskin coat!" shouts the waiter. "Two fried eggs. Don't fry 'em too hard," says the customer. "Adam and Even in the garden! Leave their eyes open!" shouts the waiter. "Poached eggs on toast," says the customer. "Bride and groom on a raft in the middle of the ocean!" shouts the waiter. "Chicken croquets," says the customer. "Fowl ball!" shouts the waiter. "Hash," says the customer. "Gentleman wants to take a chance!" shouts the waiter. "I'll have hash, too," says the next customer. "Another sport!" shouts the waiter. "Glass of milk," says a customer. "Let it rain!" shouts the waiter. "Frankfurters and sauerkraut, good and hot," says a customer. "Fido, Shep and a bale of hay," shouts the waiter, "and let 'em sizzle!"
