"The Linotype Way is the Way that Wins."

Official paper of the Town of Gresham. Official paper of the Town of Fairview.

Entered as second-class matter March 3, 1911, at the Postoffice at Gresham, Oregon, under the Act of March 3, 1879.

WHEN THE WIRES WERE CROSSED.

A glance at the headlines of the Outlook's first page last Friday would lead one to infer that the Red Cross was going to run the municipal affairs of Gresham, and that Gresham was going into the Red Cross business. An otherwise beautiful front page was spoiled by the effect, but no one knows just how it happened.

Sometimes the fault of newspaper mistakes can be laid to the linotype; sometimes the reporter gets his metaphors mixed and sometimes the blame is laid to the office cat. There are many ways of fixing the blame in most cases, but this is a case of contre temps that has no explanation.

Of course we have heard of the mistake from a hundred sources since Friday night and some of our friends are insinuating that we have started a non compos mentis column as something new in journalism. As there has been so very little new in newspaperdom for so many moons it is barely possible that we have discovered something that will not have to be copyrighted, for we are certain that it will not be imitated. At any rate we have discovered that everybody reads the Outlook, which is a cause of satisfaction not unmixed with the apprehension that some of our readers will want us to do it again.

APARTMENT RENTS.

It is noticeable that with the late increase in Portland's population—an increase that is rapidly filling up more than two thousand houses that were empty a year ago, that a blow has been directed at some of the ultimate consumers from which they have not a chance to escape. Apartment and flat dwellers have not been troubling themselves much about fuel, because they had none to buy. Nevertheless they are going to remunerate the landlord for the advanced price which he says he was obliged to pay for this year's supply.

There is no way for the flat dweller to evade this surcharge of ten or fifteen per cent. He can move to an unheated house, but the price he would have to pay for fuel would probably result in no saving. He cannot better himself by moving to another flat, because the increases are general. So he is likely to stay where he is—and pay more rent.

On the surface the plan of the landlords to raise flat rents seems justifiable. There is no question of the price of fuel has risen. There is, however, a serious question as to whether all flat owners have paid more for this year's supply than last. Perhaps they are figuring on saving enough money this year to pay for fuel next year.

NEXT YEAR'S GARDENS.

All the various forces that have been at work since last spring to induce gardening and still more gardening are preparing for a huge fall campaign. That is as it should be. The cultivator of the back yard and vacant lot garden, who learned about gardening in a practical sense for the first time this season, will need very little urging to set him to doing all the fall tasks necessary. A wise cultivator of the soil once observed that half of gardening lay in getting a "good early start." "And when do you start?" someone inquired. "The autumn before," he replied.

Gardening in 1918 must not only be on as extensive a scale as in 1917 but even more extensive. The longer the war lasts the greater will become the necessity for putting every available foot of soil to work. And the time for laying the foundation of next year's garden, as every experienced gardener will agree, is in "the autumn before." Many this season got away to a late start. It is quite true they did their best to make up for lost time, but, despite their efforts, time was lost and the garden yields, as a result, were less than they might have been.

"Plant as soon as frost is out of the ground." "Plant as soon as the ground can be worked." These are two familiar directions appertaining to many of our best and most popular vegetables. The list of vegetables that can be planted thus early is extensive. It ought to be remembered, however, that the ground cannot be worked until it has been plowed or spaded, but that ground thus prepared in the preceding fall can often-times be "worked" before spade or plow can be put to soil that was not broken in the autumn. With that in mind, plans for next year's garden ought to go forward now as rapidly as possible. A fall campaign is no less essential than a spring campaign.

APT QUOTATIONS.

When the kaiser speaks: "Words of his mouth are iniquity."—Psalms 36:3.

Referring to the war revenue bill: "For to whom much is given, of him shall much be required."—Luke 12:48.

Meaning LaFollette: "Wild asses did stand in high places."—Jer. 14:6.

Not while the war lasts: "Bread shall be fat and plenteous."—Isaiah 30:23.

To remember on meatless days, "God created great whales."—Genesis 1:21.

For first captured American taken to Berlin: "On his head many crowns."—Rev. 19:12.

When the president selected Frank A. Vanderlip, president of the National City bank, for helping Secretary McAdoo finance the war, he fixed the salary at one dollar a year. Of course he may not be able to live on his government salary, but he is a financier and a republican, and with the addition of $100,000 a year which he draws from the bank he may be able to squeeze through. On the whole we are pretty sure that, as he is a republican, he is far more suitable for a dollar-a-year job than any democrat we know of.

Social events among the young folks are going to be few in Gresham the coming winter. So, perhaps, the old folks can get up something like an old-time affair from which the new stepping craze has barred them for the past two years.

A. W. Lafferty is going to be a candidate for representative again, from this congressional district. Chasing rainbows affords pretty good physical exercise, but Mr. Lafferty will find that rainbows have no terminal facilities whatever.

The Germans say that the allies will be forced to pay an indemnity of $87,500,000,000. There may be a shortage of meat in Germany just now, but somehow the people managed to store up a big lot of gall.

That war revenue bill, which is designed to tax salaries and incomes, will have its effect on the Red Cross and Liberty Loans. Happy is the person who can spare a little for all three.

Now somebody wonders if LaFollette hasn't a rubber jaw. We don't know, but we have long been of the opinion that he is using the same jawbone that Samson used on a memorable occasion.

By a meretricious decree of the District of Columbia supreme court, Harvey J. Chestnut, who has suffered much from being introduced as "Mr. Chestnut," is now and henceforward Harvey J. Cheston.

Of course, there was no concerted effort on the part of landlords in Portland to raise apartment rents. They just all happened to be thinking the same thought at the same time.

Despite all the excitement in Chicago nobody has been assured that if the White Sox wins Mr. Armour will reduce the price of meat. Let's don't worry over the world series.

Now they are asking for three chaplains for each regiment in the cantonments. The devil must be operating faster behind the lines than in the trenches.

Those requests for discarded clothing for the poor are beginning to pain us. Looking over our wardrobe we find there isn't going to be any discard.

Some Kansas folks want to offer a reward of $1,000,000 for the kaiser. They are probably not sensible enough to invest the money in Liberty bonds.

Twelve West Point cadets are on trial for hazing, so it would appear that hazing at West Point would have to be permanently squelched again.

SECOND LIBERTY LOAN.

The second liberty loan is under way, and from reports at hand it appears it is being rapidly subscribed. The banks, as before, are assisting purchasers in making investments and will give detailed information to those interested.

The people of Gresham and its vicinity are directly interested, for the prompt flotation of these bonds is a matter of vital consequence to us here as well as to the whole country. We are having pressed upon our consciousness with greater force than ever that the country is engaged in a war which involves life and many other sacrifices.

This section of Oregon, practically all of it tributary to Gresham, has an honor roll numbering more than one hundred of our bravest boys. They are preparing to participate in the life and death struggle in which the nation is engaged.

The call of the nation is a call to lofty patriotism. It is not asking the people to hazard their lives on the battlefield, but to lend it money to train, feed, clothe, arm and equip the young men who offer all.

This town and its vicinity are shown by the records of the two banks here to have nearly a quarter of a million dollars on deposit or otherwise available, and if our share should be but one-tenth of that sum it could easily be invested. What will the answer be?

The government is now asking our people to lend of its money upon the best security that this world offers. It is asking of rich and poor alike. It is asking that sacrifices be made if necessary to strengthen its hands for the tremendous task it has to perform.

This war cannot be won without the patriotism that is willing to sacrifice all if the country's life requires it. The war is here and now, and the call to duty is sounding in every man's ears. Gresham must not fail in this hour.

There is no end to the soil products of the state of California. Garden Grove, between Los Angeles and the sea, has just started a new industry, growing leucisic root. On a half-acre one rancher grew 12,986 pounds. This gave a stimulus to the industry, and others are producing from 4,000 to 14,000 pounds on small lots. It is sold to a mill at Camden, N. J.

Business failures, as reported by "Bradstreet's" were 244 for the week ended September 13, compared with 176 the preceding week, and 298 in the like week of 1916.

There were 792,177 cars of bituminous coal shipped in August, 1917, against 686,320 cars in July, and 634,607 cars in August, 1916.

Advices from Wisconsin indicate that it is earnestly hoping for a vacancy in its United States senatorial staff.

It would be too humiliating to tar and feather an I. W. W. He would have to work to get the pesky stuff off.

In the hope of making the required weight for acceptance as a recruit, Irwin Helm, of Marine, Ill., 19 years old, weighted his shoes with type metal before taking his physical examination. Unfortunately they made him strip.

In England Samuel Wesley reproduced from memory after a lapse of twenty-five years an oratorio covering upward of 300 closely written pages which he had composed early in life. He said that he saw the score in his "mind's eye" as accurately as if it lay before him.
