NO PLACE FOR THE WEDGE.

Out of the confused events in Russia certain comparatively definite tendencies are becoming observable. It were folly to fix upon any one incident or event, accept it as a fact and build a theory upon it, but while the air is filled with blowing straws that are whirling about in inconceivable meaningless within certain narrow limits, the whole mass of madness appears to be moving one way, and it is this general movement that seems to be worth a moment's consideration.

And the movement is not in the direction of a separate peace between Russia and Germany. The Bolsheviks have become disillusioned, and upon one exceedingly interesting point. When we speak of the Bolsheviks we do not mean Lenin and Trotsky, although even they are evidencing a certain tendency toward nervousness. It is the class to which we refer, the party that has assumed control of the affairs of Russia. We do not believe that this party is altogether composed of traitors. Rather, it seems to us, it is made up for the most part of visionaries, and those visionaries are beginning to see facts instead of fancies.

Let us go back a bit, and to our own part of the world. When we entered the war we were assured by high authority that we had no quarrel with the German people, but only with the German military caste and government, and an effort was made to convince the German people as well as our own of this fact, in the belief that our good intentions being understood by the Teutonic masses, there would be a popular upheaval against the military autocracy that was responsible for the beginning of the war. Thus far, assuming the theory to be correct, we have failed to reach the understanding of the German people, and apparently all Germany is reunited against the supposedly sinister American nation.

The Bolsheviks began their negotiations with Germany with some such theory as this, only they approached the German people in a different way. They went with an olive branch instead of a declaration of a state of war. Their notion, apparently, was that if the German people should see coming towards them a friendly nation, desirous only of peace on the terms of no indemnities and no annexations, they would rise in their latent democratic might and force a democratic peace. In other words, the Bolsheviks apparently attempted to precipitate the hoped-for German revolution by an exhibition of democratic friendliness, and a practical demonstration of socialistic pacifism.

They have failed, of course. The Bolsheviks found themselves dealing exclusively with the military caste, and found that their peace terms were unacceptable. They found that other terms were proposed to them, and above all, that there was no popular response in Germany to their appeal to the common people to enter into negotiations on any basis whatever different from that dictated by the rulers of Germany. In short, they found that apparently all Germany is set upon winning the war, not on making peace on any terms short of those of victory. They offered peace terms, and met war terms, and they do not find the German people reacting to the demonstrations of democratic good will.

Two attempts to drive a wedge between the German government and the German people have failed. They represented the extremes of intellectual humanitarian idealism on the one hand, and of doctrinaire socialism of the most extravagant type on the other. One was by process of war, the other by the offer and demonstration of peace. Not a crack is observable. The wedges have not entered the wood. We wonder if, after the German government and the German people.

Wheatless and meatless days at home mean defeatless days for our boys abroad.

WAR MARRIAGES.

It is estimated that there have been half a million "war marriages" in the United States since this nation declared war against Germany last April. The greatest rush was just before the selective draft in June, but it is believed that the Xmas weddings were a close second. Many of those now in the army cannot be accused of slacking as they were either in the service before being married, or joined the colors as volunteers. Others are drafted men who expected to be regardless of their new relation to society. Throughout the country the marriage rate in this first year of the war has been extraordinarily high.

The psychological aspect of the increase is interesting. It might be thought that the soldier or prospective soldier, facing the danger and the uncertainties of a campaign abroad would hesitate to contract new home responsibilities. A decrease in the number of marriages during a period of war would not be surprising to many minds. But, apparently, the view is taken in most cases that marriage will help to assure greater peace of mind on the part of both parties to the contract.

This applies to the instances, probably in the majority, where the marriage step is taken honestly. It is difficult and perhaps impracticable to distinguish between the motives of young men and women marrying in such numbers at this time, but it would be well if it were not. Under the new draft plan a man with a wife, with or without children, if either is "mainly dependent" upon his labor for support, is placed in Class IV, the next to the last group. Nothing is said about the date of marriage, although some leeway in the matter of exemptions is given the local boards in the interpretation of the term "mainly dependent."

There will probably be a great falling off in the number of weddings this year as compared with last? It was a psychological craze that has about run its course.

HOW THE MONEY GOES.

Did it ever occur to you when you are trying to get ahead a bit financially, that it isn't so much what you earn that counts—its what you save.

The head of the household has his salary boosted a bit occasionally and the household celebrates the event with due ceremony. But the trouble is that it usually goes on celebrating in the way of added extravagances—necessitates, mind you—that soon eat up the "raise" and some more along with it.

Uncle Sam knows this to be a fact. He knows that the American home where there can not be more frugality, more thrift and less extravagance, is the exception and not the rule.

Moreover Uncle Sam wants you to do your bit towards winning the war against Prussian militarism and autocracy and he is furthering the War Savings Stamp Thrift campaign as a means by which you can put your savings, from "two-bits" to $1,000 at work for the best cause under the sun.

For a starter it's as easy to buy a Thrift Stamp as it is to buy a loaf of bread. Try it.

Don't put the "if" in thrift.

The inquisitive subscriber wants to know which is grammatical: "The United States is" or "The United States are." The grammars are unanimously in favor of "The United States are," but considering what Germany is trying to do to it the actual facts are all in favor of "The United States is."

Billy Sunday, left Atlanta with a check for $20,162. As much as we detest money we might let out a few giggles for a check of similar size. But Billy is going to Washington and may need that much to live on while his campaign against the devil is in operation.

We may be wrong in saying that while we are fighting to make the world safe for democracy we are gradually giving democracy the hot end of the poker. A Kansas poet addressed a poem to his mother-in-law, and there was no law requiring it, either.

"Don't lick stamps," advises a doctor. He is right about it. We know from an experience of that part of our life that has passed that licking stamps is injurious, and that few people who had formed the habit ever lived beyond—say ninety-five years.

It is generally believed that the custom of charging the man in khaki more than civilians is general. But it would be impossible for either law or custom to punish such a dog more than he deserves to be punished. P. S.—We apologize to the dog.

Personally we are in no immediate danger, of course, but does anybody know of an effective cure for the chewing-gum habit short of extraction of the teeth or soaking the gum in a mixture of asoefetia, limburger cheese and gasoline?

We want Oregon to have a prosperous 1918, whether it be wheatless, meatless, candyless, bubbly, gigglish or any other old way. The waistbands of a good many Oregon pants are going to be loose next winter unless the state gets busy pretty quick on this year's war garden.

We want the Oregon boy who "gets" the kaiser to wire us collect. We will make a meal of a soup bowl full of collar buttons boiled in sheep dip and tobacco sauce.

A good way to keep prosperity is to scatter a little of it around so it will have a chance to grow up with the country.

The questionnaires brought out some secrets. The examining board seems to be a confessional and inquisition dovetailed together, rolled into one, basted and glued fast.

We want Seattle to know that it had our sympathies all along, but we were afraid to risk our inspiration to mention it until after HI Gill had blown up.

There are some things that nobody can put over us, and one is to make us believe that a man who is not ready to serve his country has a soul.

War Savings Stamps will save soldiers. Who saves, serves.

Notice. You are hereby notified that the annual meeting of the stockholders of the Multnomah & Clackamas County Mutual Telephone Co., will be held in Metzger's hall, Gresham, Monday, January 28, at 2 p. m., for the purpose of electing two directors and to transact any other business which may come before the meeting. It is to your interest to be present but if impossible to come, in order that we may have a quorum, please sign a proxy and send by some one whom you know will be present. EVA ANDERSON, Secretary.

Prefers Chamberlain's. "In the course of a conversation with Chamberlain Medicine Co.'s representative today, we had occasion to discuss in a general way the merits of their different preparations. At his suggestion I take pleasure in expressing my estimation of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. I have a family of six children and have used this remedy in my home for years. I consider it the only cough remedy on the market, as I have tried nearly all kinds."—Earl C. Ross, publisher Hamilton County Republican-News, Syracuse, Kansas.—Adv.
