PREPARE FOR THE FAIR

Premium lists of the Multnomah County Fair are being mailed out to former exhibitors and handed to all who ask for them. They may be had at the Bank of Gresham or at the Outlook office. All are advised to get and preserve a copy of this year's book. According to President Lewis, this year's fair will be one of the best. Large amusement features have been engaged, the buildings will be crowded with exhibits and there will be attractions galore.

WISDOM IN BUYING

Wise people in the country generally are quitting the mail order houses. This is apparent by the fact that the biggest of them are all but on the rocks financially. Those who are wise enough to trade at home find that in the end they get more for their money and they get "accommodation" which the big mail order houses cannot give.

The city mail order house, doing a national business and advertising nationally, has a million or more customers. The filling of your order is but a mechanical operation. You take what you get at long distance and be thankful that you are alive.

Your home merchant offers quality goods and you can inspect them on the spot and choose what suits you. He will give personal and intelligent attention to your order. If by accident there should be anything wrong you are where you can get instant satisfaction.

You get an indirect as well as direct benefit. By trading at home you benefit yourself, your family, your neighborhood.

Health Book for Blind

The blind are to be given an opportunity to become conversant with authoritative rules of health, the American Red Cross having arranged for the early translation of its text book, "Home Hygiene and Care of the Sick," into Braille. The remarkable progress made by blind students in Home Hygiene and Care of the Sick classes has warranted reproducing the book in a manner that will make it available to the sightless everywhere, whether in school or out. Where the courses have already been offered the blind students have proved apt, despite their handicap. In practically every country in which the Red Cross is operating the text book has become the recognized health authority in thousands of homes.

General Wood and Governor Forbes are said to have found that majority sentiment in the Philippines is in favor of independence under an American protectorate. The Philippines should remain an American possession, or entirely cut adrift. The United States cannot accept responsibility so far away from home, without authority. The people of the Philippines assuming that their desires in the matter are determinative, should be asked to make a decision between American sovereignty and complete American withdrawal from the islands, not between protection under American control and protection under complete self-government.

A DATE WITH THE SKY

BY BADGER CLARK

I've got a date with the sky today; The sun's got into my veins. I'll slip my halter and leave my hay, For my soul on its tie-rope strains And won't stand hitched in the stuffy stalls— Oh, the high blue roof of the canon walls And the wide blue tent of the plains! Soul, come on! Let's lope and play I've got a date with the sky today. I love all men and respect their starch I've never mope and pine Alone out under the wide blue arch, Away from their pride—and mine. I love all women, they're glorious, But fiddledeedee! how they fuss and fuss In their own sweet, pestering line! World and women, go 'way, go 'way! I've got a date with the sky today. Up yellow east with the dawn I'll run Round the haze rims I'll scout, Trail the old Aztec into the sun Or ride on a storm's gray snout. Feet on the earth but my heart 'way high, For a whole grand day I'm going to die— Stay dead till the stars come out— Free in one breath to laugh and pray. I've got a date with the sky today. —July Sunset.

Health Lessons in China

PRIZE TOBACCO ESSAY RECEIVES HIGH SCORE

The following prize essay by Wm. McAllister won first place in the local W. C. T. U. contest conducted at Union High school and has received a high score by the state committee, but its standing in relation to other essays in the state contest has not been announced.

The writer, who assumed the illustrious pen name of "Rudyard Kipling", is a sophomore at Union High and was one of the debating team this year and active in this kind of work.

Laws are made against abuses. There are no laws which are made against things that are just and beneficial. If there were no abuses there would be no laws but as long as men abuse their neighbors and tread on the rights of others there must be laws. The Ten Commandments, the great laws of the Hebrews, were made against evils which are common today. "Thou shall not kill," and "Thou shall not steal," are contained in some form in the laws of all civilized countries on the earth today. The laws are to correct and control wrongs of society. There are laws to control business, to protect the public from graft and fraud. There are laws to protect the freedom of religion so that all men may worship as they please. But most laws are made for the protection of society and are made in the interest of the people.

The people make the laws, although indirectly and if an evil becomes common they will immediately demand a law to protect them. For instance, think of the situation of alcohol and intoxicating liquors. This has existed in some form since the world was made. The people have been realizing more and more in late years the great harm this has done to humanity and the people in the United States have abolished this curse from their land.

Tobacco is another evil which has been secretly degrading and harming the people for nearly a century and a half. The people are beginning to realize the serious injuries done by this vile weed to them personally and to the country at large. Some proof of this awakening is shown by the laws which some states and cities have passed to protect the young men and boys from the harms inflicted by the smoking of tobacco in any form.

Some experiments have been made which show without doubt the harmful influence of smoking and prove that we should have legislation to do away with this evil. One of these conducted by Dr. J. Fisher and Elmer Berry show how tobacco affects the marksmanship.

A group of young men are out on the rifle range. These young men are interested in finding out whether smoking will make any difference with their ability to shoot straight. On the first day they did not smoke any cigarettes. Their average score was 39 1/2 per cent. On the second day each man smoked two cigarettes before shooting. On this day their score fell to 30 per cent. This shows that in occupations where skill and steadiness are required, smoking tends to destroy the accuracy.

An experiment conducted by the same men shows that smoking reduces a baseball pitcher's ability. Eleven men each pitched ten balls at a target. Then they spent half an hour smoking cigars. Then they pitched ten more balls apiece. Before smoking the average score was 31.2 per cent; after smoking only 27.7 per cent. This shows a loss of 3.5 per cent. When they smoked two cigars in the interval they lost 5.1 per cent or about 1-7 of their accuracy. When there was no smoking their score showed a gain of 2.7 per cent.

A senior in high school made a research which shows the effect of smoking on school work. He examined the records in the principal's office and asked the boys in the school many questions. He found that there were three classes of boys. First, those who had never taken up smoking; second, those who had smoked more or less but had given it up; third, those who were habitual smokers. The average percentage during the entire time they had been in school was as follows:

Non-smokers ..... 83 per cent
Non-smoking smokers ..... 79 per cent
Smokers ..... 76 per cent

The ten boys in school having the highest rank averaged 90.2 per cent in grades and not one of them used tobacco. The ten smokers having the highest rank could only show an average of 78.9 per cent.

These experiments show that we should have laws to protect the boys and men from the harmful effects of tobacco smoking.

The government of Oregon has awakened to the harm being caused to its young boys by tobacco and has passed a law to protect them. The chief provisions of this act states, First, that it shall be unlawful for any person or corporation to sell or give cigarettes to a minor. Second, that any person violating any provision of this act shall be punished by a fine of not more than $100 for the first offense and a fine of not more than $500 nor less than $25 for the second offense or by imprisonment in the county jail for not more than 30 days. Third, it shall be a misdemeanor for any minor to smoke, or be in possession of any cigarettes in this state. Fourth, it shall be a misdemeanor for any proprietor, clerk, assistant or employee of any place of business to permit minors to frequent said place while using or smoking any cigarette. Fifth, any minor using or being in possession of any cigarette, or any officer of the parent, teacher, or any being asked by the law to tell where or from whom such cigarette was obtained, who shall refuse to furnish such information, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor and shall be punished by a fine of not more than $5 for each offense. Sixth, it shall be unlawful for any person to solicit, take, or receive from any minor person within this state any order for any cigarette, or make any contract for the sale of any cigarette to any minor.

These are the chief provisions of the present Oregon tobacco law but we look forward to the time when more drastic measures will be enacted which will protect the people even more from the effects of this evil drug. Since tobacco does the most harm to young men and boys, a law providing that tobacco shall not be sold to persons under 30 years of age would be a very great improvement on the present law. A law limiting the use of tobacco to a certain quantity also would be very good, but the best law which could possibly be enacted would be the absolute abolition of all forms of tobacco.

There are many societies which have been formed to make a fight against the tobacco laws and to try and get those laws repealed. One of these, The Allied Tobacco League is making a hard fight to get the tobacco law of Baltimore, Maryland repealed. This law prohibits the sale of tobacco in any form on Sunday. This league has taken a very sly method of fighting this law. A piece from the "Tobacco Leaf" states: "Not a cigar could be bought in the city and every drug, confectionery, and cigar store complied with the law. Between the lines of it all; there is the general hope that by a rigid enforcement of the law this city may gradually become a wide open one and this will happen just as soon as Baltimore is made to realize that the antiquated laws of yesterday seriously interfere with their happiness." We sincerely hope that the people of this city will not be duped by the cleverly laid plan but will show the tobacco manufacturers that they would rather give up this degrading luxury than repeal a law which they know is for their good.

There are also many organizations which realize the harm done by tobacco and are working to make this a better country. The government of the United States owes much to these organizations. We hope that the organizations will be rewarded for their perseverance by seeing tobacco abolished forever from our land.

—Rudyard Kipling.

Deviled Eggs with Cheese
Deviled eggs are very much improved by the use of cream of Neufchatel cheese, mixed with egg yolk. The cheese prevents the crumbling of the yolk, as is usually the case with deviled eggs. Beat the eggs slightly mix them with the other ingredients and cook over a very slow fire, stirring constantly so as to melt the cheese by the time the eggs are cooked.

Baked Eggs with Cheese
Four eggs, 2 or 3 cheeses (from two-thirds to one cup), 1 cup fine, soft, stale bread crumbs, 1/4 teaspoon salt, a few grains of cayenne pepper. Break the eggs into a buttered baking dish or into ramekins and cook in a hot oven until they begin to turn white around the edges. Cover the mixture with crumbs, cheese and seasoning. Brown in a very hot oven so that the cheese is browned without the eggs being cooked too much. White sauce may be put over the eggs before the cheese mixture is added.
