WHEN PEACE SHALL REIGN

When peace shall reign and despot tyrants fall,
No pain, or grief, shall rise to shake the human kind;
When man to man shall strive for victory,
In Paths trod down by progress, love,
When wealth shall turn to peaceful conquest,
Over the sea, the earth, and air;
Not until then will fairly win, the race of man
A diadem, rich with crown of victory,
Go pander to the lust for war and greed,
Give wealth to butchery and strife,
Toll on in vain, the passions to subdue,
For all is lost in phantom life,
But when man's greatest battle-ground is won,
And Peace triumphant rises in its might,
Then the hardest victory has been won,
With deathly blow to tyranny.
—Bernard Mulrine.

There has been a heavy slump in the demand for grapefruit since powdered sugar for sweetening is often unobtainable.

Chamberlain's Cough Remedy.

This is not only one of the best and most efficient medicine for coughs, colds and croup, but is also pleasant and safe to take, which is important when medicine must be given to children. Many mothers have given it their unqualified endorsement.—Adv.

I Believe in the American Soldier.

1. I believe in the American soldier.
2. I believe in his ability to represent nineteen others of America and myself in the greatest struggle of all ages.
3. Whatever may be his fate in the furnace and fury of hell, I shall always believe he did his part with a free heart, hand and mind, and remember that he has gone to a foreign field where liberty has become the highest priced goal in the history of all the world—and where American resources, American brains and the American soldiers are expected to accomplish that which nearly all the peoples of the earth have failed to accomplish, as yet.
4. I believe, therefore, that I am morally obligated as a free American to do all within my power to make the burden lighter for those who face death and endure privation for me, and to fearlessly face the supreme test of Americans by all the world.

This potato show is becoming a very important factor for the potato growers of the state and Multnomah county should be represented by a large number of exhibits. The exhibits should be sent directly to the Extension Service of the Oregon Agricultural College. There will be no charge for entering an exhibit.

The Winter Short Course of the Schools of Agriculture, Commerce, Engineering and Home Economics, at the Oregon Agricultural College this year occurs between January 7 and February 1. These will aid very materially in the effort to increase crop production, conserve crops, and encourage the profitable disposal and economic use of the products of the field, orchard, dairy and household. Those interested can get the special Winter Short Course bulletin by writing to the college.

FARMERS' WEEK.

Farmers' Week at the Oregon Agricultural College is this year from December 31st to January 5th inclusive. This is the week the farmers from all parts of the state meet together to discuss their many problems. Practically all of the farmers organizations such as Live Stock associations, Horticultural societies, and Dairymen's organizations have their meetings during this week at the college. Aside from that there are regular scheduled lectures on all the different phases of agriculture conducted by the best men available in our own state as well as other states. This would be a week profitably spent for any farmer in the county. We hope to meet you there.

There are now approximately 19,000 speakers in the "Four Minute Men," the nation-wide organization of volunteer speakers who assist the government in the work of national defense by presenting messages of vital national importance to motion-picture theater audiences.

GRESHAM LOCALS

Bert Hoss is in quarantine with measles at Camp Lewis.

The Camp Fire Girls will meet Friday night this week instead of Thursday.

Mr. and Mrs. Ross Marston are the parents of a fine baby girl born December 15.

Wallace Wilkinson came down from Camp Lewis on Friday night and returned the next morning.

Mrs. A. Wilkinson has gone to Vincent, Oregon, where Mr. Wilkinson is working. She expects to be gone all winter.

E. W. Stratton and wife have gone to Mount Coffin, Wash., to remain over Christmas, visiting with the latter's mother.

Miss Miriam Ingalls is spending her Christmas vacation with the family of Dr. Geo. Ingalls. Miss Ingalls is a teacher at Toledo, Oregon.

Mrs. Kathryn Naugle is visiting at the home of Mr. and Mrs. B. W. Emery with her son Mark. Her home is at University Park, Portland.

Roy Olsen is spending a brief furlough at the home of his father, Emil Olsen. He is from the Naval Training Station, San Francisco.

Leslie St. Clair is at home from Ft. Stevens for a brief furlough, which he will spend with his wife at Fairview and his parents in Gresham.

Ross Brown left Gresham on Sunday for Paris, France, where he goes to take a position in one of the American Express company's offices there.

Among the college students home for the holidays are Miss Helen McCormick, Miss Pearl Ruegg and Clyde Ruegg. The latter is in the Reserve Officers' Training Corps of Washington University.

Lieut. Ernest Thom is home from Camp Lewis on a short furlough, which he will spend with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. William Thom and with his wife's parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Burch.

Names became sadly mixed in the report in a recent Outlook of the birth of a daughter to Mrs. Ava Thompson Edwards of Pendleton. For some unexplainable reason she was called Mrs. Davis.

Ross Lovelace and wife, of Roseburg, are here, spending the holidays. They formerly lived at Rockwood, Mrs. Lovelace being a daughter of G. B. Middleton. They will remain in this vicinity until January 3.

Dr. Roland Quesinberry has enlisted in the navy as a dentist and has gone to a naval training station. Dr. Quesinberry is a graduate of Gresham High school of 1913 and of Pacific Dental College. He has been practicing at Salem.

All the Gresham students to the Monmouth Normal school returned home last Friday evening for the holidays. They are Marian Robertson, Margaret Burke, Gladys Michel, Ethel Calkins and Hester Thorpe. They will go back to the school on January 9.

E. A. Taylor and family, recently from English Grove, near Sauk Centre, Minnesota, have moved into one of Mrs. Gould's houses in Thompson addition. Mr. Taylor is a farmer and is looking for a location in the west. It is likely that he will locate near Gresham.

In a letter from C. V. Thomas, Woodland Park, Colorado, renewing his subscription to the Outlook, he says: "We are an unusually high-minded set out here. We live at an altitude of 8500 feet, and yet within our vision are still higher things—the summit of Pike's Peak."

The Red Cross will give a snipping party next Friday evening, December 28, beginning at 7:30 o'clock, at Metzger's hall. The invitation is to all, especially to the men, and all are asked to provide themselves with sharp scissors and a basket. Donations of old soft cloth will be appreciated.

Congratulations are being showered upon Mr. and Mrs. Frank Frakes, of Portland, over the birth of a tiny daughter, weighing 5 1/2 pounds, on December 22. Grandmother Frakes says the baby is perfect and everyone is perfectly happy. The Frakes family lives at 925 1/2 Maryland avenue.

Joseph A. Finley, leader of the large chorus, will not be here for the usual practice night this week, but will meet his private pupils on Wednesday afternoon. The chorus is making good progress and all are taking considerable interest in the work. There is still room for more singers on most of the parts. The next practice will be on the evening of January 2.

Misses Mildred and Winifred St. Clair entertained a few girl friends last Friday afternoon. Fancy work claimed the attention of the girls. Luncheon was served at the close of the afternoon. The guests were the Misses Grace Fieldhouse, Edna Benson, Mabel Brown, Edella Towle, Helen Bliss, Eva Tacheron and Mrs. Leslie St. Clair of Fairview.

Of course you want to know at once how a Christmas tree can be any more real than the one you had last year, so I shall explain that the tree Ralph and Rhoda had by accident one winter was rooted in the ground in the Lake Superior woods.

First you must be told that the town children up there had the good times in both summer and winter, but the miners' boys and girls had the hard times all the year around, and that's the reason why mother said to Ralph and Rhoda the day before Christmas: "I don't see how you two are going to have a happy holiday when the children up at the mines do not expect to have any tree at all. How would you like to go up the mountain and take them a lot of presents and things? You can get back before dark. I will telephone the mine captain that you are coming."

"Just the very thing," said the children. And away they went soon after with a sled loaded with everything you can think of for a jolly Christmas, just lots of gifts and royal trimmings for a tree.

They were making good time along the mountain side when Rhoda stumbled over a root.

When she tried to stand up again her ankle would not work.

Of course Rhoda would not hear of leaving the mine's children's "Christmas" in the snow and coasting back home. So Ralph went back to the Halfway store for some help, but the place was locked and barred. Before they decided on what to do next a flock of the mine children came racing down the road. It seemed as though the telephone message had emptied the settlement of youngsters.

"We've come to help take the 'Christmas' up the mountain. It's a hard pull farther along," they explained.

When they found that Rhoda was hurt they wanted to take her home, but she wouldn't listen to a word of it.

"I'm going right up to see that tree properly trimmed and hung with these things," announced that young lady and, being of the sturdy and determined kind, tried to forget the pain.

So the swiftest runners of the mine boys started back to get a sled to carry Rhoda to the summit.

Before the ambulance corps could return, down came one of those howling blizzards so dreaded in the rough northern country, and there was nothing for it but to retreat and take refuge in the Halfway store. This old log house proved a hard nut to crack, but Ralph finally managed to get in through a rear window and soon had a roaring fire going in the big stove.

The plucky lads got back from the mountain, and everybody thanked his lucky stars to be safe and warm. Outside the storm roared and the trees bent low in the gale. All the evening Rhoda stood the ache bravely and said it was nothing, but Mary Martha Murphy knew better. When all was quiet she brought a pail of water so hot that Rhoda squealed when her nurse put the swollen ankle into it, and these two girls, one who had a lovely home and rich furs and many other fine things and the little poor girl with a warm Irish heart, sat up till "all hours."

During the night the storm turned to rain, and then it became cold, so very cold that the forest was covered with an icy coat. In the morning the blizzard drifts were many feet deep.

So the only thing to be done was to wait till a rescue party came out for them with shovels and horses and snowplows. And then a great thought occurred to Rhoda.

A giant hemlock tree stood right in front of the store, in a place swept clear by the wind—that is, it had been a hemlock before it became one great, dazzling emerald with pearly icicles hanging all over it.

When night came, clear and perfectly still and lanky black, the rescue party found a celebration going on the like of which had never been known. The children had taken hundreds of miners' candles from the store and had wired them all over the hemlock. All the presents and the gilt ropes and the other ornaments had been hung about the branches, and the candles lighted.

Rhoda, half smothered in furs and tucked up on a high seat, was mistress of ceremonies, while a ring of singing, dancing children circled around the tree, and in the background, all about the dense forest, shot back millions of sparks of light.

The Good Old Customs.

By all means, so long as they will endure, let us cling to the old customs. Up with the holly, the box and the bay, set the plum pudding ablaze, light the Christmas tree, scatter greetings broadcast through the land, ring out wild bells to the wild sky and give encouragement to the carol singers. Christmas comes but once a year, and when it comes it makes us all kin and more or less kind. It is a truly happy festival, the time when we best understand what home means, the children's feast, when the old grow young again. A happy Christmas, then, to all.

Christmas Carols at Nantucket.

The custom of singing Christmas carols in the streets still obtains at Nantucket. Every Christmas eve the school children march through the old cobbled streets of the town and sing their songs.
All the ancient houses are illuminated with candles in the windows, and the children always stop and serenade their favorites. It is very pretty to hear them, and they never forget to sing for what they call the "shut ins"—the folks who are ill and unable to get out and join the festivities.

Late reports on health conditions at army camps and cantonments show the epidemic of measles to be greatly decreasing. In several camps where measles has extensively prevailed the number of cases of pneumonia has decreased.

Retail dealers of insecticides are exempt from the licensing regulations covering trade in white arsenic and arsenic insecticides. The only companies required to obtain licenses are wholesalers and jobbers.

The number of men now being served by American Red Cross canteens in France is more than 15,000 a day.
