

FORDSON TRACTOR IS DEMONSTRATED

The Fordson tractor demonstration on the Cleveland Bliss farm, being conducted by Raker & Son and the Portland Ford dealers is making the place a great mecca for farmers and the crowd is constantly on the go, seeing many different duties the tractor will perform on the farm. The demonstration bears great resemblance to a three-ring circus. With each operation the many advantages are pointed out wherein certain tractor implements are better than others and why the tractor can do the work more economically and better than horses, and faster.

This morning one of the 26 tractors dug potatoes that were planted last night. Immediately after another tractor pulled a potato planter over the field and replanted it, with imaginary potatoes, the same variety as those dug but a few minutes before.

Other labor performed by the machines is: manure spreading, mowing, supplying the power to turn belt driven machinery, such as corn grinders, ensilage cutters, wood saws, stump pullers, road graders, and spraying machines. The inference is gathered from the program that the Fordson also has something to do with serving or eating the lunch.

All of the well known oils are used in lubricating the tractors and each iron horse carries a sign stating the kind of oil it is burning.

There are 26 (count 'em) tractors on the ground and 50 different pieces of farm machinery which can be operated by tractors on the farm and each is given a workout daily. Besides the tractor machinery are others of interest to all who are not reached by city conveniences.

The demonstration, which is by far the largest ever staged in this territory, commenced Monday and will continue until Saturday, August 5. It is of interest to all farmers and a day spent there will be well worth while. It is free to all and all are invited.

On the last three days Raker & Son, local Fordson dealers, will be in charge and will have their force of salesmen on the grounds to assist in the demonstrating of the many machines.

By the end of the week a piece of land will have been cleared, the timber sawed into lumber, the stumps pulled and the land broken and prepared for seeding.

GRESHAM FOLK CLIMB LARCH MOUNTAIN

A truck load of Gresham people hiked to the top of Larch mountain last Saturday night, arriving at the summit just in time to see the magnificent spectacle of the sun rising over the range to the east. The entire climb was made in the dark with flash lights to guide them. Each hiker carried a blanket roll and a part of the food supplies and for the last mile and a half drinking water was carried.

After a rest around the camp fire and a hearty breakfast a few hours were spent in games and sports. An amusing feature was a mock wedding. The happy young people, if reports are true were Will Sullivan and Jeanette O'Brien, fresh from the emerald isle. The bride is said to have carried a wonderful arm bouquet of fern and mountain weeds. Walter Graham, who acted as the officiating clergyman, found it necessary to carry the bride up the outlook tower in order to collect his fee.

The members of the party were Mrs. L. L. Hiatt and daughter, Edith, Mrs. H. J. Pulifer, and daughter, Letitia, Mrs. A. Hevel and daughter, Vivian, Helen Wostell, Oral Sweek, Esther Peterson, Percy Pulifer, Walter Graham, Joe Casper, Ross and Charlie Brown. The crowd was taken to Multnomah Falls by Burton Walrad and Joe Peak, who went farther up the highway and called for them on Sunday evening.

To Identify Oregon Wheat.
Specimens of more than 300 varieties of wheat are being sent by the farm crops department to W. C. Clark, head of the department of cereal investigation in Washington, D. C., for standardization in name and classification. The same varieties of wheat have been grown in different parts of the United States under many different names. Mr. Clark will endeavor to give a standard name and classification to each variety. Of the 300 varieties of wheat to be sent, only 125 are accurately named. These are all grown on the college farm under the supervision of the experiment station.

A display of grains, grasses, and legumes is being prepared for exhibition at the Oregon building in Portland by the O. A. C. farm crops department.

MOST PERFECT WOMAN ATHLETE

"Most perfect," said the judges when they picked Miss Gertrude Artlet from among the 2,000 contestants at the Gymnastic Union tournament in Chicago. Miss Artlet is five feet ten and one-half inches tall and weighs 160 pounds. She has the strength and endurance of a man, while her figure retains the feminine beauty and grace. Miss Artlet is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Artlet of Philadelphia and was a member of the Olympic swimming team.

WEDDING BELLS RING FOR ROSS E. READ

A wedding of interest to many in this community was solemnized in Portland on last Sunday when Ross E. Read of the Outlook composing force and Miss La Verne E. Reel of Portland were united in marriage by the Rev. Norman F. Johnson, pastor of the East Side Christian church. The ceremony was read at noon at the close of the morning service.

Miss Cora Reel, sister of the bride and Clifford Read, brother of the groom, attended the young couple. Miss Ethel Mathes sang and Mrs. S. J. Eddy played Mendelssohn's Wedding March.

The bride was gowned in white organdie and carried bride's roses and white sweet peas. The bridesmaid wore a gown of pink organdie and carried pink sweet peas. Following the ceremony an informal reception was held at the home of the groom's parents, Mr. and Mrs. V. H. Read, for the near relatives, after which dinner was served.

Mr. and Mrs. Read have gone to housekeeping in their new home at East 50th street and 45th avenue S. E.

Gresham people who attended the wedding were the Misses Emma B. Johnson and Thelma Metzger of the Outlook force.

Gospel Meetings at Grange Hall.

The Gospel meetings being conducted at the Grange hall by W. R. Ruddock of Los Angeles, California are giving evidence of former interest. The evening meetings begin at 8 o'clock. The subjects for the balance of the week are as follows:

Tuesday, "God's three appointments."

Wednesday, "The four appearances of Christ."

Thursday, "The sin that will condemn the world."

Friday, "Why the law never did nor ever can save the world."

Ryder L. Cormany, a grocer of Portland, was in Gresham Monday looking over the grocery business here. He is looking for a new location and seems to be pleased with the outlook in our city.

Cure for Reckless Drivers

As a warning to reckless drivers, the board of trade of Goshen, N. Y., has erected large signs on each side of the Otterkill bridge, where many accidents have occurred. The signs bear the following inscription: "Private cemetery across the bridge for reckless drivers."

GRANGERS TO THROG GRESHAM ON SATURDAY; 7TH ANNUAL FIELD DAY

When the farmers and grangers of Multnomah county make up their minds to have a good time they generally leave an impression of that "grand and glorious feeling" in the community. This feeling begins to permeate the consciousness of everybody long in advance of the actual occasion and reaches its climax about six o'clock on "field day," when the winners of the sporting events are able to show the trophies of their prowess and skill. It is true that the losers sometimes feel that a "feller needed a friend," but they quickly make up their minds to be on hand next time better prepared to carry off the prizes.

Field day this year will come next Saturday at the county fair grounds and will be in keeping with the traditions of the grange that every program is educational. No pains are spared to make the occasion one of intense interest to everyone—when the word "everyone" is used it means just that. All are invited, whether grangers, farmers or the city dwellers who would like to know how the farmers and grangers disport themselves on gala occasions.

The program for next Saturday is given herewith, and is exceptionally good—just as all of them are. The two principal speakers of the day are prominent men of Oregon and both are well known. Professor Reed, of the Agricultural College is in deep sympathy with the problems of the farmer, and Hon. Milton A. Miller, Oregon's collector of internal revenue is so well known that his name only needs to be mentioned to guarantee a rare forensic treat. C. W. Miller, the community song leader engaged for the occasion, is new to most people in the country but he will be entertaining to the full limit.

The invocation, without which the grangers never attempt to do anything, will be given by T. R. A. Sellwood, chaplain of the Oregon State Grange. Mr. Sellwood is a member of the old pioneer family by that name, a lay minister of the Episcopal church in charge of the Milwaukie pastorate. He is 77 years of age, honored in his church, the grange and the community in which he lives.

K. A. Miller, mayor of Gresham, will welcome the farmers and all others to the gathering. He is too well known to need further mention and will do honor to the occasion because he, too, is a granger.

The sporting events will be in charge of T. P. Campbell a member of Pleasant Valley grange. His relay racers have won the Staples cup for three successive times and he is working hard to carry away the trophy on this occasion. It is up to the others to see that he loses it this time and there are others in training under the leadership of S. B. Hall who are going to give Mr. Campbell's sprinters a hard rub. It is free for all the best foot racers in the county.

The Schanno confectionery will have the refreshment stand on the fair grounds and will be prepared to serve everything needed, including hot coffee and Weatherly ice cream. The business houses of Gresham have been liberal in donating prizes for the sporting events, the two banks in particular having pledged cash prizes to be entered with savings accounts for the winners in their classes. Altogether the occasion promises to be in keeping with the preceding ones in everything that goes to make up a most enjoyable day, such as only the grange and its friends can provide for the entertainment of all. Everyone is welcome and all are expected to attend.

NATHAN BICKFORD DIES AT ARMY HOSPITAL

Nathan Bickford, son of Mr. and Mrs. N. H. Bickford of Boring, passed away in the government hospital on Friday, July 22, at Camp Kearney from tuberculosis contracted during service in France. He was broken in health on his return from overseas and has never rallied.

His sister, Mrs. Mary Johnson, was with him when death came and his mother had recently visited him and had returned to her home.

Nathan was born in Nelson, Nebraska, 26 years ago. He came with the family to Boring in 1905. He is survived by three sisters, Mrs. W. A. Miller, Mrs. Mary Johnson and Miss Helen Bickford, all of Boring, two brothers, Harry of Boring and John of Toledo, Washington.

The funeral services were held this afternoon at the Methodist church at Pleasant Home, the Rev. Earl B. Cotton officiating.

PET HEN GOES WAY OF ALL THE EARTH

"Biddy," John Hillyard's black Minorea hen, which has been a most unusual pet, died recently at the age of eight years, extreme old age for a hen. Her formerly black plumage had turned white with age.

"BEHOLD THE MAN" GIVEN IN GRESHAM

Gresham theater goers were given an opportunity to see one of the really great films of the day on last Saturday and Sunday, when "Behold the Man" was shown in the local show house. In addition to the splendid picture, appropriate music was played and solos were sung by Miss Gertrude Alexander and Hal Bishop.

Manager H. W. Adrian is to be commended for securing this film which is running in all the large cities and is received with great interest and profit because of the beautiful way in which it portrays the story of the Christ.

The educational and scientific films were in keeping with the main feature and nothing entered in to detract from the subject.

Automobile Accident at Fairview

Another accident occurred at the intersection of the Fairview road and Sandy boulevard on Friday evening, when two machines collided at the intersection. Roy Henry of Portland was thrown from the car and slightly injured. Mr. Henry was riding in a car driven by G. P. Kraus of Berkeley, California. C. I. Armstrong, of Portland, whose car struck the side of the other car, was uninjured.

A. E. F. WANTS CARPENTIER BOUT

Bob Martin, of Akron, O., did not quit fighting when the war was over. Having won the A. E. F. heavyweight championship, he kept right on going and his knockout of the veteran Frank Moran in New York the other night stamped him as a championship contender. Critics think he should be given the next chance at Carpentier, and Martin is willing.

DEMENTED WOMAN TRIES TO ESCAPE TO PORTLAND

Miss Isabel Kale of Portland escaped from the Hengstler home where she was being cared for and wandered around for several hours before she was located at the home of Mr. and Mrs. George W. Kenney, where she had taken a room for the night.

Miss Kale came to the cannery camp about two weeks ago to secure work but had not been able to do anything. She was cared for by Miss Grace Patterson of the camp until last Friday when she underwent an operation for the removal of her tonsils and was being cared for at the home of Mrs. Hengstler. On Saturday afternoon she showed signs of being mentally unbalanced and during the evening she escaped from the house. Late in the evening she applied for a room at the Kenney home, which was given her. She told them that she was trying to find the Y. W. C. A. in Portland. Later in the night when it became evident that the woman was seriously ill Dr. Adix was called, who placed her under the care of a nurse.

SALARIES OF OREGON TEACHERS INADEQUATE

Although there are approximately 6000 public school teachers in the state of Oregon, only 30 of them receive annual salaries of $3000 or more, according to figures brought out during the summer term of the University of Oregon. There are 24 teaching positions carrying salaries between $2500 and $3000 a year. School room jobs throughout the state with a compensation ranging between $2000 and $2500 a year number only 240. These figures include Portland. All the rest of the thousands of teachers, including hundreds of superintendents, principals, and supervisors, receive less than $2000 a year for their services, though large numbers of them have spent four years in a university, college or normal school.

Several superintendents in attendance at the University summer term from the larger towns of the state report difficulty in completing their staffs for next year. There is still a shortage of teachers, they say. The number of calls coming in to the appointment bureau of the university further confirm this report of a teacher scarcity.

While 50 per cent of those receiving the top-notch salaries of $3000 or more are graduates or former students of the University of Oregon, their compensation does not equal that of alumni of the university who have spent a like number of years in other professions.

Portland Man Sought Here.

Mrs. William B. Jameson is seeking for information concerning her husband who disappeared from Portland on July 13. He is described as 48 years of age, six feet two inches in height and weight 200 pounds. He has ruddy complexion, blue eyes, dark brown hair touched with grey. He wore blue chevrolet suit, straw hat, black lace shoes, striped cotton shirt, stiff collar and white wash tie.

Mrs. Jameson is offering a reward of $100 for information leading to his capture.

Later

W. B. Jameson was found early this morning near his home in Portland. He was apparently ill and suffering from a severe nervous breakdown. He told the officers he had lost his money and was of no further use at home, so he left. He will probably be placed in a sanitarium until he regains his health.

ORPHAN CHILDREN TOURING THE STATE

An attraction of unusual interest on the streets of Gresham is the "family" of Dad and Mother Draper of the Children's Home of Des Moines, Washington. The 16-piece band of the family gave several concerts on the street on Sunday evening and Monday morning. A number of the children were so small that it was a surprise that they could play any music at all and one little girl eight years of age, but extremely small for her age, played the cornet with the skill and grace of a much older musician.

Twenty-three children from the home, Dad and Mother Draper and "Aunt Lou" made up the party in addition to one or two young men who are driving cars. They camped over Sunday night at the auto camp on the fair grounds, which they said was a most interesting place. They are out for the summer "seeing things," and will give entertainments in towns where suitable arrangements can be made for the benefit of the home. It is likely that they will appear here before the summer is over. It is the expectation to go to Eugene, and other southern Oregon cities and to visit the ocean beaches. The object of these trips is two-fold, to gain information from travel and to arouse interest in the home, which is a private enterprise, supported entirely by the efforts of those in charge and by gifts from friends and organizations interested.

H. M. Draper, superintendent of the home, is an old music teacher and believes that the study of music should enter into the education of every child. He has consequently organized the children into a band and trains them to play wonderfully well for their years. They are trained in vocal music also.

The home is situated on Puget Sound midway between Seattle and Tacoma. It has been in operation for about 13 years and has cared for more than 200 children. This would be a small number for a home-finding institution but this is different. It is a home and children are taught to work and play and when they come to young manhood and young womanhood they go out into the world just like the children of any home to make their own way or to found homes of their own. They attend the public school and are said to be above the average in mentality and in their grasp of school subjects. One girl of the home led the eighth grade in scholarship at the close of the last school year.

The girls are trained in the arts of home making and the boys are taught to help in many ways about the home. They publish a small monthly paper entirely by their own efforts and make garden and care for the grounds.

OVERSEAS VETERAN VISITS FRIENDS HERE

Elmer Phelps, a former resident of Gresham and an overseas veteran, visited friends in Gresham over the week end. Mr. Phelps was a member of an engineering outfit and was one of the survivors of the Tuscania. After being cared for in Ireland and England he finally joined his regiment in France, where an accident caused the loss of a part of his foot. He was sent home and given hospital treatment but has undergone several operations for the removal of diseased bone and it is reported that he will again have several inches taken from his limb. He is being cared for at the government hospital at Port Townsend.

RED CROSS NURSES HEROINES OF PUEBLO

If Pueblo rebuilt ever erects a Hall of Fame to commemorate its salvation from flood, fire and pestilence, high on the roster of her benefactors will shine the names of 37 Red Cross nurses.

On the sites of the improvised relief stations and hospitals scattered through this Colorado city bronze tablets may perhaps at some future time record the high-water marks of humanitarian service and professional zeal, manifested by the nurses who ministered there in fire stations, libraries, schools and similar emergency relief places. Among the scenes of these ministrations were the McClellan library, the McClellan orphanage, the Central high school, Bessemer and Fountain schools, the Santa Fe depot, the Mineral Palace and all fire stations.

Every one of these 37 nurses went as a volunteer, although after their first week of arduous service they were put on the Red Cross pay roll. Miss Ethel G. Pinder, director of Red Cross Nursing Service for the Southwestern Division, who was in charge, describes their spirit as "splendid."
