Educational Progress in Philippines

It is stated on good authority that seventy per cent of the inhabitants of the Philippines over the age of ten years old are illiterate, as shown by the 1918 census, according to a cable just received by the war department from Vice-Governor Yeater, at Manila. Of the estimated population of 10,500,-000, 10,000,000 are civilized Christians, while 500,000 represents the non-Christians, or so-called wild tribes. The latter, however, are included in the population of which 70 per cent are literate. The percentage of literacy in the Philippines, as shown by the census just completed, is almost as high as that of some of the southern states of the union, higher than that of Greece, Italy, Portugal, Roumania and It is also higher than that of any of the new countries whose inde-pendence is being recognized by the

It is pointed out there is every reason for literacy of the Philippines to be still higher within the next few years, though the action of the Philippine legislature at its last session in voting 30,000,000 pesos to extend the educational system so that schools will be available to every child and youth in the Philippines.

of 54 per cent in six years. The number of intermediate pupils grew to 67,000, a gain of 160 per cent. The number of high school students reached 16,000, a gain of 220 per cent. The Philippine legislature, composed entirely of Filipinos, now supports 4700 schools, with a teaching force of 12,303 teachers. All instruction is in English, and will continue to

Japan has apologized to the United States for violence of Japanese against American soldiers of the Fif-March 12 last and for the affronts to P. Stewart Heintzleman, the American consul general, which occurred at the same time. The formal apology, ac-

Building Continues Active

It is evident that there is some imrovement in the building trades over last week, as the demand for carpen-ters and others engaged in this line has shown a decided increase. However, the mechanics are plentiful nough to meet the increased demand and no construction is being delayed or lack of men. The shipyards are ull-handed and it will be unwise for outsiders to come to Portland in the hope of securing employment with the shipbuilding concerns. There is ample evidence that sufficient labor is at hand to meet present requirements. Orders are on the boards for upwards of 100 men for highway construction on various units, but the call for men on railroad work, especially in the shops, has fallen off to a noticeable degree during the past month. The U. S. Employment Service is watching conditions closely in employment centers throughout the state and believes that the next two weeks will witness a greatly increased demand for labor in many lines.

Naval Facilities to Be Enlarged

"While I do not expect to see it done in the extra session, I am hopeful that congress in the regular session will enlarge the naval facilities on the Pacific coast," said Representative Os borne, of California.

"If a large fleet is to be kept in the Pacific, as has been promised, then it is essential that adequate provision be made for yards, docks, repair shops and the like. A commission of the navy department, known as the Helm commission, has recommended such improvements and I believe congress will be well disposed toward them.' Mr. Osborne called attention to the fact that of 24 graduated as star men at Annapolis this year 6 were from the
