THRIFT STAMP DIVIDENDS

With the approach of the thrift stamp campaign it is well enough for the people to comprehend the nature of the duty which confronts them.

Every dollar thus invested will return with substantial interest and in addition several thousands of people will have acquired habits of thrift that will greatly benefit them in after life.

Only a few thousand dollars will be asked of eastern Multnomah for the thrift stamps, but there probably will be much less enthusiasm in securing it and much greater effort expended, proportionately to the time considered.

Aside from their actual money value, thrift stamps will bring in dividends of another sort. The dividends that come from the best investments in life do not titillate the ear-drums with their vulgar jingle. They are dividends that neither moth nor rust can corrupt and that thieves cannot steal.

The money that you invest in a thrift stamp may pay you a dividend in a soldier's life saved; or it may pay you no greater dividend than a hour free from pain while a gallant soldier drifts out upon the bosom of the eternal deep.

In either case, it is an investment with a certain dividend—interest on the money you have loaned, and a spiritual treasure laid up that can never waste.

Don't regard the thrift stamp investment as a money proposition only, no more than you do the liberty loan, nor as something gone not to return. It is bound to come back to you in cash and in a much more enduring form than your sordid mind can conceive in dollars and cents.

The thrift stamp investment serves on the battle field and it seeks to be ready for the emergency when life may be lost in the space of a moment. And if we lend with enthusiasm for the purpose of sending our stalwart sons to the battle front to the music of blowing trumpets, let us again lend the smaller sums they ask for their protection while there. Eastern Multnomah must go over the top again with her thrift stamp contribution.

THE MAN'S VERDICT

The coming of hot weather sets a man thinking about how he is going to keep cool and at the same time keep within the prevailing styles of fashion. It is something that can't be done except in one way which most men won't think of trying and that is to wear the same weight of garments the whole year round.

Whenever mere man is at a loss for something sarcastic to say to a woman he declares that she is a slave of fashion. So convinced is he that he drops the case there as closed. The jury has brought in a verdict, he thinks, and it was entirely in support of his argument. He never gives consideration to his own case.

Many men—perhaps most of them—are just as great slaves to fashion as women. To the straw hats, for instance. There is a custom that straw hats are not to be worn until June 15. On recent warm days a few men had the courage to defy custom and keep their heads cool literally as well as figuratively. The early straw hats caused supercilious smiles and comment that was supposed to be witty. Many of the men who scoffed would have followed suit, but custom had them tied and gagged.

Another place where men are under complete control is in the matter of clothing. No sane man wants to appear conspicuous, so he wears the same style year after year. Such a thing as an extra button on his sleeve or a little slant in his pockets is enough to make him feel that the eyes of the universe are upon him. Many a man who yearns to incase his feet in white shoes in hot weather hesitates to do so for fear somebody will make sport of him.

The average man regards the cool-looking summer girl, in her sheer finery, and wishes he could dress in equally light raiment. But he has not the courage to wear a sport shirt. Very likely Adam's apple also rises up in protest against turning his neck out to the public gaze. Consequently he wears his coat, a collar and cravat. He is so much a slave to habit that he fears he might take cold if he took off his lead pencil and left it at home. The world is full of such men and yet they are among the first who contend that women are tied by fashion's rule.

THE IDLERS

It must be admitted that there is reluctance on the part of a not inconsiderable number of persons to go to work. Disagreeable as it is to make the admission the facts force it. Reports from public and commercial labor agencies disclose a surprising amount of unwillingness to accept good jobs by persons who ostensibly are seeking jobs.

These people drift from office to office, make inquiries, state their qualifications, are told of desirable opportunities, and are given directions. Nothing more is heard from them until they appear at other employment offices. Whether they are merely bluffing, or are hunting around for some imaginary job where mediocre capabilities are to be paid for at the rate commanded by first-rate talent, may be left to imagination. Be the cause what they may, here is the fact.

Of course, it is preferable that work should be voluntary. One doesn't like to think of slackers of any kind, doesn't like to think that there are human parasites in a time like the present. But no matter what one prefers to think, here are the parasites, and if they won't work voluntarily, they must be made to work. We no longer permit our young men to evade military service—there is no sound reason why we should permit anybody to evade home service of so much consequence as the manual work that supports the men we draft into the army.

Oregon as yet has had no such problem as they have in the big cities of the east, but really we have one that is commensurate with our size. And the time is not far into the future when we shall have to bear not only upon the chronic loafers of no means at all, but also upon the comfortable souls who really don't need to work for themselves and can see no reason why they should work for anybody else. Uselessness ought to be made unpopular everywhere.

SAVE YOUR POWDER

Much as we dislike to think about it, the fact remains that pro-German propaganda is insidiously at work among us all the time. Its manifestations are without number, and immensely varied. Driven to cover, the propagandists have also been driven to caution, but they have not been made inactive or harmless. By the good-natured conversational method they are ceaselessly at work.

We tend to forget this at times, especially during or just after a great war drive, when it seems as if every individual in the land were 100 per cent loyal. We must not forget it, and we ought not to permit other things than war enthusiasm to blind us to the real menace of the poison-mongers.

Other things there are, and among them is this thoughtless habit of stigmatizing everything personally or persistently obnoxious as pro-German, and what we desire to suggest is that the gratuitous and indiscriminate use of slander tends to make contemptible the general accusations, which are all too often richly deserved.

There has been no reason on earth for charging up Secretary Baker's real or assumed short-comings to pro-Germanism, personal or associational; there is no reason for characterizing inquiry into the operations of government as propaganda—the recent airship inquiry, for instance. To do either is to mingle things that differ, and obscure the difference between inadequacy and wilful un-Americanism on one hand, and between desire to serve and subtle purpose to hinder on the other.

We shall go a good deal farther in the direction of ridding the country of the propagandists and their machinations, if we save our powder for them and for them alone, instead of wasting it on our personal or party opponents if we save our genuine accusations of treachery for our enemies instead of debasing them into meaningless slanders against our friends.

THE SOCIALISTIC PERIL

The national peril from the disintegrating influences of socialism rightly named would not be very great.

But for lack of understanding just what socialism leads to, and ignorance of its character, makes it dangerous.

A large number of groups of citizens are always looking for new political fads to follow and experiments to try. The time has come when every American had better take stock and face the menace of socialism squarely. Socialism is the residue accumulating in this country as the melting pot of all nations and is growing steadily. Unless we find some way to educate the voters there will be more men like Berger of Milwaukee running for the Senate.

Judging from his utterances our country might as well have one of the Kaiser's warlords in the Senate as Berger.

His policies are farther from any true expression of Americanism than autocracy is from democracy.

The teachings of socialism are carried on by indirection in the name of reform movements of all kinds.

For instance, in the formation of the new national party all kinds of reform elements from single tax to prohibition are united. The same methods are also used by the so-called Non-Partisan League to draw together all elements of discontent.

But in the midst of them is the seed-planting of international socialism with its harvest of revolution and pro-Germanism.

After all, does any real American man or woman at the present time desire to promote such an aggregation?

Oswald West is going to stay in the ring and run for senator. He hasn't asked for our opinion, but it is our notion that Os has reached that stage of political overripeness where the majority of the Oregon voters will think he is one of the occupants of the political cemetery who have been dreaming they heard the resurrection trumpet. And old Gabriel hasn't had the mouth piece of his trumpet to his lips yet.

This is a very painful and dangerous disease. In almost every neighborhood someone has died from it before medicine could be obtained or a physician summoned. The right way is to have a bottle of Chamberlain's Colic and Diarrhoea Remedy in the house so as to be prepared for it. Mrs. Charles Eneyart, Huntington, Ind., writes: "During the summer of 1911 two of my children were taken sick with cholera morbus. I used Chamberlain's Colic and Diarrhoea Remedy and it gave them immediate relief."—Adv.

A Splendid Record Achieved. H. W. Snashall, president of the Farmers Mutual Fire Relief Association, reports the association has broken all former records in 1917. The annual statement shows 383 new members gained, 17 fire losses paid, aggregating $4911, $1,036,877 of insurance written, one assessment levied, and $700 invested in liberty bonds during the year. The association is entering its 14th year, and has over 4000 members carrying $4,250,000 insurance. It has made an annual saving of over 50 per cent to its members. At the annual meeting in January Andrew Brugger of Gresham was re-elected director for the ninth year. Farmers desiring to join may obtain information from H. W. Snashall, Gresham, R. A., or Herman Loading, secretary, 409 Stock Exchange Bldg., Portland.—Adv.

Every shipyard in the United States has been asked to launch a ship on July 4. Gresham not having a shipyard on Johnson creek will have to celebrate again in the old-fashioned way.

Business houses all over the country are timid about cashing checks, but it must make Uncle Sam proud to see how readily many of them have honored his drafts.

From the press reports of the vagaries of the seismograph needles we are of the opinion that a gang of earthquakes is operating in southern California.

Son-in-law McAdoo has raised the wages of 2,000,000, all of whom vote. If he can keep that thing up for two years his nomination will be unanimous.

One blessing of the war is the abolition of the pesky bakery "sinkers." People can now see that war has its blessings no less renowned than peace.

Uncle Sam evidently holds to the idea that the people who can do without wheat can do without baseball, and as usual, your Uncle is right.

In a Kansas town the officers raided a place for booze and found only 15 sacks of flour. Gee! How disappointed they must have been.

Now comes the thrift stamp campaign. Its a painful process but the more it hurts the more civilized the world will become.

The prospective shortage of underwear will also help to do much toward the make-it-do-another-season movement.

If someone can find a way to vulcanize the surplus potatoes, it seems as if they might be used to fill the Shrapnel cases.

Fit a hoe on the end of every pool cue and prepare to play a game with the potato crop. The call is almost due.

The strawberries on top are unusually fine this spring—at 15 cents a box.

Thursday and Saturday nights are Blue Bird nights—get the habit.

DOES THIS REFER TO A WELL KNOWN GRANGER?

Continued and continuous developments confirm the opinions entertained by many people a year ago, that the so-called Non-Partisan League of North Dakota and some neighboring states was about as un-American as the average of organizations with high-sounding names that have sprung into existence under the inspiration of German propaganda. And there is little occasion for surprise. When you find a chap rushing into politics as a "non-partisan" reformer it is a pretty safe rule to get his finger prints, his Bertillon measurements and his photograph. Also to put your valuables in the safe-deposit vault and keep the girls in after dark.—Goldfield, Nev., Daily Tribune.

Library Notes.

Among the collection of books on the war which are proving most interesting are, "A Yankee in the Trenches" by Holmes; "Aunt Sarah and the War" by Meynell; "Inside the German Empire" by Swope; "The United States and Panzerland" by Cheradame; "The New Map of Europe" by Gibbons, and "The Little Grandmother of the Russian Revolution" which is a delightful book of reminiscences and letters of Catherine Breshkovsky known to millions of her countrymen by the affectionate name of Baboushka.

Beginning on Wednesday, June 5, the library will open at 1 o'clock daily instead of at 12 which has been the opening hour during the school year.
