GOING INTO GERMANY.

There is a strong undercurrent of belief that Germany is virtually whipped and the war is won. The tone of the soldiers' letters which we see, some of which are published, indicate that the victory is ours already, and that only the cleaning-up process remains. Carl Congdon's letter in this issue of the Outlook reveals the sentiment of the boys in France—and they should be in a position to know more about the war over there than we do here.

If Germany is already whipped the trouble is that she does not realize it. Every allied compatriot knew that Germany was whipped from the time America entered the war. Only the stubborn refused to admit it. Now that the American war machine has begun to show what it can do there is no question of the final outcome.

General March has told the senate committee on military affairs, of which Senator Chamberlin is the chairman, that this country has decided to center all its energies on the western front. The present plan is to have 3,000,000 men in France by next June and many more in training at home. The chief of staff confidently asserts that 4,000,000 men under one Commander can go through Germany at will. That is probably true, and that being the case the war is won.

By that we mean the physical war. But our danger will be in losing the war after winning it, if we do not foresee and guard against diplomatic and premature peace. Pacifism must be combated in the allied countries as vigorously as Pan-Germanism, of which it is the most potent auxiliary.

We will not celebrate in this country until Germany understands the war is over, and until German pacifism is disarmed. We cannot let down or let up until the right sort of peace agreement is signed. Probably another year, at least, will be required to convince the Kaiser and his advisers that the world was made for all the world instead of for Germany only. Very likely there will have to be continuous fighting to demonstrate that it cannot be labled with a "made for Germany" stamp. With it will come greater sacrifice than we have made before, greater loss of life and greater sorrow, but we are beginning to realize that by going forward quickly and with all our resources, we can hasten the day when peace really comes.

Centering all the country's interests in France gives the impression that we are not going to do anything important in Russia. We have a few men in Russia and probably could have had more by this time. It is probable that America means to try diplomacy there instead of force of arms. Yet about the only diplomatic way to reason with a German now is by shooting him. We must do our part in the east as well as in the west.

FUTURE OF BASEBALL.

So much has been said about professional sports during the wartime that it is not surprising the boys in France do not think very highly of them as a profession or of those who engage in them. In their paper, the Stars and Stripes, much disgust is expressed at the evident shirking of their duty by professional ballplayers, as is proved by the rush to the "steel league." Of course many of the men who have found places in the steel industries, playing baseball "on the side," ought to be in the army. At any rate such is the opinion of the men now in France.

It is, we imagine, clear enough to all by this time that baseball as a business is not an essential industry. The men who argued that it was did not seem to understand that baseball would continue to be played, even though all the professional leagues and clubs passed out of existence. It is played in the army and in every training camp. Baseball and other sports will continue in schools and colleges. Perhaps we shall hereafter think more of the playing side and less of the business side of all sports.

This may be one of the minor reforms that will follow the war. There can be no doubt that there has been too much commercialism in our games. We think of baseball as the great American game, and so it is. But we have not perhaps realized that the American people liked it as a game, and not as a business. They have become somewhat weary of baseball politics. But the game as a game will endure.

The soldiers have the right view and they know how to express it with great force and clearness. It is getting so that many civilians on this side feel the same way.

The inquisitive subscriber writes to know the meaning of "The upward trend of events. It's like this: Hog prices at the stockyard trend upward and then they trend downward; but the prices of chops at the retail markets trend only one way.

Landlords who bar tenants with children ought to be pasted on the bean. But at the same time we contend that apartments and flats are not suitable for children.

Does any one remember twenty years ago when the Gresham farmer hauled his potatoes to Portland and back home because he couldn't get 25 cents a sack for them?

General Foch is not eligible for president because he is not a natural born American. But, Gee, how he could win the next presidency for the republicans!

Future historians will say that Germany discovered America in 1918. And we would like to read the chapter on "The Great American Wallop."

Henry Ford's candidacy for United States senator from Michigan didn't even have the merit of being a self-started—something like his automobiles.

Et tu Gore. The only senator who opposed the 18-45 draft bill. He will have another guess coming when Oklahoma elects its next senator.

The federal reserve bank is issuing some new paper money. But as it is only in $1 and $2 bills it is probably intended for small change.

During these hot days one very seldom sees a man walking along the street leading himself by the lapel of his coat.

What's the use of Hindenburg having a line, anyway?

NEW REGULATIONS CONCERNING FLOUR

In announcing the new food regulations, which supercede the familiar "fifty-fifty" rule Federal Food Administrator W. B. Ayer calls the attention of Oregon households to the fact that all the cereals classed as substitutes under the new regulations are suitable for mixing into breads, pastry, cakes, etc., and that the Food Administration in releasing the consumer from the "fifty-fifty" rule, expects every housewife to see to it that the full 20 per cent of substitutes purchased with wheat flour is mixed in the family baking, and that no bread, pastry, cake, dumpling or other edible in which wheat flour is used be mixed without the proper one-fifth portion of substitute.

"Formerly the substitute list included several cereals, such as rolled oats and rice, that could be used in other ways," said Mr. Ayer, "but under the new regulations all the substitutes are suitable and intended to be mixed into the family bread, pie crust, etc. A rigid adherence to this rule should be observed in every household. Many will be glad to aid the Food Administration in a still further saving of wheat by the liberal use of corn bread and other wheatless or near-wheatless breads. It is very necessary that a national food reserve be built up, and very practical help towards this important reserve can be given by families who will not only use all their substitutes in their breads and pastries, but will do even better, by keeping their use of wheat to the minimum in every way and seeing to it that not an ounce of food of any kind is wasted."

While dealers under the new regulations, are required to keep stocks of only barley flour, corn flour and corn meal on hand to sell in the 20-80 combination with wheat, they are permitted, in case they have potato flour, rice flour, or oat flour in stock, to sell these flour to their customers as substitutes, if the customers prefer to have the latter.

MEETING POSTPONED ACCOUNT OF FAIR

A meeting of the County Council of the Parent-Teachers' association, which was advertised to be held on the third Saturday in this month, at Troutdale, has been postponed to the third Saturday in October on account of the county fair. At that time Dr. Joseph K. Hart of Reed College will be the principal speaker.

SEED TESTING ADVISED BY STATION SPECIALIST

Rather than take the chance of planting poor or impure seed, many Oregon farmers are planning to have their seed tested this year. The practice has already been followed with success in many districts, but is unusually necessary this year due to high prices and scarcity of seed.

This scarcity indicates the need of planting none but the best—pure seed of high vitality. To assure this the seed must be tested for purity and germination. Farmers not in a position to make this test themselves are invited to send samples to the seed testing Laboratory of the Agricultural College and U. S. Department of Agriculture, at Corvallis, Or. Every citizen of Oregon, Washington, Idaho, Montana and Wyoming, is entitled to send his seed for free test by an expert. The report will show the percentage of purity, noxious weeds, inert matter—sticks, dirt, chaff, etc.—and the kind and number per pound of each weed seed.

Samples should be taken in such manner as to be representative. In sampling a sack of grain part should be taken from the top, part from the middle and part from the bottom of the sack. These samples should be thoroughly mixed and a small test sample taken. This is to be labeled and mailed to the College seed testing laboratory.

MATURE APPLES HURT BY MOTH

To prevent the costly "September sting" which in past years has occasioned from 17 to 30 per cent loss of fruit in the Willamette Valley it will be necessary to spray the apples now. The ideal time for the application of this poison spray in the Willamette Valley is from August 30 to September 5. "Pay particular attention to the fruit," says A. L. Lovett, entomologist at O. A. C., "and take time to be thorough. Use an angle nozzle and throw the spray both from below and above. The endeavor should be to coat each individual fruit with a thin even covering of poison."

We are anxiously waiting for the poem headed "It's Not So Far To Berlin As It Used To Be."

GAS THE WEEVIL IN ALL BEANS AND PEAS

Dried beans and peas to be stored for seed or winter use are almost invariably found affected by weevils. The treatment of the dried product with a Bisulfide of carbon at the time of storage is the ideal method of control. Place the material to be treated in a gas-proof container and for each one-half bushel of seed to be treated use one ounce (2 tablespoonfuls) of Carbon bisulfide. Close the container securely and allow the gas to act for a period of twenty-four hours. The container should then be opened and the seed thoroughly aired. A circular describing this treatment in detail may be secured by writing to the Oregon Agricultural College.
