MAIL ORDER BUSINESS RUINS POSTAL SERVICE

The Postoffice department has called on the War department for 20,000 motor trucks and 30,000 men for the purpose of expanding the activities of the department in acting as a distributive agency for merchandise through the parcel post.

TROUTDALE

2D LIEUT. ALBERT HENSLEY.

Mrs. Ella Hensley received a cablegram from her son Albert last Friday, telling of his promotion to second lieutenant.

Mrs. Frances Allard left Saturday to spend the winter with her daughter, Mrs. Roy Morse, of Pendleton.

The Troutdale Aid society will meet Wednesday afternoon at the church. Important business is to be considered, and a full attendance is desired.

The Red Cross auxiliary will meet for sewing Thursday from 10 to 1 o'clock with a sandwich lunch at noon.

Mr. and Mrs. N. P. Wallace returned to their Troutdale home Monday, after several months' sojourn in Tillamook county.

Elmer McAninck and family have come to Troutdale from Colfax, Iowa. They will live in the house formerly occupied by Mrs. Brink as a restaurant.

A family party of fifteen gathered around the big table at R. D. Bailey's on Thanksgiving day. Beside the Bailey family those enjoying the dinner were Jay Bailey and family, Mr. and Mrs. C. I. Raker and son Ellsworth, and his friend Commander Gilbertson from Seattle.

Mrs. L. A. Harlow, leader of the recent United War Work drive in the school district, received a letter from O. W. Davidson, state leader of the drive, congratulating her and the people of the district on the splendid success of the drive.

Mrs. C. H. McGirr, who has been ill with influenza at her parents' home in Portland, is reported not so well today.

SATURDAY'S TEACHERS' MEETING A SUCCESS

The regular meeting of the teachers of Multnomah county, held last Saturday was a success in every respect. Several teachers of the county who had previously been appointed by Superintendent Alderson, rendered splendid talks on school subjects.

ROCKWOOD

Rev. F. J. Schnell, pastor at Rockwood, has been investigating the prevalence of the "flu" in this locality and reports that so far as he can learn there are only one or two severe cases at present in the Rockwood neighborhood.

SYCAMORE PIONEER DIES IN PORTLAND

Edgar Richey, who crossed the plains with ox teams in 1852, died at his home at 612 Tenino avenue November 20 at the age of 78 years.

In the spring of 1852, when he was 12 years of age, he crossed the plains with ox teams and spent the winter of 1852-3 in Portland.

In 1864 he married Cynthia C. Wilson, who, with her six children, survive him.

He lived 40 years on his farm in Boring, moving to Portland in 1906. Interment was in Mount Scott cemetery.

Col. House remains so quiet that in future years he wont even have the satisfaction of saying that "I told you so."

Few Escape.

There are few indeed who escape having at least one cold during the winter months and they are fortunate who have but one and get through with it quickly and without any serious consequences.

MY FATHER AND MOTHER AS I THINK OF THEM.

In a letter to his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Wiles, Lesley B. Wiles writes of the joy in the camp when the news of the signing of the armistice was received.

Lesley enclosed the following verses, which he had written in appreciation of his parents and home:

By LESLEY B. WILES. As I sit in my tent far away, The thoughts come to me of my home And how I left it to join the navy, Though it meant many days to roam. But the thoughts of my mother are many As they flash through my mind while I dream, Of my dear old home in Oregon, There things are what they seem.

How I long to go back to my kinfolk, The dear ones I love so well, And I believe that the time is nigh For I have heard the liberty bell.

The navy is a good place For one who loves to roam, But for the man with a dear old mother It never could be a home.

I will remember my mother And how I caused many a tear, But she always tried to teach me And a noble character rear.

I feel that the struggles have paid her Though I am not all she would have me be Yet I have been careful and cautious In walking the narrow path to a tee.

I know I will some day meet her Though it may not be on this globe, But I'm sure to in the next, For I'll be wearing a heavenly robe.

My father will be there also, I'm sure for I know him well, And could never picture him other Than dwelling far from hell.

I will remember his honest face And the silvery hair of his brow As it causes a tear to dim my eyes And my pen to shake just now.

He always fought for mankind And to make this a decent place Where a man could worship his God With reverence and receive his grace.

I only hope to be like him, I want it to be said of me: That man always did his best To work for humanity.

My father is aged but not feeble, The same applies to his wife, They have proved to the world the value Of leading a righteous life.

I have tried my best in these verses To heap flowers on his and her head, I would rather do that at the present Than after they are dead.

Though I cannot be with them at present Yet I surely do surmise That it will not be long from today Until I look into their eyes.

ONE ROMANTIC HERO EMERGES FROM THE WAR

KING ALBERT

Out of the maze of military figures, and out of the din of war there always appears a romantic hero—a hero to whom the world gives its love and devotion. The man around whom the romance of this feeling now centers is King Albert of Belgium.

In direct contrast comes the dejected figure of the former monarch of Germany. Recently, with shades drawn and in secrecy, he made his exit from the land of his birth, from the land where his word was law.

King Albert stood for justice, for right, for honor, ready to give all for the preservation of his country and his people; the Kaiser stood for greed, for injustice, for dishonor, ready to sacrifice any number of human lives to gain more worldly power.
