"The Linotype Way is the Way that Wins."

Official paper of the Town of Gresham
Official paper of the Town of Fairview.

Entered as second-class matter March 3, 1911, at the Postoffice at Gresham, Oregon, under the Act of March 3, 1879.

"RECONSTRUCTION."

The city of Portland, in common with every other important city in the United States, is getting ready to heal with gentle hands the wounds of her soldiers who return wounded from the fighting front. The matter is in the hands of the Y. M. C. A., and all Portland hospitals will be turned into reconstruction centers, there will be hundreds of cots lined up in the armory and private homes will be converted into sanitoriums, if necessary.

Reed college is training many young women to be reconstruction aids, and if present facilities are inadequate the hospitals are to be enlarged and additions built. This is to be a great humanitarian work, and the American soldier who goes into battle in this war need not be haunted with the fear that he may come out a hopeless cripple doomed to drag out the remainder of his days with his usefulness in the economic or industrial world curtailed or ruined altogether. He has something more to look forward to than a government pension and his prospects are not so black as were those of his ancestors who fought in our former wars.

While this is a most destructive war, yet there never was a war in which the interests of the individual soldier, physical, mental and spiritual, and even financial, was so thoroughly safeguarded. In line with this policy of the government is the development of institutions for rehabilitating wounded men and refitting them for some service to which they will be adapted. Not only will everything be done that modern science is capable of to restore them to normal physical condition, but they will be taught trades at which they can earn their living, and become independent of the pension.

No more important and far-sighted work in connection with the war has been undertaken, and it will result in untold benefit both to the wounded soldiers and to the nation. Every war of consequence leaves vast numbers of men more or less useless because of their wounds. With their earning power decreased or destroyed altogether, as the case may be, they are dependent upon others and the country's industrial fabric is weaker just to that extent.

No doubt the prospect of enforced idleness is more unwelcome to the average man than is death outright on the battlefield, and every soldier will be keenly interested in the plans for making him over in case he is unfitted during the war for his usual line of work when he returns home. Compensation will be allowed him and allowances will be paid his family while he is being trained in the rehabilitating hospitals, just as if he were in actual service.

The people generally will take a keen interest in the development of these hospitals and training schools because of their sympathy for the men who have suffered wounds for their protection, and also for the wholesome influence upon the life of the country in relation to labor and economic conditions for the next twenty years.

THE PRIMARY LAW.

While much has been said and written about the primary nomination law it has never before received such a jolt as was handed out to it by the United States senate a few days ago. The primary law was adopted in Oregon ahead of any other state, and it has had a fair trial here. It has its friends and opposers, and it is not uncommon to hear a voter remark that he would vote to repeal it if he had the opportunity. While it is strongly upheld by the grange and labor unions, as well as by many others, it is far from being perfect and has brought about many queer complications in politics.

The senate's remedy is a little "force bill" which would extend a measure of federal power over any primary or general or special election in which men are candidates for senator or representative. In other words, it would give the selection of such members of congress over to the national government, thus taking away the rights of the states in naming their congressmen in both houses. It is to be presumed that the party in power would name the men to be elected. It would give each state an enforced primary law for the two offices and usurp the states' rights to that extent. It would, if put in force, give the administration the prerogative of naming the men who were to make the national laws.

The queer thing about it was that the measure was passed through the senate by northern democrats. The law would bring about federal control of elections as an inevitable consequence and is an indorsement of the president's recent action in asking Henry Ford to become a senator from Michigan, and J. Ham. Lewis to make the race again in Illinois.

Federalism has been persistently invoked in behalf of prohibition and woman's suffrage, and there need be no misgiving of the character of such control when it ultimately comes, for it will be federal control of the most radical kind. It seems to be a scheme for the winning of the presidency again by the democrats at the next election.

We don't want to initiate any trouble, but we fear some people will lose sleep when we suggest that new Gresham will be the best name for Berlin when the Oregon army of occupation gets its mail there. And another thing: How can a bone-dry army like ours stand for the river Spree when Johnson creek is willing to share its name and glory with New Gresham's waterway?

The inquisitive subscriber wants to know our authority for using the word "cracked-goozle." Our authority is the Declaration of Independence, the Bill of Rights, the federal and state constitutions, the idiom of the newspaper sanctum and our own superb audacity. We refuse to be bound down by convention in everything.

Germany is out again with more peace terms. Civilization doesn't want to hear anything about them. The best part of the world is now fighting for something it intends to establish for all time and it asks permission of none.

Show your civic pride by swatting the thistles. Keep 'em down. If your own property is free from them, stretch a point and help your neighbor, for the wind will blow the seed on your land if they are left to get ripe.

Since that glorious shower we are in position to report that the war garden potato crop is in a promising condition; but we want the next shower postponed until after the farmers have their big frolic tomorrow.

Are the high schools preparing to go the limit on French? Suppose Johnny comes marching home with a little black-eyed talking machine and none of us should be able to parley-vo a word with her!

It is said that "honey dew" sells at the rate of $50 a gallon in some places not far away. We suppose a man could take two or three barrels of the real stuff and get a deed to a whole county.

A Houston, Texas, woman once knocked the kaiser down, for which we give her full praise; but we could enthuse more if she had kicked the lining out of him while she had him down.

"Every egg in a 'setting' is guaranteed to hatch," says an ad in a poultry journal. We look for the dictionary makers to get the right spelling on that word pretty soon.

Since the late czar of Russia was stood up and shot dead, it seems as if the family name of Romanoff should be pronounced with the accent on the last syllable.

It is reported that the government may take over the tobacco industry of the United States. If it does the tobacco users may once more be able to get the real thing.

News that the Americans have landed in Italy will be followed shortly by the news that they have landed in Austria. Vienna papers please copy.

It is said that one can get a "fair meal" in Vienna for $3.50. What is a "fair meal"? Is it any relation to the old "square" of blessed memory?

STRONG "outside connections" are fundamentally important to any bank that seeks to serve its community well. City terminals and markets must be kept in constant touch so that business men and farmers, shippers and manufacturers can cooperate to the best interests of themselves and their Government.

No financial institution in this community has more advantageous outside connections than we have in the numerous correspondents with which we transact our commercial business in the various large cities of this state and country.

Experts Say
"ZEROLENE IS BETTER"
—because it holds better compression, gives better protection to the moving parts and deposits less carbon.

Zerolene is the correct oil for all types of automobile engines—the correct oil for your automobile.

Get our Lubrication Chart showing the correct consistency for your car.

STANDARD OIL COMPANY
(California)

The "T" Head type engine, illustrated here, like all internal combustion engines, requires an oil that holds its lubricating qualities at cylinder heat, burns clean in the cylinders and goes out with exhaust. Zerolene fills these requirements perfectly, because it is correctly refined from selected California asphalt-base crude.

Are You One of Them?
There are a great many people who would be very much benefited by taking Chamberlain's Tablets for a weak or disordered stomach. Are you one of them? Mrs. M. R. Searl, Baldwinville, N. Y., relates her experience in the use of these tablets: "I had a bad spell with my stomach about six months ago, and was troubled for two or three weeks with gas and severe pains in the pit of my stomach. Our druggist advised me to take Chamberlain's Tablets. I took a bottle home and the first dose relieved me wonderfully, and I kept on taking them until I was cured." These tablets do not relieve pain, but after the pain has been relieved may prevent its recurrence.—Adv.

H. W. Snashall, president of the Farmers Mutual Fire Relief Association, reports the association has broken all former records in 1917. The annual statement shows 383 new members gained, 17 fire losses paid, aggregating $4911; $1,036,677 of insurance written, one assessment levied, and $700 invested in liberty bonds during the year. The association is entering its 14th year, and has over 4000 members carrying $4,250,000 insurance. It has made an annual saving of over 50 per cent to its members. At the annual meeting in January Andrew Brugger of Gresham was re-elected director for the ninth year. Farmers desiring to join may obtain information from H. W. Snashall, Gresham, R. A., or Herman Loeding, secretary, 409 Stock Exchange Bldg., Portland.—Adv.
