For a Weak Stomach.
As a general rule all you need to do is to adopt a diet suited to your age and occupation and to keep your bowels regular. When you feel that you have eaten too much and when constipated, take one of Chamberlain's Tablets.—Adv.

COLUMBIA HEIGHTS

Well, Jack Frost came and pinched the late potatoes and before long the main crop will be ready to dig. They promise a good yield. The lovely and lasting weather made all of the trees hold on to their leaves, but now the yellow leaves commence to drop to the ground where ere long they will wither, but here and there the side hills presents a beautiful sight. The vine maples are more gorgeous than ever and the remarks from the traveling public enunciate that they are enjoying their trips on the highway, even though the air is a bit snappy. The Vista House and the grounds presents a grand sight. It has of course stood much criticism but the public doesn't seem to realize who is behind that monument. And say, won't it be a joke, when this work is finished if S. Benson should take a notion to pay the bill? You know it is just like him to do such stunts. Wonder how the public would take it? But we plead for the roads that the rural mail carrier must travel this winter. It is something awful, and we hope that something will be done to those roads soon.

Mrs. Lottie Benfield, who has been up in Idaho with her grandchildren, is expected home now and says, "No place like Oregon."

Mrs. J. T. Rea, of Portland, was out at her little ranch, Fir Grove, last week. Her daughter Della, is at the present at St. Helens hall.

Mrs. P. Andersen visited school on Friday of last week and enjoyed a spelling match by the grammar grades. The pupils are doing splendid work under the tutorage of Miss M. Powell.

R. Illidge, son of Mr. and Mrs. C. Illidge, at this place, entered Columbia college in Vermont a short time ago and is taking a mining course.

W. Deaver, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. Deaver, spent a couple of days at the family fireside. He is a splendid looking soldier and is stationed near the mouth of the Columbia river and belongs to the Coast Artillery. Another fine looking soldier, who visited in this vicinity recently, was Ernest Bates, son of Mrs. Rachel Bates of Corbett, who is still at Vancouver, Wash.

Mrs. Ada O'Connell of Camas, Wash., and baby boy, is at home here for a short visit.

Mrs. S. R. Knight was the guest of her daughter in Portland for a couple of days last week.

John Taylor, the superintendent of the logging camp at Wind river, spent Sunday at his ranch here.

A dispatch from Washington says: General shortage of labor in industries that must be kept at top speed if the United States is to throw its whole strength into the war is giving considerable concern to government officials studying the situation. Conditions in some parts of the country already threaten production of essential materials.

Guy W. Talbot, president of Pacific Power & Light company of Portland, has been elected president of the Northwest Electric Light & Power association for 1917-18.

What His Face Disclosed.

In his new book of personal recollections, "In Good Company," Coulson Kernahan tells a characteristic anecdote about Edward Whymper, the famous traveler and mountaineer.

The two men had gone for a Sunday morning ramble, and after walking some four miles they came to a wayside inn.

Said Whymper: "I had some very salt bloaters for breakfast. Do you mind if I call in here and slake my thirst?"

It was within the prohibited hours, but Whymper, nevertheless, knocked sharply and loudly in his usual masterful way, and when the door was opened by a frowsy-looking man in shirtsleeves, said dryly, in more senses than one:

"I am thirsty and want a drink, please."

"Are you a bona fide traveler?" inquired the man.

This rather tickled Whymper, who, glancing down at his dusty attire, inquired of the landlord if he didn't look like one.

"I don't know," replied the man, looking at Whymper very hard in the face, "but I'll tell you what you do look like if you wish. You look to me like a man who, if he's made up his mind to have a drink, would have it whether he was a bona fide traveler or not, and, what's more, wouldn't let no one stop him from having it."

Senator Newlands, chairman of the congressional committee, investigating transportation problems says: "The successful prosecution of the war depends more upon transportation by rail, river and ocean than upon any one thing and yet rail and river transportation is the only thing to which the energizing aid of the government has not been given."

Certain Cure for Croup.

Mrs. Rose Middleton, of Greenville, Ill., has had experience in the treatment of this disease. She says, "When my children were small my son had croup frequently. Chamberlain's Cough Remedy always broke up these attacks immediately, and I was never without it in the house. I have taken it myself for coughs and colds with good results."—Adv.
