The Linotype Way is the Way that Wins.

Official paper of the Town of Gresham Official paper of the Town of Fairview.

Entered as second-class matter March 2, 1911, at the Postoffice at Gresham, Oregon, under the Act of March 3, 1879.

The camp and cantonment boys who have offered their lives for their country are also dividing their $30 a month with the government, and thus setting an example in patriotism that people behind the lines ought to be swift to emulate.

POTATO WEEK.

One of the variable feasts that Oregon people have not been considering very seriously is potato week. The United States department of agriculture urges that every American family observe the dates from October 22 to 27. There have been raisin days, prune days, rice days, salmon days and even orange weeks, but potato week is something new. Next thing they will be telling us to observe artichoke week and we won't be able to say whether we would know it from an archduke or an archipelago.

But the department of agriculture expects to accomplish more than the mere advertising of potatoes during potato week. Just now potatoes are by far the cheapest starchy food—and the use of them will result in the saving of just that much wheat for shipment to our allies. The "week," however, was designed for those regions where potatoes are scarce, for there are many persons in the United States who know as little of potatoes as we do of cocoonut oil.

The department gives, by way of encouragement to cooks unfamiliar with the preparation of potatoes, recipes for each day of potato week. The western housewife who has been accustomed to potatoes on her table twice a day throughout the year may find no acceptable suggestions in them, but those who can't get potatoes may find the recipes useful to stow away until another year when Oregon has a bumper crop with carloads to spare.

It isn't a case of doing your part if it is convenient, but doing it even at the cost of sacrifice and self-denial. If you are not willing to sacrifice something you ought to be in the Hindenberg trenches this minute.

OUR OTHER ENEMY.

Bitter and cruel as is the foe known to us as Prussian militarism, insidious as is the foe recognized in sporadic instances of disloyalty at home, there is a foe more bitter, more insidious, more inveterately treacherous and cruel—and his name is Consumption. However long or short the present war in Europe may be, it will be as but a day by comparison with the years we have been combatting and must continue to combat, this great white plague.

This foe has destroyed more human lives than all the wars of history. He invades every city and town and almost every hamlet in the land, and his depredations have caused monetary losses amounting to billions and billions of dollars. This record he has maintained in peace and in war; and right now, in the midst of the greatest war of all time, he looms a hideous menace upon the horizon of our present and future.

For the military examinations have revealed many cases of incipient tuberculosis which had previously escaped detection. These cases must be taken in hand immediately and subjected to intelligent treatment, in order that we may save the lives not only of the present victims, but also of innumerable persons now healthy, who may otherwise be exposed to the ravages of the enemy by unsuspected sources. Besides all this, the war is almost certain to send home to us many tubercular patients. We must be prepared to care for these in such fashion as to alleviate their own suffering and prevent a spread of the disease.

It was with this idea in mind that the tuberculosis conference was held in Portland this week. It is a matter of potentially vital concern to every one of us. If ever there was a war measure of peculiar breadth and importance, this is one of the greatest, since it must lay plans not only for the immediate future, but also for a long time to come, after the war of guns shall have ceased on the blood-stained fields of Europe and the surviving soldiers shall have returned home, and all plans must have reference alike to the soldier and to the civilian, to the sick and to the well.

THREE-CENT POSTAGE.

The public has already been warned that the new postage will go into effect on the first of next month, so that if letters are held up for lack of sufficient postage it will be plain that the senders either don't read the papers or are forgetful.

There is little likelihood that any person, regardless of the size of his income, will overlook the feature of the revenue bill raising postage rates, unless he is one of those just mentioned. Beginning November 2 it will take 3 cents to send a letter, formerly sent for 2 cents, and the 1-cent government post card will have to bear a 1-cent stamp. Commercial post cards, however, bearing no written message and mailed in quantities of fifteen or more may be sent for 1 cent as usual.

There should be little objection to this method of revenue raising. Postal rates have always been cheap in relation to the value of the service rendered and in relation to the service of similar nature, such as package carrying by private companies. It will still be worth a great deal more than 3 cents to send a letter from Gresham to New York.

The increased cost will fall with particular force on business, especially on firms whose trade is not localized, but since all must pay the advanced rates none will be discriminated against.

Some comment is certain to be heard, however, on the inconsistencies created by the advance in connection with international postal agreements which have not been abrogated. It will cost 3 cents to send a letter from Gresham to Boring, but it will only cost 2 cents to send a letter across the ocean to any nation in the postal union enjoying such a rate of postage.

Gresham has an ordinance prohibiting chickens from running at large. It seems to us that if there were ever a time when it was hazardous for chickens to run at large, now is that time. We mean frying size.

It is said that steins are replacing the beer glasses in San Francisco. It is done to prevent the breaking of the consumer's heart while trying to measure the height of the shampoo stuff with his eye.

There is one commodity that is never sold by the dozen, pound or bushel. We've all heard about that peek of trouble and it wouldn't surprise us a bit to hear that its price had been raised.

Texas society note: "J. Rhodes and Nettie Good were married on Thursday." That ought to settle matters somewhat when they are called upon in Texas to vote a few millions for good roads.

It seems as if the soldiers are going to have turkey for Thanksgiving, so we civilians might just as well make up our minds to do our Thanksgiving dinnering on the cheaper cuts of tripe.

If cabbage prices get so high because of the war tax that you can't afford to smoke, have your cabbage boiled with a hunk of corned beef and get your per capita just the same.

In considering the merits of horse-meat as food, it might be well to take a referendum on the difference between a pacing porterhouse or a trotting tenderloin.

Everybody will agree that Judge Henry E. McGinn is a real, dyed-in-the-wool patriot. He must be some relation to old Hitty McGinn.

The true patriot is the man who buys the bond, smiles, takes up two notches in his belt and whistles, "My Country, 'Tis of Thee."

One thing in favor of the socialists is that they are making a nuisance of themselves in Germany.

The iceman's plan of conservation got a big boost on Tuesday night, and Hoover wasn't in it.

The demand for wages, it may be noted, is greater than the supply.

The Tuesday Study club will meet at the library next Tuesday evening to resume work, which has been suspended during the summer.

Mrs. Smith Recommends Chamberlain's Tablets.

"I have had more or less stomach trouble for eight or ten years," writes Mrs. G. H. Smith, Brewerton, N. Y. "When suffering from attacks of indigestion and heaviness after eating, one or two of Chamberlain's Tablets have always relieved me. I have also found them a pleasant laxative." These tablets tone up the stomach and enable it to perform its functions naturally. If you are troubled with indigestion give them a trial, get well and stay well.—Adv.
