SNAPSHOT OF THE WORLD.

A snapshot of the world at the beginning of 1921 presents some interesting situations.

The United States is acknowledged to be the leading and most prosperous nation in the world today, with the largest per capita wealth, the greatest resources, the largest foreign trade. All things considered she is probably doing more at present to help other struggling nations than any other power.

There is more destitution, disease, and suffering in the rest of the world than ever recorded before. Millions are starving in China, in Russia, in Armenia, in Austria. Winter has brought unparalleled hardships to large areas where people merely eke out an existence under favorable conditions. Through various agencies about $20,000,000 is being raised in this country which will probably save several million persons, mostly children, from starvation.

Practically speaking, food stores in this country are full. European nations which are most in need are so impoverished that they cannot buy our surplus. It has been necessary to form holding corporations through which credit could be extended those in need and the producer could be paid for his surplus for export.

This is being done on a falling market when farmers generally have urged holding their produce for a return of higher prices.

In this country the most serious present problems grow out of labor conditions. The larger manufacturing are closing temporarily or indefinitely, on one pretext or another, but generally, it is believed, in order to force conditions of cheaper production to meet a falling market. It is hoped this may be brought about without serious labor trouble.

It was thought that following the war there would be unlimited demand for manufactured products in war-ridden countries. But most of them haven't recovered sufficiently yet to know what they need or be able to buy what they need.

One of the most difficult political situations has developed in Ireland. England's treatment of Ireland, or Ireland's treatment of England, is making lots of trouble which is bound to grow worse until a settlement is made. It is not an international affair hence this country should not interfere. England has her problems to solve, as has this country, and neither would brook interference by the other in purely national affairs.

On the whole, the outlook for 1921 is hopeful. Re-adjustment is progressing, though slowly; the sick and disabled nations show signs of recuperation. Humanity is on a better footing. The mind and heart of the race will come back to sanity and faith. The keynote of the future must be dominated by patience, confidence, conciliation, co-operation and conservation of human life and effort.

PLEASANT HOME

"From the Desert to a Garden" will be the topic of the regular morning sermon at the Methodist church Sunday. The Sunday school will meet at the usual hour with interesting classes for all. The teacher training class under the direction of their teacher, Harry Bickford, commenced work last Sunday. They are studying the textbook "Life in the Making." The Workers' conference will meet after the church services Sunday. All members are urged to be present as several important matters are to be discussed.

Rev. E. A. Leonard, former pastor of the Baptist church here, will preach at the Baptist church at 11 a. m. Sunday. After the preaching services luncheon will be served in the basement of the church. All members and friends are especially urged to be present.

A special school meeting will be held at Orient schoolhouse on Saturday afternoon for the purpose of deciding the question of building a new schoolhouse for the district.

Rev. J. E. Brown Announces Interesting Series of Sermons.
Rev. Jesse E. Brown, pastor of the Baptist church here, has prepared a series of sermons on the subject of Chiasm which he will give at the morning service which commences at 11 o'clock.
