WE KNOW TO A POSITIVE CERTAINTY that if you will give us a trial order you will become a steady patron of this shop. It's happened so many times that a person has come in and purchased a small order of meat, and then come back to express their delight and gratification and leave another order. This sort of thing surely helps our business.

The Modern Bank a Builder

Progressive banking as carried on today is one of the greatest forces in any community for industrial development.

The old style banker who merely profited by the necessities of others is a thing of the past. He can't do business in competition with modern methods.

The present day successful bank manager is a builder. He studies the opportunities of a community and assists in bringing in capital to help develop latent resources.

Banking today is simply applying scientific principles to the handling of money, not merely for the enrichment of an individual who has the money to loan but for the development of a banking business and industry in the territory it serves.

The modern bank prospers by the success and growth of its customers not by failures and sheriff's sales.

Banking today is done out in the open and not behind closed doors. Gresham is rapidly becoming a financial center because its banks are of this character and are progressive institutions.

Will Your Orchard Pay?

Will the home orchard pay this year? The answer depends upon you. Should your orchard have been neglected up until this time which has been the case of many who consider they have not had time to spray and prune it is not to be expected that it will pay. Conditions are favorable for a large production and prices expected to be high. If the home orchard does not pay this year it is likely to be your own fault. If it has been properly pruned and sprayed it is a splendid opportunity to find out if it will pay, open up a set of books, keep track of what you have paid out for the care of the orchard and what the income has been from the sale of fruit. The County Fruit Inspector would be glad to have reports from growers throughout Multnomah County this fall on the above question.

None can do their work right unless they are doing their best, but they can't do their best unless they are ever trying to do better.

Drain the Crank Case Often

Correct lubrication is one of the most important factors in keeping a tractor in good condition so that it will consume less fuel, last longer and work most efficiently. The Standard Oil company, through its board of lubrication engineers, has determined the best grade of Zerolene for every type of tractor engine. Not only must the operator use the oil best suited for his machine but he should also give particular attention to the way in which it is used.

The object of all power machinery is to develop the most power with the least fuel and the least possible cost for adjustment and repairs.

To make this possible the engine must have an efficient lubricating system, and the oil in the system must always be in a clean and efficient condition. Particular attention must be paid to draining the oil from crank case and oiling system.

The lubricating oil must be changed frequently for several reasons. The oil after a time will wear out. In other words, it will lose its lubricating value after it has been in the system for a certain length of time. The fuel which condenses in the cylinder works past the piston rings, thins down the oil and destroys its lubricating value. Hence the need of changing the oil is particularly urgent when it becomes contaminated with foreign matter, such as carbon, which forms on the under side of the piston; silica, or dust, which enters the crank case through the breather pipe; and oxide of iron, which comes from the wear of the bearing surfaces of the motor. The presence of this foreign matter in the lubricating oil acts as an abrasive rather than as a lubricant. Lubricating oil is intended to form a film between all moving parts, such as bearings, pistons, rings, and cylinders, taking the wear instead of the metallic bearing surfaces themselves. It is, therefore, cheaper from every standpoint to wear out lubricating oil than metal, and if an engine is to develop its maximum power and show a low frictional resistance in the bearing surfaces, the lubricant must be kept clean and it must have its maximum lubricating value.

The Standard Oil company is performing a valuable service in teaching the operator of a tractor the correct means of lubricating his engine. The company is interested not so much in selling merely a gallon or a barrel of lubricating oil as it is in selling correct lubrication, which will mean the right use of the right grade of oil in the particular type of motor for which it is manufactured.

Tractor Prices Unchanged

All reports rumored or published that there has been a reduction in the prices of CASE TRACTORS are false.

Our prices are consistent with costs and are scientifically arrived at. Since present prices were established there has been no average decrease in cost of selected materials, but there has been a constant increase in labor costs.

A high quality product is necessarily higher in cost than an inferior one—but it is by far the best investment.

The demand has been, and is now, in excess of our output, notwithstanding the fact that our production has been materially increased. This is conclusive evidence that our prices are consistent with Case quality.

We have no large stock of obsolete models to unload.

Our customers are assured that their investment in Case Tractors will not depreciate suddenly.
