

Fordson

It is a habit of Henry Ford to thoroughly try out and test any product he manufactures before he puts it on the market. He personally must know it will do all he wants it to do before he will allow anybody else to buy it. For thirty-five years he worked on this Fordson Tractor. He kept buying land until he had something like eight thousand acres in order that he might get a great variety of soil conditions containing the plowing problems that meet the farmers of the world, and then the Fordson Tractor was put to work and made to take all sorts of practical tests for years before Mr. Ford put it on the market.

It has sold rapidly because when one farmer bought one, he practically converted the neighborhood to the desirability and profit of the Fordson Tractor on the farm.

Don't delay because there are only so many Fordson Tractors to come to this territory. Get your order now, and remember that the Fordson after service is prompt and sure. We are supplied with everything necessary to keep your Fordson going every day in the year. Come in and let's talk it over.

SIMPLE HARVEST MEALS ARE MOST SATISFACTORY

Let the harvest dinner consist of simple, well cooked food, instead of many rich dishes, suggests Miss Emma S. Weld, instructor in household are at Oregon Agricultural College. The chief fault of the ordinary harvest meal lies in its being too elaborate. There is a limit to the amount of food that a man can eat, especially in hot weather when doing heavy work.

The typical bill of fare might consist of a pot roast which can be used in a meat pie the second day, browned potatoes, a fresh vegetable and a cooked one, some kind of refreshment, plenty of bread and butter, and a simple dessert such as bread pudding or green apple pie.

"The main advantage of such a menu is that it can be prepared earlier in the day, or even the day before," says Miss Weld. "Methods of serving should be simple, and hot food should be served hot, and cold food cold. The dining room should be neat, tidy, cool, and well screened."

Fresh fruit should be served whenever in season as it is easy to prepare and forms a good dessert. Fowls culled from the chicken flock may be used instead of other meat which would have to be purchased.

A pressure cooker which can be used both in cooking harvest meals and canning more than pays for itself in the saving of fuel and energy. It cooks a meal in half the time that is required with an ordinary stove.

that you will use in your new home is merely incidental. The point is — BUILD NOW!

Are you using the argument "that you'll build WHEN PRICES COME DOWN?"

If so, then it is time to bury that moth-eaten phrase and get busy, because prices ARE down. They are down as low as they are going to be for many moons.

Do you know that America today is in immediate need of two millions houses and homes? Do you know that prices are as low as actual cost production, based upon readjusted wage scales will permit?

If you know these things—then you are of the thinking persons or families which are going ahead with building.

Fundamental Resources

Oregon is endowed by nature with many soils and many resources. She is fundamentally sound in her institutions and firmly entrenched in her possession of the basic essentials of life and happiness. From her mountains and plains, her forests and sea coast, spring those things that are needed by the world. Prosperity, like the tide rises and ebbs, but the wealth of this state is the wealth that endures and cannot be long depreciated by surface influences. This bank has dealt for 15 years with those engaged in developing the fundamental resources of the state, and has confidence in the strength of the land and the enterprise of her people.
