ALIEN FRIENDS.

The fact that hundreds of Germans all over Oregon—as well as elsewhere—have been forced to register as alien enemies is not altogether their own fault. Many of them are as good citizens of this country as can be found. There are a few in this community, and in nearly every case they are even more active in support of the American war cause than are some Americans because they fear that inactivity on their part will be construed against them. They have bought liberty bonds, subscribed to the various war funds and have done various other things to show that they have the right idea and the proper spirit. Of course there are some native Germans in every state—possibly some in eastern Multnomah—who are disloyal and who are secretly working for the country they forsook when they came here to enjoy American liberty and freedom, but they are exceptions to the general rule.

Many of the aliens who have been compelled to register are really friend aliens and they feel a great deal of humiliation. A few that we know of have the impression that they have been branded in their communities as suspicious characters. Requiring them to place their inked finger prints on sheets of paper is much the same practice followed in keeping records of proved criminals. Many of them declare they did not know they were unnaturalized citizens. They have been living here many years and we believe them. During that time they have voted and some of those whom we know have held minor public offices. They were told, some of them say, that when they took out their first papers they had done all that was required of them. So they went about their business, feeling that they were naturalized and looking at things from an American viewpoint. Now the stern reality comes that they are still Germans. There is at least one such notable case in this vicinity.

Ignorance of the law is no excuse. So, after all, the Germans who felt they were fully naturalized were to blame when they stopped after making their declaration of intention. But American citizens themselves cannot escape their share of condemnation for permitting Germans to rest secure in this belief. There has been too much talk in this country about the rights of men to do as they pleased. Liberty became license. Men and women spoke, wrote and thought as they pleased. No one stopped to inquire whether they were natives or foreigners. In isolated instances someone started an American campaign. Efforts were made in some cases to cause foreigners to become naturalized, but the country generally was too busy doing something else to give heed any such propaganda. The result has been that there was no demand for naturalization foreigners are not fully naturalized, and it is in some cases our fault as well as their own.

It is reported that the Germans are wearing clothes made of paper. If the price of paper should ever come down in this country the people here might afford paper clothes, too.

Now it is said that the government will mobilize the lawyers of the country for professional service during the war. That's all right, but why not for military service? There seems to be enough of them to smash the kaiser without calling on the boys, and we could spare the most of them at any old time.

The inquisitive subscriber wants to know if it is proper to designate lies as yarns. Not exactly. If lies were yarns they would not be of the right color for the Red Cross knitters, as all lies are either black or white. Besides, if lies were yarns you could get eight pairs of socks for a nickel and a first-class, all wool overcoat for six bits.

THE LESSON OF LENT.

This first week in Lent should remind us that Lent is designed to fit men, not for ruling, but for serving. What is meant by this is a strength controlled and dominated by right principles and noble ideals, and directed to worthy ends. Should that strength be directed wholly to selfish objects, and guided by an unholy spirit, that strength would be—as surely as the world has learned in the last three years—a curse to those who possess it, and to mankind.

Much is being said these days of self-determination as applied to peoples and nations. The principle is quite as important as it bears on individual life. The only sort of self-determination that can help the world is that dictated by the best self. And the purpose of Lent is to strengthen the best self, not for its own sake, but that it may be put to work in the world for the glory of God and the good of men. Here surely, is the rule of the Christian life as found in Luke:

And he said unto them, the kings of the Gentiles exercise lordship over them; and they that exercise authority upon them are called benefactors. But ye shall not be so; but he that is greatest among you, let him be as the younger; and he that is chief, as he that doth serve. For which is greater, he that sitteth at meat, or he that serveth? But I am among you as he that serveth.

And there should be joy and gladness in the service and sacrifice. If there ever was a time when men should give all they have and do it in a gay spirit, without grudging, it is now. For the sacrifice to which the American people are called is in the noblest cause—for which men ever suffered and fought. There is here no question of self-sacrifice, for its own sake. Today it is a patriotic and social, as well as a religious duty. Never were religion and life brought into closer or more intimate contact. The question is not of winning praise or merit for oneself, but of feeding our armies in Europe and our friends beyond the seas.

Undoubtedly the reflex action on individuals will be wholly admirable. We shall be a stronger people because of the burdens imposed upon us, and the self-denial that we practice. But we shall be still stronger because those burdens will be carried, in part, for others, and because others will be helped by our sacrifice. We are not playing a part in a mere drama, but are participants in a life of devoted self-denial. It was Byron who said:

All is concentrated in a life intense, Where not a beam, nor air, nor leaf is left, But hath a part of being.

It is the high duty of the American people to gather up the fragments that nothing be lost. One wheatless day may save the lives of many children in Europe. We can do nothing in the way of observing Lent that will not help greatly to the redemption of humanity and the emancipation of the souls and bodies of men, women and children now held in slavery by the German military power. The sacrifice is not for the sake of self, or for the sake of sacrifice, but for the sake of the others who stand in sore and pitiful need of it. For the American people Lent, therefore, should this year have a new meaning. It has an appeal to all, which, it may be hoped, will not be without response.

There is a great demand for cooks for the army. We hope, however, that none of the Gresham cooks will have to go, as we can't spare 'em, nowhow. P. S. The Gresham cooks are all women.

When a man tells you he has never knowingly told a lie in his life, ask him what he told County Assessor Reed's deputies when they came around.

A reader wants to know the distance between Portland and Gresham. The answer is 18 miles by rail; by mail, sometimes, five days.

Lots of men don't mind carrying home a sack of flour or a dollar's worth of sugar, but they draw the line on paying cash.

SCENIC

Miss Ellen DeHaven spent Sunday with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. A. E. DeHaven.

C. C. Jack, of Portland, visited his parents over Sunday. A niece of Mr. and Mrs. Jack, Miss Alberta Schneider, was also a Sunday caller. Miss Schneider took up hospital training early last fall, and is very much in love with the work.

Carl Carlson, who is taking a course of study in engineering in Portland, visited his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Gust Carlson, over Sunday.

Mrs. Britton, of Portland, was a guest last week of Mrs. S. W. Morrison.

The Baptist Ladies' Aid society will have an all-day call meeting at the church Thursday. All members are requested to attend.

WE HAVE JUST BEGUN.

There are many reports from men lately returned from New York that there is a strong movement for peace under way. It seems to be more than a wish or sentiment for peace. If the reports are true it is a curious thing that so many who were formerly most eager for war, and most contemptuous in their attitude toward what they supposed to be the pacifists—all but a few strong partisans on the opposing side. But we would say to them that the west has only begun to fight—and means to fight until a real decision is obtained. It is hard to imagine a greater calamity than an inconclusive peace would be. For what we and our allies in this war have to conquer in this war is, not territory, but a haughty and wicked spirit. The Germans must be beaten, and realize that they are beaten, or else the world will not be safe—humanity will not be safe.

More important even than the restoration and compensation of Belgium, northern France, Serbia and Poland is the forcing on Germany of the bitter consciousness of failure in the great raid on the whole world. President Wilson has said, let it be remembered, that there can be no peace on the basis of the status quo ante. That would mean a draw, and a draw would be a German victory. The people of the west will never consent to such a peace. In that we believe that they are as one with the American people as a whole. We are in this war to crush, not simply an autocratic political system, but an autocratic temper and habit of mind. Never before was there a war in which so much psychology was involved. Never, either, was there a war in which there were so many wrongs to be righted, or so many infamous criminals to be punished. To negotiate with those criminals would be to condone their crimes. Western people may have been a little slow, but they are in this war to a finish.

What has become of the fellow who used to eat all the bread on the restaurant table while waiting for a 25-cent dinner?

The nice thing about investing in Thrift stamps is that you are sure to get your money back—and then some—in which respect they are different from some other investments almost everyone can recall.

MELROSE AND VICTORY.

As no more hand work is to be given out by the Portland Chapter until after March 1st, the members of the Red Cross auxiliary are requested to bring their scissors and be prepared for snipping. A call has gone out for more dish towels and any who can donate four sacks are requested to bring them ready for hemming. The Portland Chapter requests that as many machine made garments as possible be turned out before March 1st. If any one will donate the use of a machine for the next meeting February 21 it will be greatly appreciated.

Mrs. G. W. Alder had as her guest, Sunday, her nephew, Oscar Metzger. Mr. Metzger is traveling agent for the Mergenthaler company of San Francisco. This is the company that deals in linotype machines. Other guests were Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Duke, Mrs. Iva Littlepage, Miss Lena Cooley, Curtiss Wheeler and Carl Alder.

The season's first hatch of about 1500 chicks comes off at the White Knoll poultry farm next Friday. Carol McCreary enlisted in the marines last week and has gone to San Francisco.

School has been opened again after a week's closing as the pupils are all much improved. Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Pemington of Naptha, Idaho, visited at the home of Mr. and Mrs. H. W. Cooley last week. Mr. Cooley and Mr. Pemington were renewing a boyhood acquaintance. Mr. Pemington owns a large apiary in Idaho. Last year he shipped sixty tons of honey from his place.

The chicken pie supper and program to be given at Cedar schoolhouse and which has been postponed will be held March 2. A good program of songs, recitations, and a short play has been arranged. Commissioner Rufus Holman will be present and make a short speech.

Eggs from China are again being sold in Portland for less than native eggs, after paying freight for a 10-000-mile passage. But it must be remembered that these eggs were laid by the cheap coolie hens of far Cathay. There will be no difficulty in marketing the chickens that are counted before they are hatched. The department stores keep right on advertising new styles, just as if there were no liberty loan looming in the distance.
