THE SCHOOL ELECTION.

Pursuant to law, and the call published elsewhere in the Outlook, there will be a school meeting in District No. 4 on Saturday, November 24. It is for the purpose of levying a special district tax for funds with which to operate the district school for another year. It should be largely attended by all voters of the district, and more especially by the women.

It has been noticed that the women everywhere in Oregon take less interest in school meetings than they do in political elections. It is noticed, also, that fully three-fourths of the attendance at a school meeting are men.

The women should not forget. The schools are peculiarly their interest. They are in closer touch with them than the men. What the boy or girl is taught in school, how he is taught and who is his teacher are things of interest to the father, of course, but it is the mother usually who knows the teacher, visits the schools and takes the active interest in the details of their conduct. The growth of the parent-teachers' organizations, the mothers' clubs with school interests, and the occasional election of a woman to school board offices show the interest of women in the schools.

One of the reasons for this, perhaps, is that the women have more time to become acquainted with what is going on in the schools and to study their problems. If this is so then it would seem that there is opportunity for a profitable division of labor with the men since they, as a class, seem not to have time and inclination for taking an active interest in school affairs.

The schools should have the best attention of both men and women. As it is the directors in the Gresham district, passing over the matter of their qualifications, are the choice of a very small proportion of the voters. Whom the majority silently favored no one knows. Many of them were silent because they were not permitted to vote. Others who could vote did not. Those whose silence was enforced hitherto, and who may now vote under the new law, and who have peculiarly strong interest in the finances of this district, should be at the meeting on the 24th, and cast their votes as their judgment dictates, or as the financial exigencies of the district require.

ANOTHER FOOD IDEA

One of our friends, a man with a large family of girls, makes a war economy proposal that is certain to meet with opposition from many persons, including his own daughters. He advocates abolition of ice cream, putting it in the same class with the extract of corn as a waste of food-stuffs which might be more profitably utilized. The vigor of his feeling is evidenced thusly:

If the milk and cream daily consumed as ice cream were made into cheese and butter, surely these very necessary articles of food would be cheaper and perhaps some of the husky chaps one sees at the numerous soda fountains all over the country might lay off slinging soda and sun-dae and learn how to sling hand grenades, weld bayonets or do some little thing to make the world safer for democracy.

There is no probability that he is making the suggestion seriously or that it would be entertained unless as a last resort. He is more than likely feeling the drain upon his pocket made by his ice cream eaters at home and is making a feeble protest. If the thousands of gallons of milk and cream used in the making of ice cream were turned into the supply available for butter making the price of butter might be reduced. But in the interest of fair play, other angles of the question should have consideration.

There is no proof that ice cream eating is quite as deleterious as whiskey drinking. It is served in many hospitals to convalescents as a peculiarly grateful and easily digestible food. Perhaps the milk and cream taken in ice cream is serving as useful a purpose in the human body as when drunk or made into butter. Then, there is the danger of setting a precedent. With ice cream abolished who knows when pie will be next in order. It might be logically concluded that if the milk and cream in ice cream were more healthful eaten raw the same would be true of the apples in apple pie; or in the ingredients of mince meat and a dozen other things that are usually found in many well regulated pies, including pumpkins and custard pies. And who could conscientiously give thanks or enjoy Thanksgiving day without pumpkin pie or sugar in the cranberry sauce? Pie fills too important a place in our national life to be thus abandoned.

It is necessary for this country to conserve sugar to the greatest possible extent, and the sweet potato is one food that will furnish us with a considerable amount of sugar at the lowest possible cost. The sweet potato is cheap and desirable from all points of view. Try it!

A Philadelphia man says that there are too many states and that there should be a number of consolidations until there are but twenty-four. If they start anything like that Oregon will take over California and make it both dry and republican.

An Ohio farm paper is demanding that the apples be made into pies instead of cider. It will be remembered that Ohio went wet a few weeks ago; also that Hoover is on the job trying to prevent the wast of flour.

Are you saving your one-third of sugar? Every American is asked to cut down his use of sugar one-third, so that there may be plenty for the men at the front and for the stricken people of Europe.

Speaking of conservation, there is no question but that we will soon be doing our part toward the gas supply—when the weather gets cold enough to keep a fire all day in the cook stove.

The most destructive and dangerous of animal pests is the rat. While America is striving to feed the allies, this pest annually destroys foodstuffs in the United States worth $200,000,000.

A public speaker was heard to say: "To become a good speaker one must abstain from smoking and drinking alcoholic beverages." Did you ever see anyone smoke an alcoholic beverage?

If the suggestion is worth anything we would like to suggest that Mr. Rockefeller endow a chair of Corn Breeding in the University of Chicago and put a southern mammy in it.

It seems as if the autumn weddings were growing in numbers with the approach of winter. It is hard to determine whether it is love speeding up or the high price of fuel.

Secretary McAdoo intimates that the next liberty loan will not be offered before February. That will give father a rest after the financial demands of the holidays.

Swiss engineers have convinced Russian officials that it is possible to bore a sixteen-mile tunnel through the Caucasus mountains and link the Black and Caspian seas.

The intensity of the tone obtained from a phonograph can be varied by a recently patented needle mounting provided with a counterweight to regulate its pressure.

If you have a "sweet tooth," satisfy it with dates and figs instead of candy. The sugar is needed for the men at the front and for the famishing people of France.

Washington says there will be a good supply of turkeys, but we are not taking Washington as authority. We are putting our faith mostly in Oakland, Oregon.

The price of soap is soaring also; but then the Saturday nighters can always conserve on bathing several Saturday nights in each month.

Hogs are going to be a factor in winning the war. This means the four-footed variety. Those with two feet are a positive detriment.

The American dollar is worth only 75 cents in Sweden. It's worth less than that in Gresham if a person starts out to buy bacon.

Formation of community hog cholera prevention associations is war organization not to be overlooked.

Congress will soon be on the job again, speeding up Uncle Sam's coin separators.

Somehow things don't taste like they used to in the palmy days of bicarbonate of soda.

Don't let rats in your corn crib eat holes in our national defense.

Biddy, too, should get acquainted with the wheatless meal.

Food for allies is ammunition for the first line of defense.

Save a loaf of bread a week. Help win the war.

FEED SITUATION.

High prices of poultry feeds for the past few months have brought scores of letters to the United States Food Administration stating that the cost of egg production exceeds current market quotations. Commenting on this situation, W. F. Priebe, poultry expert of the administration, says "Relief is now in sight. The enormous 1917 corn crop which will be the basis of most feeds is just coming on the market and will reach the dealers in a few weeks."

"This corn," states Mr. Priebe, "is quoted at just about half the latest prevailing prices for last year's corn crop, which was short. While it is difficult to predict the future accurately, dealers have known for several months that a large corn crop is coming and are now carrying extremely low stocks of poultry feeds to avoid loss when the price slumps. Consequently, flock owners will in a short time receive the benefit of reduced prices."

Persons keeping poultry on farm or under free range conditions have profited most during 1917. Their hens have acted as scavengers in picking up waste feed in the barn yards and field to say nothing of the insects and weed seeds they consume.

Flock owners obliged to buy feed have faced a discouraging problem. But in view of prospects for cheaper feed, it would be unwise to dispose of pullets or laying hens.

Environment.

"You know the terrible toll of manhood that immortality takes, and its appalling waste of man power. You know also that it is only when the stream of man's usual life is dammed up that it breaks into new channels. We shall render a national service, therefore, if we make the lives of our soldiers and sailors in training as near normal, from a social and community standpoint as is possible."—John N. Willys, National Chairman, War-Camp Community Recreation Fund.
