TRIED VALUES

The primary campaign and choice of candidates proved that the election was not a political fight except in a few instances. This was not a campaign of politics but rather a campaign of politics but rather a campaign in which present incumbents have been endorsed, mainly from patriotic motives. It was an incumbent's campaign, not a political one, for politics have been lost sight of in the greater questions that are now predominant.

Take the aspirants for almost any office that is to be filled and for which candidates have been nominated: There is no question as to the ability of any of them, where four or five good men were seeking the same office, the governorship, for instance, each aspirant was undoubtedly fully qualified for the place. Except as to Governor Withycombe each of them probably received the vote of his own circle of friends or admirers. They could get no more, as politics did not enter very largely into the contest.

The same thing may be said of nearly all the other offices that were to be filled. The retention of more than 90 percent of the present incumbents was because of the confidence the voters had in them. Their majorities represented the sum of the voters' estimation of their tried values. Governor Withycombe's tried value was shown in his majority over any other candidate.

In every case where a present incumbent was nominated to succeed himself the tried value was manifest. He had proven himself capable and the voters who were without personal friendship realized the fact.

In some few instances there was a feeling that a certain person could no longer be trusted. This is evident in the vote for county commissioners, where one of the present incumbents was replaced by another who the voters had an idea would not be tied to such exorbitant ideas as the Vista house. A majority of the voters of Multnomah county administered a severe rebuke to Benson, Yeon and some others in choosing Mr. Holman to succeed himself, and they evidently believe that his running mate will act with him in preventing the reckless waste of public funds.

Tried values have renominated a large number of office-holders and they will be wise if they strive to retain the good will of the people which is now theirs.

SAVING AT THE BUNGHOLE

The old adage of saving at the spigot and wasting at the bung-hole is taking on a new meaning as applied to threshing grain of every description. A work of the greatest importance is that to be taken up with the owners of threshing machines, presumably all over the country, through the co-operation of the United States Grain Corporation and the federal food administration.

Detailed plans are being worked out whereby the food administration will operate with county organizations and thus get in touch with every threshing crew, to the end that grain ordinarily lost will be saved this year. It is estimated that fully 4 per cent of the wheat crops is lost each year through faulty threshing methods.

This year's wheat crop in the United States has been estimated at one billion bushels. If the crop approaches these figures the saving of 4 per cent would mean forty million bushels of wheat, more than ordinarily might be expected. This means more than eighty million dollars to the farmers, as well as an increase of the nation's food supply equal to that of practical-ly the entire northwest.

The general plans for helping save all the wheat and other grains include assistance in repair of machines; advising manufacturers of the location of machines which require special attention; consideration of the question as to whether there are sufficient threshing crews in the country to thresh in time to avoid unnecessary waste; assistance by co-operation with the fuel administration in obtaining a sufficient supply of good coal or oil where such fuel is needed, and assistance in obtaining sufficient repair parts and supplies to last through the threshing season.

Experts say that one threshing machine in six is in need of repair. For that reason a campaign will begin to make every threshing unit 100 per cent efficient by harvest time. In addition to the task of having every machine ready for the work demanded of it there will be an endeavor to mobilize experts, including a large force from the manufacturers, who will be subject to call during the actual threshing season. It will be their duty to see that every machine keeps its maximum efficiency. It is through the operation of what is known to the trade as bad order machines that grain is lost, and if this trouble can be eliminated there is no reason to believe that the estimate of 4 per cent is too high. If we can save the lost bushel the bread problem will take care of itself.

MILK BOTTLES

Some housewives seem to have a weakness for appropriating the milkman's bottles. In negotiations for the price of milk in Portland the distributors have usually pointed to their annual loss of bottles as one of the reasons for price increase to the consumers and for reducing the price to the producers.

The woman who would not borrow a garden tool without returning it apparently feels no compunction about retaining the property of the milkman. Hundreds of the bottles are used each year for preserving vegetables and fruit products. Other hundreds find their way to the junkman or are broken and thrown away without being paid for.

Why should otherwise honest women be so careless of the milkman's property? Perhaps it is because in every ordinary purchase the receipt goes with the purchase. No housewife would be expected to return a carton, a tin can, a paper sack or a berry box in which she carried home their contents.

There may be some misunderstanding as to the ownership of such property. Yet the milkman does his best to prevent such a misunderstanding. The customer who excuses negligence in returning milk bottles on the ground that she thought the bottles were hers will have to prove that she is blind or lacking in comprehension. Carelessness will probably account for most of the missing milk bottles.

It is costly carelessness and the burden, a usual, rests on the careful as well as the careless. Waste of milk bottles costs the dealers thousands of dollars each year and benefits only the manufacturer. This sum is charged to operating expenses. Evidently it is paid by the consumers. When this is understood consciences respecting the return of empty bottles to their owners should be more tender.

Senator-elect Mulkey will have a very pleasant trip to Washington at Government expense, so that he can be sworn in and resign, as he has agreed to, in favor of Senator McNary. He will also have the pleasure of being a short-term senator for the second time and Governor Withycombe will have the pleasure of again appointing Senator McNary to the vacant office. It's a regular round of pleasure, isn't it?

Coming events cast their shadows before. Breweries are springing up on the Mexican frontier and Mexico is going to lose some territory or the United States is going to lose some people who will be willing to live with the greasers.

Ben Oleott should worry. He has 31 months as secretary of state in which to recoup his primary losses. Ben is a good secretary—at least a whole lot of voters thought it best to keep him at his old job.

The inquisitive subscriber wants to know if the man who says he loves his enemies is a hypocrite? Not necessarily; he is probably just a highly imaginative yet involuntary prevaricator.

No, Mabel. A billion-bushel wheat crop this year will not resuscitate salt-rising bread. It's a lost art. The present generation is too ignorant of salt-rising bread to even care about its revival.

Don't it beat anything you ever heard of? The middle west is boasting of the first dandelion and here we are just washing our mouths out for a taste of the first ripe strawberries.

An increase of the draft limit to 50 years should be very cheering to a recent candidate for congress who said he was willing to go to France at any time but was too old to enlist.

Astoria's patriotism is at the high water mark. Astoria always feels that way about it at the zenith of the salmon season and the dawn of the annual regatta era.

"The first shall be last, and the last shall be first," or something like that. Governor Withycombe's name came last on the ballot and Dr. Anderson's first.

Now that the primaries are over we can again turn our attention to the other little differences of opinion.

RED CROSS GIVING

People who fear the war chest campaign will rob various war activities of the enthusiasm needed to keep them prominently before the public are borrowing trouble. A man or woman who is 100 per cent American does not have to be constantly reminded that we face a serious future. He does not have to renew his Americanism every morning or take it in out of the rain at night. If his heart is right he is right, and will be ready for any emergency without being constantly dosed with large portions of forced enthusiasm.

There used to be a feeling in some communities that a winter revival meeting was necessary in order to gather in those church members who had "back slid" during the warm weather. Something of the same theory apparently actuates those who feel that the war chest idea will rob various activities of their individuality and merge the whole business of giving into something that lacks sentiment and heart.

It should be borne in mind that the Red Cross movement does not touch the liberty loan campaign in any way. The money to be raised and devoted to Red Cross work will have nothing to do with government bonds, and those who give are not relieved in the slightest from subscribing for the next loan, whenever it comes.

Those who demand parades, red fire, the tooting of horns and the like, in order to have their Americanism kept at fever heat, will have their desires satisfied with the liberty loan campaigns. These campaigns, however, are merely for investors. They ask nothing as a gift. The Red Cross seeks donations—money that will not be returned. And as has been so often suggested in the past few weeks, it is the time to give, not invest.

Harvey Starkweather, of Clackamas, is an also-ran, just as we predicted he would be. He may be sadder than usual but wisdom will be roosting all over him.

SUMMONS.

In the District Court of the State of Oregon for the County of Multnomah, Portland District.

A. J. Krider and James Elkington, Plaintiffs, vs. J. W. Johnson, Defendant.

To J. W. Johnson, the above named Defendant: In the name of the State of Oregon, you are required to appear and answer the complaint filed against you in the above entitled court and cause on or before the second day of July, 1918, and if you fail so to appear and answer the plaintiff will take judgment against you as follows:

That the defendant J. W. Johnson is indebted to plaintiffs on written contract of employment in the sum of $137.50 with interest from the 10th day of April, 1918, at 6 per cent per annum until paid, and that plaintiff have judgment against the defendant for said sum, together with costs and disbursements herein; also for an order on the Bank of Gresham demanding that $500.00 in its possession, belonging to the defendant and attached and garnished herein be paid into court for satisfaction of said judgment, interest and costs.

This summons is served upon you by publication thereof once a week for six weeks in the Gresham Outlook, a twice-a-week newspaper, published in Multnomah County, Oregon, by order of Joseph H. Jones, one of the judges of the above court, which order was duly given, made and entered on the 18th day of May, 1918. First publication May 21st, 1918. Last publication July 2d, 1918.

MIL O. KING,

Attorney for Plaintiffs.

Gresham, Oregon.

A Splendid Record Achieved.
H. W. Snashall, president of the Farmers Mutual Fire Relief Association, reports the association has broken all former records in 1917. The annual statement shows 383 new members gained, 17 fire losses paid, aggregating $4911; $1,036,677 of insurance written, one assessment levied, and $700 invested in liberty bonds during the year. The association is entering its 14th year, and has over 4000 members carrying $4,250,000 insurance. It has made an annual saving of over 50 per cent to its members. At the annual meeting in January Andrew Brugger of Gresham was re-elected director for the ninth year. Farmers desiring to join may obtain information from H. W. Snashall, Gresham, R. A. or Herman Loeding, secretary, 409 Stock Exchange Bldg., Portland.—Adv.

EVANGELICAL CHURCH MEMBERS ARE LOYAL

As the second year of American participation in the greatest world-war opens, the nation at last realizes that it is actually at war. It is no time for differences of opinion, nor for anything that will hinder the fullest measure of highest patriotic service. And the highest degree of patriotic service is neither patriotic display or enthusiasm, nor flattering ourselves or denouncing the enemy; it consists rather in every kind of conscientious, self-sacrificing, personal effort on behalf of the nation's welfare.

The German ancestry or nativity of Evangelical Christians has never prevented them from being as loyal and patriotic in this war as any other American citizens. The Evangelical church has always been and now firmly is loyal to the great cause of popular government, true liberty and human progress, because it believes these things to be essential to the advancement of the kingdom of God among men. In this war it is the sacred duty of especially every Christian citizen to support his government in every possible way. It is the war-time task of the church to maintain in the most effective manner possible the missionary, educational and benevolent work at home and abroad, to provide larger resources than ever, both of men and money, and to stimulate to the utmost the spirit of consecration and sacrifice for the cross and crown of Jesus Christ.

As Evangelical citizens, therefore, we stand loyally behind our government in the carrying out of all measures made necessary by this war, and are ready to defend our beloved country with all we are and have against all enemies without and within. The hour calls not only for outward sacrifice and service, but most insistently for the confession of sin, personal and national; for prayer and intercession for those in high places; for the most earnest care for the spiritual and moral welfare of our brave soldiers and sailors, and for all we can do to cheer and hearten their loved ones at home.

Above all shall we seek to call men everywhere to a new obedience to the will of God, who in Christ has given himself in the supreme sacrifice for the redemption of the world.—The Evangelical Herald.

(Presented for publication in behalf of the Evangelical citizens of this community by Rev. H. R. Gebhardt, pastor of the Zion Evangelical church.)

Chiropractic Physician.

Dr. N. Plyler, a chiropractor physician recently from Roseburg, has taken an office in the First State Bank building and will become a permanent resident of Gresham. His practice at Roseburg extended over a period of four years and he comes fully recommended as a successful practitioner of his profession.—Adv.

Proper Food for Weak Stomachs.
The proper food for one man may be all wrong for another. Every one should adopt a diet suited to his age and occupation. Those who have weak stomachs need to be especially careful and should eat slowly and masticate their food thoroughly. It is also important that they keep their bowels regular. When they become constipated or when they feel dull and stupid after eating, they should take Chamberlain's Tablets to strengthen the stomach and move the bowels. They are easy to take and pleasant in effect.—Adv.

CLIP YOUR COUPONS FOR THE RED CROSS

"Clip your Liberty coupons for the Red Cross."
This was the message that went resounding over the country today.
Interest coupons for the second liberty loan became due this week.
As by far the great majority of these coupons are in the $1 and $3 value, it is believed that many of those having liberty bond coupons due will feel it a privilege to be able to donate them to the Red Cross.
Coupons should simply be clipped from bonds, handed to any war fund solicitor, or mailed to the nearest Red Cross chapter.
