"The Linotype Way is the Way that Wins."

Official paper of the Town of Gresham Official paper of the Town of Fairview.

Entered as second-class matter March 3, 1911, at the Postoffice at Gresham, Oregon, under the Act of March 3, 1879.

PUBLIC SAFETY.

The protection of life and limb against the ever increasing danger of accidents is getting to be one of the serious problems of the day.

The number daily killed and maimed in all portions of this country is simply appalling. In Portland alone during a week it averaged almost one death a day and a score or so more or less seriously maimed.

A mania of inordinate speed, with its accompaniment of criminal carelessness and inhuman disregard of the rights and lives of others, is upon us. How to check this tendency and restore sanity and safety is the problem just now. And it is not a matter for the officers and courts alone; it is for every citizen to do his part. The public must co-operate with the authorities.

"There is need," says the Oregonian, for an aggressive policy in which the public does its share," and suggests that the public organize itself into a committee of public safety, and in co-operation with the authorities, devise a system of espionage, of protection, and of apprehension of malefactors.

The one thing to burn into the minds of auto drivers is "SAFETY FIRST; BE CAREFUL."

RESTORE CAPITAL PUNISHMENT.

Undoubtedly deliberate murder, simply with the purpose to kill, is the greatest crime a person can commit. Then the punishment for it should be the severest that can be imposed by an outraged state, which is hanging.

The voters of this state should restore the death penalty just as soon as the law allows.

The experiment of its abolishment about five years ago has been a costly one but it has its lessons. It was claimed the death penalty did not act as a deterrent to murder. The people are now convinced that it had and will have its effect. The appeal then was mainly to sentiment, and the people fell for it, at least a few more than half the voters, just enough to carry the measure.

The temper of the American people now is to cast mere sentiment aside, go after the cold, hard facts and act and vote accordingly.

Keep all your business in action, for parts not in use soon decay.

HOW MUCH LONGER HANDS?

"Was a time when man made everything by hand. He built strong. Speed was secondary; permanence came first. Today, steel fingers cut, shape, weave, weld and do the work."

"Was a time when fine handwriting was a proud accomplishment. Now comes a machine with ears and fingers. We speak and it automatically writes our words."

No more will we practice our choicest language on inky blots and scratchy pens. Ne'er more will a bad hand cost a nation its conquest. Did not the Marshal Grouchy fail to bring up his picked troops in reserve because he misread Napoleon's scribble "The battle is won" for "The battle is on"?

Authors, rather than statesmen, afford the most interesting examples of writing. Thackeray could pen the Lord's Prayer on his thumbnail. Hawthorne wrote so small some of his manuscripts could not be read. Horace Greeley once wrote a note discharging a compositor. It was so badly scrawled, the man use it as a letter of recommendation to get another place. The signature alone was decipherable.

If man continues to live a push-button life, what will become of his hands? Science says we will breathe our food in the next era. Machines will do our work. Nature discards every organ that outlives its usefulness. Will hands go the way of tonsils, appendix, tails and claws?

LIBERTY

PUBLIC WELFARE IS PARAMOUNT.

It has been said before but it will stand repetition, because particularly applicable to the situation at this time, that if the kings and kaisers, emperors and czars had to go into the trenches and endure the hardship of a soldier there would be fewer wars; and if the salaried officers of labor unions had to walk the streets jobless and hungry and endure the hardship of a striker there would be fewer strikes.

When for the enforcement of a wage demands and changed working conditions, which at least are ill-timed if not wholly unjustified, any body of men organized or unorganized conspire to inflict hardship and suffering on the general public, by closing down factories, mines, railroads or other industries whose operation is essential to the general welfare, right then does it become the duty of the government by whatever means or force necessary not only to interpose and stop it but arrest and prosecute those responsible for such outlaws.

This is a government of law and no citizen or body of citizens is above the law. The government has not hesitated to fix the "wages and working conditions" of railroads. In measurable degree it has done the same with mines.

The railroads did not strike nor threaten the people with privation and hardship by closing down. Neither did the mines.

But suppose they had. How long would the government or the people have tolerated it?

Surely if the government has authority to uniform its citizens, place guns in their hands and send them into the trenches to shoot and be shot at, it has the authority to man and operate the railroads and mines, and when necessary to the public welfare that this be done any government worthy of the name will not hesitate to do it.

If drastic action becomes necessary there should be no quibbling about it. In this as in every other controversy the public welfare is paramount.

Farmers Week at Corvallis this year promises to be unusually fine. The short courses offered are varied and packed full of instruction and interest. Many from this locality are planning to attend. It will come just after Christmas. Full announcement will be made later.

Oregon Inventor.

An Oregon City man is the inventor of a non-puncturable tire. It is composed of a fabric which defies glass, nails, or other injurious elements and is warranted to run hundreds of miles farther than an ordinary automobile tire. It is in the form of a liner, which goes inside of any make of tire, and at one of the demonstrations held recently it proved up a lot of claims made for it.

A row of large building tacks was laid on the street, in such a manner that the tacks would strike every tire on the auto when it passed over them. After the auto had passed over the tacks, it was found that they had not inflicted a single puncture and that the tires were as good as ever.

The men who have the call do the least shouting.

WHY THE ELECTRIC CLEANER?

There is really no comparison between the ease and thoroughness with which an Electric Cleaner removed dirt and the difficulty of sweeping.

True, one CAN clean rugs and carpets without an electric cleaner. A broom or carpet sweeper will brush up SOME of the dirt; and if you like the exercise and have plenty of time and strength a broom and a carpet beater will do the work after a fashion.

In the same way one can wash without soap. Water alone will remove some dirt if applied with enough "elbow grease."

But people use soap because it cleans more easily and better than water alone.

For the same reason people use Electric Cleaners because they clean more easily and far better than other methods.

ATTORNEY SCHNEIDER DEFINES AN AMERICAN

The grade school had company yesterday afternoon. Mothers were there, guests of the children and teachers.

To begin with the boys and girls showed the visitors what they can do in reading, writing, language or other subjects. And they did exceedingly well too. One little fellow, sent to the blackboard to write figures, erased them a dozen times before he found one that would suit him on this occasion. After recess the children proved themselves real entertainers, rendering an interesting program full of bright and clever numbers.

After the program came a session of the Parent-Teachers' association, Attorney C. G. Schneider, speaker. His topic was "America for Americans."

Mr. Schneider said that he felt as if he could not do the subject justice, but in behalf of the American Legion he would give the objects and interpretation of what an American stands for—the objects for which the American Legion is formed:

To uphold and defend the Constitution of the United States of America; to maintain law and order; to foster and perpetuate a one hundred per cent Americanism; to preserve the memories and incidents of our association in the Great War; to inculcate a sense of individual obligation to the community, state and nation to combat the autocracy of both the classes and masses; to make right the master of might; to promote peace and good-will on earth; to safeguard and transmit to posterity the principles of justice, freedom and democracy; to consecrate and sanctify our comradeship by our devotion to mutual helpfulness.

An American, said Mr. Schneider, used to be considered one living within the confines of the United States. But that is no longer a criterion. A native born or naturalized citizen who stands back of the principles of this country is an American, and the war has defined that a man or a woman must stand for these principles.

"The Oriental question is a serious problem making serious inroads on the Pacific coast. Recently a newspaper reports the sale of over 13,000 acres of land to a member of the Oriental race. Can we and are we going to raise the standard of these people so that we will be willing to have them associate on equal basis with us? The experience has been, where they move in Americans move out. I am not offering a solution, but it is a serious problem and one which it appears we will be called to vote upon."

He told of the heroism displayed by the boys in the recent war and hoped the boys in the future would exhibit the same spirit.

"Parents have a big responsibility to train the children to uphold the traditions of the army and navy of the four great wars—the last one the greatest. The army, navy and marines support the American ideals as never before. They had a chance to see conditions elsewhere. They know there is no grander country on the face of the globe and that we are the most fortunate people on earth.

"Let us stand back of American principles. Let us train the boys and girls to acquire themselves as the boys did "over there."

QUEEN ESTHER CIRCLE ORGANIZED IN GRESHAM

One of the pleasantest of meetings, was held on Sunday afternoon, when a dozen enthusiastic girls met and organized a Queen Esther circle.

The meeting was held at the home of Mrs. Hevel, W. H. M. S. Department secretary of young people's work. Mrs. Jas. Sterling, and Mrs. Wm. Boagle, president and vice president respectively of the W. H. M. S., met with the girls and told of some of the enjoyable things that the circle can do, and promised help and encouragement in their work. They were unanimous in their determination to have a society, and nominated and elected officers as soon as the purpose of the work was made known. Greatly to their credit he said that not one of these young people refused a nomination for office, showing that there were none who were shirkers.

Next meeting will be the first regular meeting and all joining at that time will be charter members. "The Queen Esthers are going to be heard from in various ways, so get busy girls, and join," is the enthusiastic remark of one of the members. The officers elected for the present time are: president, Vivian Hevel; vice president, Edith Hlatt; treasurer, Letitia Pulfer; recording secretary, Genevieve McAllister; corresponding secretary, Esther Peterson; mime box secretary, Myra Johnson; secretary of literature, Elizabeth Schwedler; supply secretary, Cora Johnson. Other members are Mary Daniels, Gertrude Borden, Mildred Pullen and Ida Lauber.

After election of officers the newly elected president presided and it was decided to hold the next, or first regular meeting on Monday night, December 1st. Mrs. Hevel then invited all present to stay and have Sunday evening lunch, and then attend Epworth League.

While lunch was in progress, Epworth League topics were read and discussed, after which nearly all attended and took part in the Sunday evening services.
