Go South, Young Lady, G' South

"Go south, young lady, and get a close-up of summer styles." A nation at peace again and a general prosperity prevailing, sees society flocking back to the southland for the winter months—and incidentally—wearing new frocks which are forerunners for late spring and summer styles. On the left a pussy willow of rose and white while on the right a navy voile skirt hides under a navy blue tunic—the frock of indestructible voile. It is an afternoon frock.

GRESHAM LOCALS

Archie McKeown has recently returned from overseas and is greeting old friends and schoolmates in Gresham.

Mr. and Mrs. Simmons and family, of Portland, spent Sunday with Mrs. Simmon's mother and sister, Mrs. Misz and Miss Marie Misz.

Mrs. E. Boughner received the sad news last week of the death of a granddaughter in Canada of influenza. Other members of the family were seriously ill.

Miss Miriam Inglis is spending the week in Gresham with relatives and friends. Her school at Toledo, Oregon, is temporarily closed on account of influenza.

H. E. Davis has taken a position with McNeff Bros. of Portland, as salesman for the Cleveland tractors. His territory is Multnomah and Clackamas counties.

Twin babies, a son and a daughter, were born to Mr. and Mrs. Jackson Jones early Saturday morning. The baby girl died but the boy and mother are both doing well.

George Metzger is spending an enforced vacation at home on account of sickness which has made it advisable to close the Powell Valley school, of which Mr. Metzger is principal.

Rural Carrier McKinley has returned to his duties on Route A, after an absence of several weeks on account of sickness. On his first trip over the route he was assisted by Marion Mayfield, who has been carrying the mail during Mr. McKinley's illness.

Mr. and Mrs. W. R. Kern gave a dinner party on Saturday evening, the guests being Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Johnson and Mrs. Emil Johnson and little daughter, Mrs. Emil Johnson's home is at Lambert, Montana. She is visiting for a few weeks at the home of Chas. Johnson, who is her husband's father.

The influenza situation in Gresham and vicinity appears to be improving. No new cases have been reported by the physician during the past few days in Gresham. Outside of Gresham very few cases have been reported during the week. If conditions continue to improve it is likely that the ban on public gatherings will be lifted next Monday.

Lieutenant A. W. Botkin of the medical corps has been transferred from the Puget Sound country, where he has been stationed in connection with the Spruce Division, to Vancouver Barracks. Lieutenant Botkin spent a few days at home last week. He expects to receive his discharge from the army in a few days and plans to take up the practice of medicine in Gresham and vicinity.

Elmer L. Phelps arrived at his home in Gresham on last Wednesday and surprised his wife, who had not expected him for a time. He has been in a military hospital at Des Moines, Iowa since early in the fall and has now received his discharge. After a few weeks' rest he will take up again work on the Bull Run pipe line for the Portland water board, in which work he was engaged before enlisting in the service a year ago. Mr. Phelps was one of the two Gresham soldiers on board the Tuscania, both of whom were rescued. He was later injured in connection with mill work in France.

Miss Ruth Montague of the Portland library has arrived to take charge of library work in Gresham. She will be at the library on Monday, Wednesday and Friday afternoons and every evening except Sunday. She will also be at the high school library on Tuesday and Friday forenoons to assist the pupils in the use of reference books. Miss Montague has been connected with the Portland library for a number of years and had charge of the Albina branch. She was given a year's leave of absence to do war work and has recently completed her duties at Washington, D. C. Miss Marie Rogge, the former librarian, is convalescing from a severe attack of influenza.

STATE MASTER SPENCE TO INSTALL OFFICERS

Multnomah Grange No. 71 will meet next Saturday, January 25, at their hall at Orient. They will be highly honored, entertained and instructed by the presence of State Master C. E. Spence, who will install the officers for the ensuing year and give instructions concerning grange work. Other interesting numbers will be on the program. All grangers and friends are invited. Mrs. Julia Ailder is lecturer.

The officers to be installed are M. H. Wheeler, master; Mary Fritz, overseer; Myrtle Ball, lecturer; H. L. Ball, secretary; Sarah Wheeler, treasurer; Julia Ailder, chaplain, John Wheeler, steward; R. I. Anderson, assistant steward; Margaret Wheeler, lady assistant steward; G. W. Ailder, gate keeper; Mary Kligel, Ceres; Lucinda Wheeler, Pomona; Louise Fritz, Flora.

LOGANBERRY INDUSTRY TO GET BIG IMPETUS

The loganberry industry is to become one of the leading pursuits of eastern Multnomah. There is no better locality in Oregon to produce these luscious berries, and, now that the whole nation is going "dry" the prospects are brilliant for a big industry.

These facts are being recognized by those who are in the business of growing the berries or making the juice. The incentive is here and the berries can be grown to an extent only limited by the ability to produce the fruit. This knowledge was probably the reason for one of the largest transfers of farm land in Multnomah county in recent years which was completed last week in the sale of 116 acres by the Sun Dial ranch to C. M. LaFollett, of Amity, Oregon, and S. A. Douglass, of Portland.

The land lies in the famed "sandy loam" belt along the north side of the Sandy road, 12 miles east of Portland near Fairview. The total consideration was $49,300, or $425 an acre.

Mr. LaFollett said he would plant 50 acres to loganberries within a year. Peaches, apples, cherries and walnuts will be planted on 50 or 60 acres this spring and for three or four years vegetables will be grown between the tree rows. It is planned to plant a considerable acreage of muskmelons. The apples will be mostly of the Delicious variety, and the cherries Royal Anns and Lamberts.

In conjunction with this planting of loganberries it is announced by the management of the Sun Dial ranch that they will plant 300 acres of loganberries within the near future. This will be adjacent to the La Follett planting and will be the establishment of the loganberry industry in this section. Plans are being made for a cannery and juice factory close to the berry tract.

C. M. LaFollett, together with his father, A. M. LaFollett, state senator, were the originators of the loganberry industry in Oregon 17 years ago. A. M. LaFollett first set out one-half acre and the following year C. M. LaFollette planted 17 acres. There was difficulty in disposing of the first two crops of berries as fresh fruit to Portland wholesalers, but the following seasons the demand far exceeded the supply. The loganberry juice industry has since grown to large proportions. It is said that the growers are being offered as high as 7 cents a pound for the 1919 crop.

DR. INGLIS ANSWERS ANONYMOUS LETTER

Dr. George Inglis has received the following anonymous communication, and has given it to the Outlook for publication with the subjoined reply, both of which are self-explanatory: Gresham, Ore., Jan. 18, 1919.

Dear Sir:—It seems to me there is some partiality shown in the quarantining of influenza cases. Mrs. Henry Metzger is down with the influenza and two from that house clerking in A. W. Metzger's store. Frank Metzger's whole family is down with it yet Frank is permitted to run everywhere and mix in every public place. Others must be quarantined, why not the Metzgers? We believe in treating every one the same. Bert has returned and they have a crowded house of company every day and the company did not know they had the "flu." A very fine way to keep the thing going. Yours for impartiality.

Editor Outlook:—For the benefit of "yours for impartiality," allow me to say that it is not the duty of the doctor either to impose or to maintain the quarantine.

Quarantine restrictions are entirely in the hands of the Health Board which is appointed by the city council. I am not a member of the Health Board nor am I health physician. My only duties are to report cases which I attend and to express an opinion as to when the quarantine may safely be lifted. I have not been called to attend any member of the Henry Metzger family, since the enactment of the quarantine measure, and cannot report any cases which I have not seen.

I feel sure the mayor and the health committee have made every effort to be fair and impartial in all matters pertaining to the quarantine and have endeavored to restrict the epidemic and at the same time to impose no unnecessary hardship on any one. Respectfully,
GEORGE INGLIS, M. D.

LOSE SON IN FRANCE

Mr. and Mrs. L. M. Russell of Troutdale received a telegram from the War Department on Monday morning announcing the death in France on January 5 of their son, Master Engineer DeWitte Eugene Russell, of bronchial pneumonia. The young man went to France more than a year ago with Co. B. 116th Engineers.

Mr. and Mrs. Russell have two sons and a son-in-law still in the service in France.
