

The Eden

ELECTRIC WASHING and WRINGING MACHINE

You will also find that this EDEN easy-way costs only a few cents' worth of electric current per family washing, and that the clothes are handled so gently they look better and last about six times as long as they do when they are being subjected to the usual regular roughing over the ridges of a washboard.

The EDEN'S saving in these two items of cost for laundry work and wear and tear on the wash pieces practically takes care of the small monthly payments required on the purchase price. Be sure to call or phone or write—do it today.

Correct Lubrication of Tractors Necessary for Good Results.

It goes without saying, of course, that a tractor must be operated correctly in order to secure efficient results. It is just as essential that a high quality lubricating oil of the correct grade exactly suited to the engine be used. But correct lubrication means something more than this—the oil must be used in the right way.

The tractor manufacturer builds an efficient power plant which is designed to do certain work and do it economically. To insure this the manufacturer does everything possible to educate the operator in the proper care and operation of the tractor.

In the same way the Standard Oil company issues literature on the correct lubrication of all kinds of tractors it maintains a corps of experienced Lubrication Engineers in order to study the lubrication needs of each type of tractor. The company then recommends to the operator the correct grade of Zerolene for use in his machine if he is to get the most efficient service out of it. The Standard Oil company is interested in selling correct lubrication, not merely in selling a gallon or a barrel of oil.

Through its long experience and vast resources, the company has produced the exact grade of Zerolene suited to each type of engine. Each grade will do the work for which it is manufactured if used correctly in the engine for which it is recommended. In this way the Standard Oil company is doing an invaluable service in teaching the tractor operator the science of correct lubrication.

Forest Fires.

The camping season is on. The greatest possible care should be taken by campers not to build large fires and to see that any they do build are thoroughly extinguished before they leave them. Also to avoid throwing cigar or cigarette ends about. Fire is a very dangerous thing in the forest. A big bonfire in front of the camp at night is a pretty sight but a little twig red hot and carried on the wind may start a forest fire.

"THE WAYFARER" IS A WESTERN PRODUCTION

Of special interest to the people of the Pacific Northwest is the fact the "The Wayfarer," which was the outstanding feature of the recent centenary celebration at Columbus, Ohio, was written and staged by a western man. Dr. J. E. Crowther, pastor of the First Methodist Episcopal church in Seattle.

Dr. Crowther has given the copyright, which would be worth $10,000 to him, to the centenary commission. The pageant will be reproduced in New York in October if an adequate building can be secured.

On the last day of the celebration a Columbus paper said: "The tremendous demand for seats at the pageant, the enormous audiences at every performance, and the words of commendation upon the part of those who saw the entertainment at the Methodist centenary, ought to be of some value to theatrical promoters. It ought at least to teach them that a show does not have to be indecent to succeed. The pageant was a high-grade, moral, spectacular performance. It taught a splendid lesson. The atmosphere was wholesome and inspiring, yet nothing that has been in Columbus this past quarter of a century has drawn such crowds or maintained such interest for so long a period of time. The music itself was worthy of comment, in that it showed the people do not really want the ragtime or the jazz, but much prefer the more dignified and inspiring strains. Those who cater to the public in the matter of amusements ought to take the hint; they ought to see that it is not the indecent and the suggestive and the flippant that the people want in their entertainments. And it will be the same in New York as it is here in Columbus. This pageant will please there as it has pleased here."

Bank and Industries.

The old days when banks confined themselves to the mere occupation of clipping coupons and shaving notes are no more. Not only has the bank in modern times assumed rank as a community service but it is becoming identified with industries. Modern constructive policies find banks financing well-managed industrial plants and increasing agricultural industries. Recently the active manager for many years of the packing industry and stock yards at Portland became an officer of a big bank. C. C. Colt, now general manager of the Swift & Company's interests in the Columbia basin, becomes vice-president of the First National. There is no bigger undertaking today than building on solid foundations a large manufacturing and financial center. The man of practical affairs plans not only city building but extends constructive policies to an entire section. There are no more enterprising builders on large lines of community development in the west today than managers of live banks.

BIGGEST MOVIE CROWD SEES LARGEST FILM

Three world's records were broken on the evening of July 4, at Columbus, Ohio, when at the Centenary Exposition 40,000 spectators watched a moving picture 100 feet wide and 75 feet high, thrown on a screen 115 feet square. It was the largest movie audience ever gathered together, viewing the largest movie—more than six times the size of the average screen—thrown on the largest screen in the world.

The pictures were remarkably clear and sharp. The blinking of a man's eyes shown in a close up, was plainly discernible two blocks away. The pictures as a whole were easily seen from a distance of six blocks.

The great screen, costing approximately $8,000, and containing 10,000 feet of lumber, was built primarily for stereopticon slides. Exposition officials, finding the slides were meeting with tremendous success, decided to attempt motion pictures on the screen. Several experts laughed at the idea, stating that it would be impossible to enlarge motion pictures sufficiently to make a showing on the screen. However, after several testings, Leo S. Dwyer, agent for the Simplex machine, produced a picture 75x100 feet, which is 1,440,000 times larger than the picture on the film.

Specally prepared films have to be used. They must be black and white with no shadings. The picture is run through quickly to prevent burning by the powerful machine.

Dad Always Held the Reins.

"One young man who applied for work when men were not to be had was asked if he had ever lived on a farm," writes C. C. Calkins, county agent for Sherman county, in the June Countryman.

"O, yes, all my life," he said.

"A farmer out here wants some one to drive six horses; can you do it?" he was asked.

"Don't know; I could harness them, but never drove a horse in my life."

"What! Didn't your father have any horses on the farm?"

"We had horses all right, but dad would never let me drive; he always held the lines."

Further questioning revealed the fact that Dad still owns the farm but hires some other father's son to run it while George is away in a state that is not his own, looking for work because dad just had to hold the lines. Other boys tell the same story in different words. "It's all dad's farm," sighed one young lad. "It was my calf but dad's cow," said another.

It isn't enough to give the boy nine months of schooling; give him a chance at the farm business; even if he doesn't want it it's up to dad to create and fill the want.

Experience shows us that if you want the child at home this has got to come. The letter head that used to read "J. C. Brown, Shorthorn Breeder," must be changed to read "Brown & Sons."

And then dad has got to play the game.

Mrs. Burns' Letter.

Here is a letter that is certain to prove of interest to people in this vicinity, as cases of this sort occur in almost every neighborhood, and people should know what to do in like circumstances:

"Savannah, Mo., Oct. 12, 1916. I used a bottle of Chamberlain's Colic and Diarrhoea Remedy about nine years ago and it cured me of flux (dysentery). I had another attack of the same complaint some three or four years ago and a few doses of this remedy cured me. I have recommended Chamberlain's Colic and Diarrhoea Remedy to dozens of people since I first used it.—Adv.
