TROUTDALE

A pleasant and profitable quarterly conference meeting was held last Friday in the Troutdale Methodist church. Superintendent T. B. Ford was ill and could not attend, and Rev. J. Montcalm Brown of Gresham was an efficient presiding officer. Owing to the busy season, not many were present, but those who came felt well repaid and enjoyed the conservation lunch served at noon.

The Troutdale Ladies' Aid will meet next week Wednesday at 10 o'clock at the church for quilting. Bring a sandwich lunch.

The house occupied by C. H. McGirr and family, owned by Mrs. Gustav Scharf, and the one west of it, owned by Robert White, were sold last week to Mr. Rinehart of Multnomah station, who plans to put in a small poultry plant.

School started Monday morning in a business like manner. Preparations are being made for the juvenile fair to be held next Saturday afternoon and evening.

The Parent-Teacher circle will hold the first meeting of the fall next Friday afternoon, September 13. All members and friends are urged to attend.

A pleasant picnic on the banks of the Sandy river was held Saturday evening by the Parsons families and relatives. Weenies were roasted over a big bonfire, and other good things made a bounteous feast. Those present were Mr. and Mrs. H. S. Parsons, Clarence and Belle, Mr. and Mrs. N. S. Parsons and children, Mr. and Mrs. Z. G. Schanck and children of Oregon City, Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Robinson and children of Vancouver, Washington, and Miss Faye Leopold. Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Knarr are spending a few days at their home in Troutdale.

POWELL VALLEY

The Ladies' Aid of the Lutheran church will meet at Mrs. Wm. Anderson's on Thursday, September 19, instead of on September 12. Please note the change in date. All are cordially invited.

WALNUT INDUSTRY ADDS NEW RESOURCE TO STATE

The walnut and filbert industry has added a new resource to Oregon. Growers and college specialists have just completed an inspection of many leading groves of the Willamette Valley, in which the progress and methods of culture and marketing were examined that each grower might profit by the experience of the others.

Many large plantings were visited, in which the crop this year is of fair yield and excellent quality. The oldest commercial walnut grove in Oregon is owned by A. L. Page, Jefferson. The largest single planting is the Skyline grove of 212 acres, near Salem, managed by Knight Pearcy, a young O. A. C. graduate. The Eola company, Dundee, has planted 1550 acres, which have been subdivided into five to fifty acre tracts and sold. The oldest tree in Oregon is 65 years old, and has reached a height of 60 feet and a spread of 80 feet. It was planted near Salem by General Palmer, and has borne a good crop of nuts every year for more than 59 years.

The problem of best varieties for nuts and for cross-pollination is being worked out by the growers in cooperation with the State Agricultural College. A system of pruning to leave a strong central leader was explained by Professor Lewis, chief of the horticultural division.

The first walnut dryer in Oregon has been erected by Ferd Grone of Scholls, with a capacity of 600 pounds a day. An ingenious washer and polisher with a capacity of 1000 pounds an hour has been invented by Chas. Trunk & Sons, Dundee. And the Dundee Fruit and Walnut company has devised a grader that puts the nuts into two commercial grades with under and over sizes for special trade.

Montana is the latest state to report wonderful discoveries of manganese ore. There is great excitement in that state over an alleged marvelous discovery at a mine where already about 1,000,000 tons of this precious ore are in sight. In view of the many exaggerated reports concerning manganese ore that have been circulated in the United States since the war began, the report may mean little more than some of the others.

One of the oddest crafts ever seen near Provincetown, Mass., was the Eskimo kayak, in which explorer Donald B. MacMillan was paddling about recently. The kayak is a man's canoe and is built on a frame on which is stretched skin, water tight. It is handled with a double-paddle, is decked over, and, with an expert in it, is one of the safest small craft known.

Miss Jessie McGrath, of Chicago, carried $1,962 in bills sewed in the lining of her clothing, it was developed when she was sent to the hospital.

FAIRVIEW

Fairview school opened on Monday morning with Miss Meklin of Cleveland, Ohio, as principal and Miss Benedict of Portland as primary teacher.

Mrs. J. H. Peterson and daughter Rachael have gone to Washougal, Washington, where they will go with Mrs. R. L. Robertson prune picking.

Mr. and Mrs. D. Dunbar spent the week-end with their son, Orin Dunbar, at Oregon City.

Miss Nan Anderson, of Gresham, spent the week-end here with her parents.

John Surface and wife of Odell, Oregon, have rented the Jones house.

Mrs. M. Douthit, of Portland, is spending a few days with her daughter, Mrs. J. W. Moller.

Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Copeland and children have returned home from a 10-day vacation at Seaside, Oregon.

Mrs. Geo. Zimmerman and daughters, Olive and Isabelle have returned from Eugene and will spend a few weeks at the home of Mrs. Tom Miller.

Sunday guests at the home of Mrs. H. S. Stone on Sunday were, Mr. and Mrs. Wrex Plummer and Glen Menefee of Portland and Miss Frances Bliss.

J. W. Townsend has returned home after spending the past month on his farm in eastern Oregon.

COTTRELL

An all-day meeting will be held at the Cottrell community church on Sunday, September 15, beginning with Sunday school at 10 o'clock, followed by preaching at 11 by Evangelist Carlson. A basket dinner will be enjoyed during the noon hour. Rev. Alexander Beers of Portland will preach at 2:30 o'clock and Rev. S. G. Roper of Gresham in the evening at 8 o'clock. Special singing is being arranged for all these services. A cordial invitation is extended to all to attend any or all of these services.

Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Knarr are spending a few days at their home in Troutdale.

PERSHING ACTS TO IMPROVE MAIL

One of Uncle Sam's biggest jobs is to see that from now on John Smith and Tony Denunzio and Mike Vanek and Mose Cohen and Pat Ryan promptly receive letters written to them by their mothers and sweethearts. The same applies to all the rest of the 1,300,000 men Pershing now has in France.

So far this matter has been the biggest failure of the war. And this is of vital importance to Uncle Sam because:

The morale of the men over there is largely dependent upon their hearing from their dear ones regularly so they will not worry about how things are at home. Worried soldiers don't put up as good a fight as men whose minds are at ease.

And the morale over here is largely dependent upon the families of the boys feeling assured that the letters penned with such love reach the boys in the trenches.

There is probably no subject to which Secretary Baker and General Pershing have given more anxious thought and they are now hopeful that things will rapidly be bettered. For a time the postoffice department alone handled the mail for the army. Then an arrangement was concluded whereby the mail was pouched on this side, delivered to army transports at the embarkation points and then handled by the army in France. This made the army responsible for the distribution of mail to the soldiers. But even this did not prove satisfactory.

Baker then cabled Pershing to take up the matter personally.

Pershing cabled that his men on July 1 had assumed full control of the mails. He said he was sending to America Captain Frazier, an officer with extended postal experience, who understood the conditions in France. This officer will supervise the shipment of mail from American ports.

In France Pershing has now arranged suitable postal organizations at each port of embarkation. Railroad mail service is being established.

Next Pershing has arranged for reclassification of mail for casuals and detached soldiers by having a central postoffice for redirecting and forwarding misdirected or insufficiently addressed mail. This is done through contact with the central records office, where full information is obtainable as to the movement of troops and addresses of individuals.

To help in this one special officer keeps constantly in touch with contemplated movements of troops. Finally, each corps and division is organizing its own postal detachment, and mail is sent to the divisions through the regulating stations and goes forward just like ammunition and rations.

The next useful thing that will come to us as a result of the war is a proper sense of values. It will make us realize not only the value of a dollar but of life and health, writes a soldier in France to his mother in Portland.
