

FAIR PLAY

Turn about is fair play. You work for your dollars, why not have your dollars work for you?

Dollars are good workers. They are faithful, tireless and efficient. All they need is a good chance. Put your dollars by until you have a working capital. In time they will earn as much as you do.

PLEASANT HOME

Clarence Underwood and Clifton Hillyard are suffering with influenza. Miss Olive Shaws on the sick list with a cold.

Mr. and Mrs. L. Wilhelm and daughter Roberta were Sunday visitors at the home of Mr. and Mrs. John Ickler.

Mr. and Mrs. H. F. Wihlon called on Mr. and Mrs. John Elliott of Damascus Sunday.

A Haig Story.

Sir Douglas Haig is fond of relating the story of a Scotchman who bored his English friends boasting what a fine country Scotland was.

"Why did you leave it if you liked it so well?" he was asked.

"Weel, it was like this," said Sandy. "In Scotland everybody was as clever as myself!"

FAIRVIEW

W. E. Stone and wife were Sunday guests at the home of the former's parents Mr. and Mrs. A. L. Stone.

Earl Townsend left last evening for Fort Stevens where he will enter training.

Mrs. Engles, of Portland, is staying with her daughter, Mrs. Sam Dixon since undergoing an operation some time ago. She is much improved.

J. W. Townsend has rented fifty acres of his farm to a party of Japanese.

POWELL VALLEY

No services have been held in the Swedish Mission church during the past week and the pastor, Rev. Wm. Hawkinson, announces that there will be none here or in the Damascus church until further notice.

Diminishing Power of Gold.

Another phase of the depreciation of the American dollar, evidenced by the diminishing quantity of the necessities of life it will purchase, is appearing in the mining industry.

The miners are complaining that it is no longer profitable to mine the gold. In other words, the necessities of life have risen so in price, thus requiring so great an advance in miners' wages that it costs more to produce gold than its coinage value.

Inflation is at the danger point, indeed, when conditions reach the point that the production of gold is discouraged for the reason that it costs more to produce an ounce of gold than an ounce of minted gold will pay.

At this particular time, gold is a vital factor in our financial system. There have been floated billions of paper obligations based upon gold, and it is highly important that the production of gold should be as great as possible, consistent with imperative military demands upon our man power.

All the belligerent nations have their monetary and credit systems based upon gold, and all of them have as a result of the necessities of war issued vast quantities of paper notes—all redeemable in gold. When price levels reach the point that a given quantity of our basic money is worth less than its cost of production, then production of the metal must stop or the government will have to pay a bonus to keep production going.

Fortunately for us, up to this time, the federal reserve system has strengthened our monetary fabric by the concentration of the gold of the country in reserve. In this way, protection is afforded against gold withdrawals, which would have been certain had the government not thus gained control of the gold stock.

It is our consolidated reserves that have made our financial security up to this time and enabled the expansion of paper issues without subjecting the whole fabric to strain. But it would be better not only for the United States, but for all the allies, if the war interfered as little as possible with the production of gold, as there will be needed a much broader metallic foundation for outstanding paper issues than ever before.

With gold production discouraged by diminished purchasing power and other influences, it would be well for humanity at large if price increases should not continue further. The higher prices go the more severe the reaction is bound to be when the war ends, and the end may come sooner than we think and before the business world is in any way prepared for it.

It is highly necessary to the prosperity of the country and the well being of all the people that financial shock be avoided when the time comes to furl the battle flags and silence the guns. It would be far better for the whole country, if such a thing were possible, that there now should be a gentle and gradual fall in prices than that there should be any further advance. It would be idle to press this theory upon those who regard money as an end rather than as a means—as wealth rather than as a token of wealth.

But we can not forget that it is seldom a great war ensues without violent disturbance of price levels, and quite as seldom that its end does not bring violent reaction and far-reaching bankruptcy.

It is to be hoped that the greatest of all wars may prove an exception to the rule, but it will not unless the tendency to inflation be checked before the breaking point shall have been reached.—Houston Post.

Right!

Get up right in the morning. Go to bed right at night. Start with joy in your heart, hope in the future, kindness in your purpose.

If it is a dark day, never mind; you will lighten it up. If it is a bright day, you will add to the brightness. Give a word of cheer, a kindly greeting and a warm handshake to your friends.

If you have enemies, look up, pass them by, forget and try to forgive.

If all of us would only think how much of human happiness is made by ourselves, there would be less of human misery.

If all of us would bear in mind that happiness is from within and not from without, there would be a well-spring of joy in every heart and the sun would shine forever.

Try it!

In Denmark and Sweden they are using peat fiber to make textile goods. The "peat wool" is made into matting, carpets, soles for footwear and other things. In some cases animal hair is mixed with it. By mixing in from 20 to 40 per cent of wool they make a cloth of excellent quality and a thread stronger than that made of wool alone.

About 60,000,000 acres of land is given over to tobacco cultivation in the world.

THE CALL.

O, my friend, to you the call has come. The call that sounded o'er the land the parting call that took, but leaving some.

Will again be sung by martial band. You who could so see and judge another's duty, Will you now as placidly see and judge your own?

My fair young brother, he was too young to know, But the dawn of manhood with life begun; His boyish face with youth was all aglow.

For the future held his race that was yet to run. The troth that lovers plight was to him a boyish dream, Youth's hope was in his heart, and the cup of life did seem.

To hold but a sparkling draught with joy agleam. He lies now in sunny France in a grave that is never seen. So heed you not a woman's tears, weakness only weeps at sorrow.

The land is filled with weeping and the orphan's wail is heard. Stop you not to listen, ere your soul be filled with horror.

And your heart within you weakens as your blood begins to curd. Age-old wrongs need righting, and your children must be free.

'Tis with the life blood of others we are buying freedom across the sea. The pain and heartache, should it not come to you and me.

Answer to the call, O, my friend, lest you a vampire be. ROBERT MONTGOMERY.

Brother's Privilege.
