Chestnuts to Aid War.

British children all over the country wherever the chestnut tree grows are gathering horse chestnuts as told in the Christian Science Monitor. It is their particular contribution to the winning of the war, for ripe horse chestnuts have been discovered to provide a good substitute for the grain which is used in making of munitions. It will be quite valuable service, for the computation is that every ton of chestnuts will save a half a ton of grain. The gathering is organized by committees in connection with the schools, and woods and lanes see bands of young patriots enjoying their "war work" hugely.

It Is Just What Uncle Sam Wants

At the request of the U. S. Food Administration our Company has loaned one of our Modern Electric Ranges to be used for the Food Conservation Demonstrations now being conducted in the Liberty Temple.

Do you want any stronger approval of any cooking device than this?

Uncle Sam asked us for an Electric Range because it fills the bill better than any other Cooking Device made.

We urge all housewives interested in the patriotic service of their country as well as all who want their kitchens equipped with the most modern, convenient and reliable cooking apparatus to visit the Liberty Temple and see for themselves just what an Electric Range will do to reduce their household burdens.

Naming Alaska.

The name Alaska is an English corruption or perversion of Alayeksa, as it was called by the aboriginal inhabitants of the Aleutian islands, lying to the westward, observes a geographical magazine. When the Russians first came to one of the Aleutian islands, they were told that a vast country lay to the eastward, and that its name was Alayeksa. The Aleuts called their own island Nagun Alayeksa, meaning the land lying near Alayeksa. By a process of Russianizing and Anglicizing Alayeksa became Alaska, and Nagun-Alayeksa became Unalaska. The original Aleutian word Alayeksa meant "the great country", as the inhabitants of scattered islands would naturally consider a vast continental region of varied resources and beautiful scenery as Alayeksa or Alaska has since proved to be.

Doing Good.

Few medicines have met with more favor or accomplished more good than Chamberlain's Colic and Diarrhoea Remedy. John F. Jantzen, Delmeny, Sask., says of it, "I have used Chamberlain's Colic and Diarrhoea Remedy myself and in my family, and can recommend it as being an exceptionally fine preparation."—Adv.

A Splendid Record Achieved.

H. W. Snashall, president of the Farmers Mutual Fire Relief Association, reports the association has broken all former records in 1917. The annual statement shows 383 new members gained, 17 fire losses paid, aggregating $4911; $1,036,677 of insurance written, one assessment levied, and $700 invested in liberty bonds during the year. The association is entering its 14th year, and has over 4000 members carrying $4,250,000 insurance. It has made an annual saving of over 50 per cent to its members. At the annual meeting in January Andrew Brugger of Gresham was re-elected director for the ninth year. Farmers desiring to join may obtain information from H. W. Snashall, Gresham, R. A. or Herman Loeding, secretary, 409 Stock Exchange Bldg., Portland.—Adv.

In the account of the purchase of a home in Gresham by H. H. Eling, last Tuesday it was inadvertently stated that he had bought the Roy Gibbs bungalow. It was Frank Gibbs' house that he bought. Again, the name of Mrs. Roy Gibbs was given as forelady at the cannery when it should have been Mrs. Frank Gibbs. Of course the writer knew better but got the names mixed.

Oregon, Washington and California build 292 ships in the first four months of 1918 aggregating 1,332,396 tons dead weight. This shows coast and necessity for measures encouraging to American owned lines as means of perpetuating shipbuilding industry.

Harking back to the days when well-wishing but rather over-enthusiastic friends pelted our ears full of rice, we are rather glad of the conservation of food and the reduction in the high cost of marriage.

When James Took a Hand.

While I was running a bolt cutter at the Rock Island shops in Chicago, writes a contributor to Railway and Locomotive Engineering, I boarded at a house which was frequented by locomotive engineers and firemen. These men talked a great deal about their tremendous feats in getting over certain hills without the help of a second locomotive.

My opposite neighbor at a table, a young fellow who ran a lathe in the shop, grew tired of this monotonous bragging; he thought he was entitled to do a little talking himself. One evening he called out to me:

"Well, I went over and saw that new machine today and it's astonishing the fine work it does."

"How does it work?" I inquired.

"Well," said James, "by means of a pedal attachment, a fulcrumed lever converts a vertical reciprocating motion into a circular movement. The principal part of the machine is a huge disk that revolves in a vertical plane. Power is applied through the axis of the disk and when the speed of the driving arbor is moderate, the periphery of the apparatus is traveling at a high velocity. Work is done on this periphery. Pieces of the hardest steel are by mere impact reduced to any shape the skillful operator desires."

"What in the name of sense is that machine, anyway?" demanded Tom Briggs.

"Oh, it's a new grindstone," replied James and a silence that could be cut with a knife fell upon the crowd.

Why Waste a Lifetime?

In an article in the American Magazine one man says to another who was very sensitive and worried a great deal:

"Exactly," he grunted. "A few years ago they were live men like you and me. They grew up and did their business and loved and married and died. Some of them passed happily along their way, believing the best of their fellows, doing their jobs whole heartedly and well, spreading a bit of sunshine among the folks they came in contact with, extracting every drop of sweetness from every single day. And others went through wrapped up inside their own little selves, envying their neighbors, fancying themselves abused, worrying over trifles, always on the lookout for slights, spoiling a full 50 per cent of their days through their own pettishness, and a few days pass, and they are all laid out here together, the men who laughed their way through life and made others laugh a little more, and the men who gnawed their hearts out. All lying side by side never to live again.

"Think of the things that those dead men worried about. What do they amount to now? Think of the good luck that they envied in other fellows. Who in the world remembers it? They had one little lifetime to live and they spoiled it by over-sensitiveness and jealousy. Doesn't it strike you as an awfully foolish way to waste a life time, when it's the only life time that you will ever have!"

Victim of His Own Joke.

On official of the house of representatives met a distinguished United States senator in the halls of the capitol. They were old friends and both were born in Kentucky. It was at a time when there was not much stirring about the building and the two sat down to talk. The conversation turned on what the doctors of America were doing and discussion of specialists. The official suggested that he had a relative who was a distinguished alienist.

"There would seem to be a good field for work along his line right here in the capitol," remarked the senator. "I know some members of the house and senate whom he might examine."

"Well, I expect him in Washington very shortly," returned the official, in all innocence, "and I want him to meet you."

It was not until several seconds later when the senator laughed that the official realized that an explanation was in order.

Socialism under many different guises is trying to saddle itself on American institutions and taking advantage of war necessity measures to make itself permanent. The people of Minnesota gave it a hard setback in defeat of so-called Non-Partisan league doctrine at the recent election.

They're sending missionaries to the heathen lands while some women at home are still wearing furs in the summer time.

Chamberlain's Colic and Diarrhoea Remedy.

Now is the time to buy a bottle of this remedy so as to be prepared in case that any one of your family should have an attack of colic or diarrhoea during the summer months. It is worth a hundred times its cost when needed.—Adv.

First Election in 1789.

The first election for president of the United States occurred in the states which ratified the Constitution on the first Wednesday of January, the 7th, 1789. Only 16 of the 13 states voted in that election, New York, Rhode Island and North Carolina not voting. In five of the states, viz.: Connecticut, Delaware, Georgia, New Jersey and South Carolina, the people did not vote, the presidential electors being chosen by the state legislatures.

At that time the Constitution required the presidential electors to vote for two persons, the one receiving the majority to be president and the one receiving the next greatest number to be vice president. There had been no conventions held, no nominations made and no platforms adopted. The presidential electors were left without instructions, to vote as they pleased or according to their own discretion.

The ten states which constituted the first electoral college had 70 votes, viz.: Connecticut 7, Delaware 3, Georgia 5, Maryland 8, Massachusetts 10, New Hampshire 5, New Jersey 6, Pennsylvania 10, South Carolina 7, Virginia 12. On the first ballot, each of the 73 electors voting for two persons, the vote resulted:

For George Washington of Virginia 69, John Adams of Massachusetts 34, John Jay of New York 9, Robert H. Harrison of Maryland 6, John Rutledge of South Carolina 6, John Hancock of Massachusetts 1, George Clinton of New York 3, Samuel Huntington of Connecticut 2, John Milton of Georgia 2, James Armstrong of Georgia 1, Benjamin Lincoln of Massachusetts 1, Edward Telfair of Georgia 1. This ballot made Washington president and John Adams, the next highest, vice president.

A friend suggests that if the Kaiser and his six sons are wise they will buy a few liberty bonds and lay them aside against an unregny day.
