Women Jurors.
 One of the bills to be submitted to voters at the special election June 7 is the one permitting women to serve as jurors in this state.

Women serve as jurors in Washington, Idaho and California. In Washington they have served since 1911. The Washington law gives the women the privilege of declining to serve if they wish. The Oregon legislature, at its last session drew a similar bill and are submitting it to the voters at the election upon June 7th. The courts of Washington are well satisfied with the service of women as jurors after ten years of experience.

In the questionnaire submitted to the courts, replies are almost unanimous that "women jurors have been satisfactory." "Have not been emotional or unduly swayed by their sympathies." "Have not been slower in coming to decisions, or disagreed more frequently than men jurors." Judge Huneke of Spokane says, "I favor the retention of women as jurors." Attorney W. H. Abel of Montesano says, "My experience has been that women make just as good jurors as men, pay as close attention to the evidence, and if anything take their obligation more seriously." Malcolm Douglas, the prosecuting attorney of King county, in which Seattle is located says, "The writer has not noticed any traits that are peculiar to women jurors, to any great extent. It is my belief that they are to some degree inclined to be more severe in criminal cases than men jurors, but not to a marked extent. In a recent murder case in this county there were four women on the jury and the writer has been informed that all four of them voted for capital punishment on the first ballot, whereas two men jurors voted against capital punishment on the first ballot, and it took the other jurors an hour to convince the two men that capital punishment should be inflicted in that case, which they finally did. Some of the women jurors were in tears upon returning to the jury box, but they did not allow their emotions to affect what they considered their duty in this case. On the whole, I believe that about the same results are obtained from juries whether they are constituted entirely of men or of both men and women. The usefulness of a juror depends upon the intelligence, education and training, rather than upon the sex of the individual. Personally I like the idea of having both men and women on juries and would oppose any legislation tending to abolish women jurors."

Homer Kirby, formerly prosecuting attorney, now judge of Cowlitz county, located in southern Washington, in replying to the question if women show a willingness to serve in rural districts, says, "This district which is rural, always have quite a number of women jurors on every jury." He further states, "that it is his opinion that women make as good jurors as men." "That their service does not cause neglect of homes and children as those whose domestic duties hardly permit them to serve claim their exemption." A prominent attorney of Seattle says, in replying to the question: "Do women in any considerable number object to or seek to avoid jury service?" "I doubt if the percentage is any higher than among men." He further states that women upon juries are especially desirable in all cases in which our commercialism requires tempering with mercy.

Honorable King Dykeman of Seattle Superior Court says that "about one half of the jurors are women," that he "has heard no complaint of women being slower to make up their minds than men," that "Taking the Superior Courts of the state of Washington on a whole, I believe the Judges are generally satisfied with the jury service rendered by women and would not be interested in changing the present system."

One attorney says, "Women's experiences and psychology are different than men's, but I regard this as an argument in their favor." A judge of Eastern Washington replying to the question, "In what class of cases are women upon the jury especially desirable?" Says, "perhaps when a woman is a party." And a judge of Southern Washington replying to the same question says: "In cases involving violation of the prohibition law."

Senator A. H. Imus says, "It is the consensus of opinion of the bench and bar association of Washington, that women jurors show by their verdicts the higher sense of justice, and a clearer conception of the points in issue at the trial than the average man juror. All replies were practically unanimous "That women themselves were benefited by jury service." They also agreed in the statement that only a slight expense was involved in providing for the mixed juries.

That it is the right of every person to be tried by "a jury of their peers" has been generally accepted, in theory at least, since the Declaration of Independence. Citizenship has implied obligation to render jury service.

The women of Oregon hold their citizenship a sacred trust and undoubtedly will willingly perform all their duties to the state and to society.

Free tuition to ex-service men and women has been granted by Pacific University since the war. This policy is to be practiced again this year.

OREGON TO THE FRONT

The Oregon Growers Cooperative Association has advanced its prices on prunes, according to an announcement made by R. C. Paulus, general manager.

California is pretty well cleaned up on small sized prunes and the association holds most of the 40-50s now in the northwest.

Although it is a little early to form a definite estimate of the prune crop, reports coming to the Oregon Growers Cooperative Association from all the prune districts indicate considerable loss, especially in the hill orchards. These blossomed a little later than the lower lands and were caught in the rain and cold weather during blossoming period.

The Oregon Growers Cooperative Association will handle a brocoli crop next season from 500 or more acres. Already in the Willamette valley, in addition to the Salem section, seed has been furnished members of the association who will plant 294 acres. The Roseburg district whose crop is mostly handled by the association, will probably put in 250 acres of brocoli this season.

During the past season the association sold 27,514 crates of brocoli, developing 38 markets through its selling organization.

The English people are still eating Oregon prunes and seem to like them pretty well. During the past week the Oregon Growers Cooperative Association shipped more than 100,000 pounds to London. In addition to these last shipments, London had bought 411,250 pounds of Oregon prunes this past winter, and Liverpool 419,050 pounds.

Apple growers of western Oregon are at least looking a prosperous year in the face. According to private advices to the Oregon Growers Cooperative association, at least 50 per cent of the apple crop east of the Rocky mountains has been ruined by cold weather. This includes the big apple growing states of Michigan and New York.

Last year the Pacific System transported 51,000,000 passengers and 35,000,000 tons of freight.

CORRESPONDENCE SCHOOL DETECTIVE GETS HIS

Anybody with brains can learn to be a good detective, but nobody did it in three months and very few in three years.

Human nature being human nature, the city man falls for the faker as often as the country man — indeed most often because the vast majority of fakers operate in the cities.

Now there is John Muller of Philadelphia—population sixteen or seventeen hundred thousand. John answered one of those correspondence school detective ads that give you lessons in plain and fancy detecting and in a month or two he acquired a diploma, badge, pair of handcuffs, with instructions, and for the pre-war price of $7.50.

Thus equipped "Detective" Muller went out in "disguise" one day, and found a bunch of amateur baseball fellows in a park, quarreling with the umpire. Muller took the field and attempted to settle the trouble according to lesson 21, but was invited by one of the ball players to kindly beat it.

Then he produced his badge as advised in Lesson 9, when another ball player slammed him on the nose. Other members of the team followed suit. The amateur detective reached for his handcuffs but there was no one who would wear them.

When a policeman reached the scene it was plain that something had gone wrong with the correspondence school detecting. Finally the officer rescued Muller from underneath the pile and took him to a cooler for safekeeping and renovation.

TREATS IN STORE U. OF O., MAY 19-22

The Pacific Coast conference track meet and tennis tournament and the state high school debates are only two of the treats in store for the high school students who are to be the guests of the University of Oregon during Junior Week End, May 19 to 22.

The Pacific Coast conference track meet will be the big feature of the week-end. It is the first in the history of the university and will be held on Hayward field which has just been completed and is considered one of the best tracks in the northwest. Those interested in athletics will have an opportunity to see the best track men of the west. Charles Paddock of the University of California who won honors last year at the Olympic games will run. Other attractions in the athletic line will be the Pacific Coast conference tennis tournament and two baseball games with Oregon Agricultural College.

Campus Day, May 20, will be a day of rivalry between the freshman and sophomore classes. All kinds of contests will be staged, culminating in the burning of the frosh caps.

For the students interested in journalism a convention of the editors of high school papers will be held under the auspices of the School of Journalism. At this time they will have an opportunity to organize a High School Press association.
