BATTLE CRY WAS MEANT TO MISLEAD

Washington, D. C., October 31.—Special to the Outlook:—"Win with Wilson" has been substituted for "He kept us out of war," and with this and similar fake catchwords, planned to influence the electorate November 5, the democratic campaign managers are again straining every nerve to impose on the voters.

Having "put over" the fake campaign slogan of "He kept us out of war," the democrats, with an effrontery unparalleled in American political history, are attempting to again fool the people with "Win with Wilson."

Any thinking voter will at once recognize the falsity of this democratic campaign cry.

If they had any regard for truth the democratic slogan would be "Win with the republicans," for it has been the republicans in congress who have supported and put through every piece of war legislation, when the democratic leaders, Clark, Kitchin, Dent, and others either half-heartedly hung back from loyally supporting administration war bills, or actively opposed these measures.

Rendered desperate by their approaching defeat November 5 the democrats are seeking to becloud the records of the republicans on the war measures, and to camouflage the repudiation of the members of their own party of administration war bills.

This is not unlike the deception practiced on the people with "He kept us out of war?"

That "kept us out of war" fake has been followed by a long train of lies to the republic, easily traced back to 1916.

The 1916 campaign was waged by the democrats on a pacifist platform with "He kept us out of war" as its chief battle cry.

The administration delayed taking national defense measures while the democrats were trying to secure for Wilson a second term in the White House. When the trouble with Germany began the position of the United States, with a president recently elected on a "Too proud to fight" platform, was greatly weakened.

How could Germany believe an administration elected principally with the slogan "He kept us out of war," would be willing to fight for the rights of its citizens on the high seas. It will never be known how much sacrifice and suffering are due to that deception.

Early measures for military and naval preparedness would have been notice to Germany that the United States intended to protect the rights of all her citizens.

The administration failed to take a single one of these measures until war was declared, notwithstanding the urging of republican members of congress.

This delay in national preparation has cost the lives of thousands of American soldiers, and billions of American treasure, for hardly anybody now doubts that if a firm stand had been taken by the White House when the trouble with Germany began, backed up with ample National defense measures, Germany would have hesitated long before perpetrating outrages on American citizens and American ships, and there might have been no war.

If war had to begin national preparedness would have found the United States at least partially ready for the conflict, which would have been shortened by just the amount of such preparations, never made by a democratic president, who was estopped from doing anything to prepare the republic for the war that all saw was coming, either from inclination, or because of the fatal "He kept us out of war," which gained another presidential term, but at what a terrible cost to the people whose sons are fighting the battles in France, and who themselves are paying the war expenses.

But when war was declared the republican party got back of it with all its force and influence, has been behind it from the beginning, and is unanimously behind it now.

On November 5 the American people can register at the polls their indignation at the deception successfully practiced on them in 1916, by voting for republican candidates for House and Senate, assured that every republican representative and senator is determined to win this war, and that the republican party is a unit in demanding, not a "Peace without Victory," but a peace that will smash to destruction Prussian power seeking to rule the world.

Tailoring For men and women—cleaning, pressing and repairing done well. Peter Lenard, Powell street.

THREE MEN AND THE VISION THEY SAW

By BRUCE BARTON. In a certain city dwell three men. And by accident of birth one of them is a Catholic and one is a Protestant and one is a Jew.

For thirty years they have engaged in business side by side, and the Catholic has not dealt with the Protestant; and the Catholic and the Protestant have had no dealings with the Jew.

"What is he to me?" each man has said. "He is not of my faith; I will avoid him."

So for thirty years they have dwelt together, strangers in a friendly world.

Then came the shadow of a fearful war. And out of those three homes three boys went forth alone. Three fathers waited heart-worn for the letters from over there.

"There are soldiers of Friendliness over here," the boys wrote home. "They bring us chocolate, and motion pictures, and baseball, and good lectures; and the memory of mother and of God."

"Help those friendly agencies when you have the chance," each boy wrote home.

So it happened that the three fathers found themselves working shoulder to shoulder in a great campaign for funds.

Not as a Catholic and a Protestant and a Jew—but as good citizens united in a common cause.

And as they worked they came to know each other, and they were ashamed that for so many years they had been strangers side by side.

"Surely this is one of the compensations of war," they said, "that in our deeper love for our boys we have learned a new respect for one another."

So a new spirit was born into that city. As though in its heart it had discovered something of the greater religion, whose God is Father, and whose faith and creed are love.

"Guard against waste of wild meat" should be the slogan of every hunter this year. All edible portions of the animal killed should be utilized. Good sportsmen will observe conservation suggestions as well as game laws.

THREE POUNDS OF SUGAR IS NOW ALLOWED

Mr. Hoover sprang one of his characteristic surprises yesterday by raising individual sugar allowances over the United States from two pounds to three pounds per month. The increased ration, both in homes and eating houses, is authorized to become effective today.

The change comes suddenly, says Mr. Hoover, because conditions affecting the distribution of sugar have suddenly improved. It is especially surprising since the most extreme restrictions on use of sugar went into effect only on October 21, in connection with the new orders for eating houses. Under these limitations Portland eating places began restricting the patron's sugar consumption to one spoonful.

Mr. Hoover's statement explains reasons for the relaxation. It follows:

"The rapid manufacture of the new crop beet sugar in the West and new crop of Louisiana cane sugar in the South, together with the freer railway transportation conditions and reductions in the consumption of sugar in the manufacture trades, and patriotic conservation in the past four months enables us to increase the household allowance of sugar from two pounds per person per month to three pounds, with the same ratio to public eating places, as from November first.

"This makes good our promise to increase the household allowances of sugar at the earliest possible moment that our supplies would justify and make it possible for the householder to more freely use the apple, cranberry and grapefruit products and to use the fruits canned during the summer without sugar.

The regulations are also revised to the extent that any person may purchase his whole monthly allowance at one time if he so desires, that is, any family may purchase a month's supply for the entire family in one purchase from the retail trades."

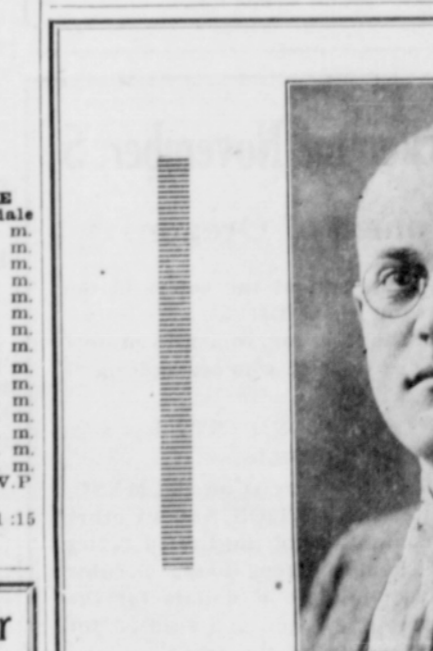

This warning was sounded by W. K. Newell, assistant state food administrator, in connection with the change:

"The public must not interpret the increase as meaning that there is an enormous output of sugar, or that the housewife can let up in conserving it. It should not mean any morsels and cakes nor more sugar in tea and coffee. This increase is given principally that the housewife may take care of the fruits canned without sugar and late fruits and cranberries.

"This is the last day canning sugar permits are to be issued. It will be useless for any to plead for special permits on any grounds."

Mrs. Abigail Wilton, an American woman, has sung "Lead, Kindly Light," 50,000 times in public.

Electricity has been adapted to forty-eight different purposes about the household.

ROSCOE P. HURST Democratic Candidate for Circuit Court Department No. 2

Mr. Hurst says: I believe that automobile thieves should get the same treatment given other thieves. Our courts have been disposed to treat them as a favored class. If elected Circuit Judge next Tuesday I shall strive to make the stealing of autos unprofitable in this county.

I shall also favor speedy hearings in the Circuit Court on appeals from the Municipal and District Courts. The enforcement of the prohibition law and some other laws is now somewhat farcical because of the fact that defendants appeal to the Circuit Court where their cases die of inanition. There is no reason why these appealed cases should not be heard within a week.

POWELL VALLEY

E. T. Sell, who is now learning to handle the big guns at Ft. Stevens, planted a large acreage of potatoes last summer after having been granted exemption. Later his exemption was cancelled and he was called into the service. Scarcity of help made the saving of his crop extremely difficult, but a number of his neighbors have decided that the spuds shall be saved and are working together to dig them. The work will be finished this week.

Red Cross work is being done in the homes of the members in this vicinity. More workers are wanted and any who can help are asked to notify Mrs. Alta Gentry in order that the material may be on hand when needed.

TROUTDALE

Mrs. Jennie Norman of Troutdale has received a supply of Red Cross boxes for Christmas packages to be sent overseas. Anyone living at Troutdale, Fairview, Pleasant View, or as far east as Corbett will be given such a box upon notifying Mr. Norman of the receipt of the label to be attached. Call phone 486.

LUSTED

Ed. Hamilton and family were summoned to Portland this morning by a message which stated that the death of his father, W. H. Hamilton, Sr., was momentarily expected.

The new food saving program of the Food Administration was ready for distribution to every household during the week beginning October 28th to be known as "Conservation Week," but because of the general epidemic of influenza, a change in time was deemed advisable. Sunday, December 1st, has now been selected as "Conservation Sunday" and the week following will be "Conservation Week". The purpose is to bring home to every man, woman and child in the United States why it is necessary to save all foods, particularly the staples, and to exercise every possible means for preventing waste.

Life insurance carried in the United States at the end of 1917 exceeded $60,000,000,000.
