Your Liberty Bond.

The United States government borrowed money from you to finance the war. You hold the government's promise to pay you back. This is called a liberty bond or victory note. On this bond is stated the conditions under which the government borrowed the money from you.

For instance: If you hold a bond of the third liberty loan, it states that on April 15th and October 15th of each year until maturity, you will receive interest on the amount you paid for the bond. Other issues bear other rates of interest and other maturity dates, all of which are clearly stated on the bond.

Now, if you keep your bond until the date when the government pays, you in full for it, you do not need to worry if, in the meantime, the price is low one day or high the next. You and Uncle Sam are living up to your agreement with each other, and neither will lose by it.

On the other hand, if you sell your liberty bond now, you will find that the man you sell it to will not give you a dollar for every dollar you paid for it. The price has been brought down because so many people are offering to sell their bonds. If the market is flooded with tomatoes, you can buy them cheap, but if everyone is clamoring for tomatoes and there are few to be had, the price goes up. The same is true of liberty bonds. Short-sighted people are dumping them on the market, and wise ones are buying them.

The best advice that can be given to the owner of a liberty bond is this: hold the bond you bought during the war; it is as safe and sound as the United States government itself.

Buy as many more as the present low rate as you can afford. If you hold them to maturity, you are bound to make the difference between what they sell at now and their face value. You will also receive good interest on your investment.

Hold on to your liberty bonds and buy more.

Almost every day one or more persons say to the Outlook, "I am getting splendid returns on my ad."
