

S. S. WORKERS WILL HEAR PROGRAM

Rev. A. J. Ware, pastor of the Baptist church at Pleasant Home, has announced that he will speak on the subject, 'Fishers of Men', at the morning session of the district Sunday school association which will meet at the Baptist church Sunday, October 23.

There will be two sessions of the convention, one in the morning at about 11:20, at which time Rev. Mr. Ware will deliver the message about the importance of young people's work.

There will be a picnic dinner at noon and everyone should plan to join in the dinner hour and the spirit of fellowship which characterizes this social part of the program.

The afternoon program will commence about 2 p. m. and there will be two speakers in the afternoon, Rev. H. R. Gebhardt, pastor of the Zion Evangelical church in Gresham, and Dr. J. T. Abbott, a well known Sunday school worker. The former will speak on the problems of securing better trained teachers in the Sunday school. He will deal with methods for workers who are already in the Sunday school work and who are anxious to improve their methods and increase their knowledge. Dr. Abbott will speak on "Boys and Girls, the Hope of the World."

The orchestra of the Powell Valley church and the Luther League of the Lutheran church have promised to give some special musical numbers and the Sandy Sunday school will send a musical number but it has not been announced just what it will be, probably a solo.

Miss Georgia Parker, acting president of the state Sunday school association and a specialist with children, has promised to come out and take charge of the children's work during the session. Miss Parker will lead the children in some dramatization work.

The election of officers and the regular business session will be held at this meeting but a definite program regarding the order of events has not yet been announced.

Sunday school workers from any of the nearby Sunday schools are invited to attend the session. The Pleasant Home Methodist and Baptist Sunday schools and the Cottrell community Sunday school already belong to the association.

GREEN KENNELS MAKES DISPLAY IN PORTLAND

Mrs. Bertha Green, of the Green Kennels, located a mile and a half north of Gresham, has placed some of her valuable dogs on exhibit this week in a show window of the Meier & Frank store in Portland. There are Great Danes with puppies and Police Dogs with puppies and altogether they are a lively lot. The Great Danes are so large and powerful many will think it fortunate they can view them behind heavy plate glass. The police dogs are very attractive and among the most useful.

The puppies of both breeds are darling little fellows you'll want to snuggle up in your arms.

Mrs. Green is a well known horse and dog trainer and has taught her dogs to do many wonderful tricks, such as closing the doors, opening the gate, putting the baby (doll) to bed, and others. Cleopatra, one of her Great Danes, a while ago gave the alarm when fire started in the house and saved the place from destruction.

A feature of the display are two poems written by H. L. St. Clair for the occasion. They recite the characteristics and accomplishments of the dogs.

REFORMATION DAY WILL BE OBSERVED

Reformation Day will be observed at the Zion Evangelical church Sunday morning. Preaching in the German language at 11:30 a. m. followed by the Lord's Supper. An offering for the educational institutions of the church will also be received. The Sunday school will convene at 10:30 a. m. At 8 p. m. the Young People's League will meet with Louise Hemrich as leader. The topic for the evening is "What we know about God."

John Oliver announces the opening of a violin studio in Gresham located at the home of D. M. Roberts, Second and Roberts avenue. Teaching every Wednesday p. m., beginning October 26. Mr. Oliver is an experienced violinist and teacher and promises dependable instructions.

TEACHERS' RECEPTION FINE SOCIAL OCCASION

The reception given at the library on Wednesday evening in honor of the teachers of the schools by various organizations was a splendid social occasion which was enjoyed by a large number of people. Nearly all of the 23 teachers of the two schools were present in the receiving line and since many of them are teaching here for the first time it was especially fitting that the patrons be given this opportunity to meet them.

Addresses of welcome were given by Mayor Karl A. Miller and W. C. Lawrence, chairman of the union high school board, and a number of pleasing musical numbers were rendered. After the program the crowd was divided into four groups according to the birth month and each group was required to put on a stunt. Some very amusing charades were acted as a result.

The library proves to be an ideal place for community meetings and it is hoped that many more such gatherings may be held there during the winter.

CLACKAMAS COUNTY TEACHERS TO CONVENE

A tentative program for the Clackamas county teachers' institute to be held November 2, 3 and 4 in Oregon City has been prepared by Superintendent Vedder of that county. Work in eight departments will be included—primary, intermediate, advanced, high school, penmanship, physical training club work and public health.

Lecturers and others who will participate include: J. A. Churchill, state superintendent of public instruction; S. S. Duncan, Yamhill county superintendent; E. D. Ressler, dean of vocational education, Oregon Agricultural College; Robert F. Clark, president of Pacific University; F. L. Stetson, University of Oregon, and Miss Katherine Arbutnot, Oregon Normal school.

Teachers of the Cottrell, Boring, Kelso, Sandy and Damascus schools are interested in this program which they are required to attend and others interested in school work and problems may be interested in these well known speakers.

GOOD LITERATURE DAY AT METHODIST CHURCH

Next Sunday will be Good Literature Sunday throughout the church. What you put into your mind through your reading determines the kind of thinking you do, which in turn decides what your actions are to be.

The subject of the morning sermon by the pastor, Rev. A. S. Hisey, will be "Building Kingdom Morale." His subject in the evening will be "Profit and Loss."

The church choir will be prepared to furnish some good music for both services. The musical part of all the church will receive special attention throughout the year. Congregational singing will be a prominent part of every service.

The Epworth League topic will be "Two Things We Know About God." The League will meet at 6:30 p. m. All church services in the evening will begin at 7:30.

Livestock Show Opens Soon.

The Outlook is in receipt of the preliminary classification of the Eleventh Annual Pacific International Live Stock Exposition which will be held at North Portland from November 5 to 12, inclusive.

Many local people are interested in this show and local stock men are planning to enter exhibits. The prizes are very much worth while and the competition is such that the championship from this exposition means much to the breeder of fine stock.

Multnomah county people should plan to attend.

FIRST EDITION ARGUS PROVES INTERESTING

The first copy of the Argus came from the mimeograph press at union high this week and is an eight-page paper of good appearance. An editorial says that 188 copies of the first edition had been sold at 15 cents. Also that as soon as the student council could consider the cost of the paper, the price for the remainder of the year would be announced.

The paper carries the names of the school board members, the names of the faculty, student body officers and the officers of the various classes. The paper also gives a list of the alumni who are attending various colleges.

School news of various sorts fill the pages and make the paper a very worth while edition, a school enterprise that should be encouraged.

FALL TRAINING PREVENTS DIEBACK IN BERRY VINES

Local berry growers are interested in the conditions in the Willamette valley where dieback of the logan berry vines has been much in evidence. So many appeals were sent to the Oregon Agricultural College concerning the trouble that special work on the problem was taken up by Dr. S. M. Zeller of the experiment station.

It was first thought that the dieback was caused by the action of a fungous disease. In making a thorough study of the situation Dr. Zeller has learned that die-back was prevalent only in those yards where the vines had been allowed to remain on the ground throughout the winter. Where the canes had been trained up in the fall the vines were in a very healthy condition and dieback was almost entirely absent.

The contrast was very apparent in adjoining portions of the same yard where a part of the canes had been trained in the fall and the rest allowed to remain on the ground till spring. Other care was the same.

The local growers have not been practicing the tying up their logan-berry vines in the fall and the condition prevalent in the Willamette valley has not been noticed to any extent here. Berry growers who have been troubled with die-back on their vines will do well to train their logans in the fall. There is some danger of losing a crop during an especially severe winter like the one of 1919, but one grower has stated that he could lose every fifth crop entirely and still make money by training his vines in the fall.

An article by Dr. Zeller in the October number of the "Oregon Grower" on training logans in the fall will be of interest to every grower from the standpoint of increased returns from fall training of the vines.

MRS. L. L. GIESE DIES AT RAINIER

Word has been received here of the death of Mrs. L. L. Giese in Rainier, Oregon, on Wednesday morning. Mrs. Giese was the daughter of Mrs. Fannie Roman, a resident of Pleasant Valley. She was a sister of Mrs. L. L. Kesterson and a niece by marriage of Mr. and Mrs. Percy Giese.

The funeral services were held at Rainier this afternoon (Friday) and the burial services were conducted at that place. Relatives and friends from Pleasant Valley attended the services.

Mrs. Giese, as Miss Winifred Roman, was a well known teacher and formerly taught in the Pleasant Valley schools. She was a young woman probably not yet 30 years of age and friends regret her early passing from this life.

"The Devil" will be at Gresham Theater Saturday and Sunday, October 22-23. "The Devil" is a forceful creation, beautified by luxurious sets, produced with exquisite harmony, and enacted by the greatest exponent of dramatic art. "They took their pleasure, I am collecting in Pain." A most unusual production.

FORMER TEACHER WEDS PORTLAND DENTIST

A wedding of interest to a number of people in this vicinity occurred in Portland Wednesday evening when Miss Frances Lelia Turner became the bride of Dr. August Miller at a pretty wedding at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. N. E. Turner. Only near relatives and a few intimate friends witnessed the ceremony which occurred at 8:30. Rev. F. A. Ginn, pastor of the Montavilla Methodist church officiated.

The bride was charming in a white satin dress with silver lace over-dress and long flowing tulle veil gracefully arranged with orange blossoms. She carried an arm bouquet of brides roses. Miss Edith Turner, sister of the bride, was the brides maid and Jack Phillips was the best man.

After the ceremony dainty refreshments were served and later the bride and groom were showered with rose leaves, rice and good wishes as they were leaving. They expect to spend a few days at Tillamook on their honeymoon after which they will return to Portland and enter their own home on 46th street.

Mrs. Miller was a former teacher in the Troutdale, Rockwood and Cedar schools and will be remembered in those districts. For the past few years she has been teaching in the Portland schools.

Dr. Miller is a dentist and well established in business in Portland.

Among those from this vicinity who attended the wedding were Mr. and Mrs. Robert Hauswirth and son of Gresham, Mr. and Mrs. I. T. Wood and daughters, Miss Mable Wood of Cedar, and Mrs. Alta Gentry of Powell Valley. The latter four have been friends of the bride's family throughout her life and Mr. Hauswirth is her uncle.

STOCK JUDGING TEAM TO SEE BIG FOOT BALL GAME

Miss Ethel I. Calkins, county leader; Alta Dahlhammar, Leslie Lynch and Grant McMillan, members of the Multnomah stock judging team, started today for Salem and Corvallis where they will spend the week-end visiting various stock farms and judging different classes of stock in preparation for the judging contest at the Pacific International Exposition.

The party has complimentary tickets to the first big foot ball game of the Pacific coast conference championship in which the "Fighting Aggies" of O. A. C., will battle with the "Sundogs" of the U. of W. This game holds the interest of foot ball fans throughout the coast and the local folk are considering themselves fortunate to have the opportunity of seeing it.

Champion Ewe at Live Stock Exposition

The Pacific International Live Stock Exposition which will be held at North Portland this year, November 5-12, will probably contain the largest sheep show in its history. Manager O. M. Plummer believes that there may be 1000 head. In view of the fact that all the fairs and shows in the Northwest this year are showing greatly increased sheep exhibits, his prophecy is apt to come true.

Western Oregon has long been famous for its middle wool sheep, and already this year notable winnings have been made by exhibits from this section at fairs and expositions throughout Canada and the eastern part of the United States.

Perhaps it was not altogether a fable about Jason adventuring his life in search of the golden fleece. While the wool growers of the Northwest have had a hard time since the war, the ultimate future of wool and mutton production is certain to be financially profitable. The day will come when no farm will be considered fully stocked without a small flock of sheep.

There is bound to be a great demand for breeding stock and the Pacific International will furnish an opportunity unequalled for securing foundation stock.

NEAR EAST RELIEF STATE CONFERENCE

"Under the shadow of Mt. Ararat I saw fourteen orphanages filled with beautiful, happy children saved from death by the Near East Relief. Because our orphanages are packed to the doors I saw hundreds of others in the streets of Erivan just outside these same orphanages' doors. The children inside were happy, those outside were aged from suffering, gaunt from hunger, naked or if they were clothed at all their gaunt and bloated little bodies were covered with the most unspeakable rags.

"I saw the splendid efforts being made to save these children and came back thrilled with the purpose to tell Oregon of the wonderful service given the stricken people of the Near East by our relief workers."

The above is part of the message brought by J. J. Handsaker, state director, of the Near East Relief to the state conference at Portland on Saturday, October 15.

Another speaker at the conference was Miss Margaret Reid, of Portland, who for two years was in charge of an orphanage of 375 children. She urged that the people of the Near East if given protection and safety would not require help; they want not charity but a chance, she said.

Dr. W. E. Doughty, of New York, who accompanied Mr. Handsaker on his tour of the Near East this summer, pictured a group of 12,000 children at Alexandropol where Mrs. Ethel Long Newman, of Corvallis, has recently been stationed as a relief worker.

Governor Ben W. Olcott presided at the noon luncheon and was presented by Mayor Baker, of Portland, with a $10,000 check from the Portland Community Chest, a part of Portland's $65,000 contribution.

State Director Handsaker announced a program calling for the collection of food, clothing and funds from every county with a special emphasis on the Christmas offering from Sunday schools.

PERSONAL EFFECTS ARE SENT TO OPAL WHITNEY

Three boxes, possibly containing some of the secrets of "The Story of Opal," were yesterday shipped from the University to Opal Whiteley in New York. These boxes have been stored for three years behind locked doors in the basement of Villard Hall. After Opal Whiteley became famous through her precocious diary in the Atlantic Monthly, and after critics began to assail the authenticity of the story which contained an astonishing denial of the writer's Oregon parents, the existence of these three containers at the university became known to those trying to solve the mysterious authorship of the remarkable childhood biography. But in spite of frequent importunities to make public the contents of the three soap boxes, which were heavy as if packed with notebooks and school texts, the seals remained unbroken and the lids were left undisturbed and inviolate just as they had been awkwardly and not all too securely nailed on, perhaps by the young writer herself.

Towards the last, however, this trust, which was kept with such scrupulous honor by the university for three years, was becoming embarrassing and it was with a general feeling of relief that the mailing department yesterday started the packages to Opal Whiteley in New York. Whether the boxes contained any memoranda, any rough notes or preliminary drafts, that would throw light on the subject of Opal's diary, no one will ever know. While she desired to have the boxes shipped to her, she seemed not at all panicky to be reminded by the university of the existence of the boxes which she had apparently forgotten. It is considered here that if she had recalled any contents that might prove disconcerting she would have shown more anxiety and more impatience to get them once more in her own possession.

"HOME TOWN" NEWS IS SOUGHT BY STUDENTS

The library of the University of Oregon receives 95 daily and weekly newspapers on the state. These are kept on file in a special room, which is daily crowded with students seeking "home town" news. No works of fiction, no magazines, can compare in popularity with what the Oregon editors and reporters write. At the end of each year the papers are bound and kept permanently on file in the library. In many instances scholars engaged in research have found these big gray volumes of great value.

REV. J. LARSON AND WIFE HONORED

Rev. and Mrs. John Larson of the Mission church in Powell Valley were very much surprised Thursday evening when from 150 to 200 persons gathered at the church supposedly to the regular prayer meeting but in reality to a party which was arranged in honor of the tenth wedding anniversary of Rev. and Mrs. Larson and the fact that they have been with the Mission church a year. During the year's time they have won the love and affection of their members and have won a large place for themselves in the community life.

Mr. and Mrs. Larson were taken to seats of honor and a program of musical numbers and addresses given. Speakers for the church membership, the young people, the Sunday school and the Ladies' Aid expressed their appreciation for the work of their pastor and his wife. At the close of the program two little flower girls, Dagmar Leidfors and Ruby Arvidson, carried baskets of flowers to Mr. and Mrs. Larson. Ruby presented a beautiful basket of flowers to Mrs. Larson while Dagmar gave Rev. Mr. Larson a basket of ferns. They were warned that there was something unusual about the contents and were advised to look to what was contained under the ferns which proved to be a more substantial remembrance of the occasion.

An elaborately decorated table was brought in with a cake bearing ten lighted candles. This table was placed in front of Rev. Mr. Larson and wife.

Refreshments were served to all and the party broke up at an early hour with many expressions of good wishes.

STAPLETON TO GIVE DECISION ON TEST CASE

Presiding Circuit Judge Stapleton was to pass on the legality of the Oregon state aid measure this afternoon or tomorrow, as required in a test case recently initiated by Thomas H. Boyd, commander of Portland post of the American Legion, for the purpose of getting a supreme court ruling which would facilitate the sale of bonds provided for in the law. The result of this case is of much interest to local ex-service men about 100 of whom have filed application for the cash bonus or loan, through the local American Legion organization who are handling the application blanks.

I. H. Van Winkle, attorney-general, and Willis S. Moore, assistant attorney-general, filed their answer yesterday to the Boyd suit in the Multnomah circuit court. Franklin F. Korell, attorney for Mr. Boyd, and Maurice E. Crumpacker, deputy district attorney, who will appear with Stanley Myers, district attorney, as friends of the court in the action, held a conference with Judge Stapleton later, in which the jurist promised to pass on the matter without unnecessary delay.

In the answer filed, the state of Oregon and the bonus commission contended that the objections to the law raised by the plaintiff were, technical, trivial and did not invalidate the legislation. It was conceded that entries in the legislative journals were slightly irregular, but it was held that they were sufficient. The fact that a viva voce vote instead of a ballot by yeas and nays was taken in the house is not a valid objection, it also was alleged.

SANDY BOULEVARD TO BE REAL ROSEWAY

The Roseway dedication exercises celebrating the planting of three miles of Sandy boulevard on either side with rose bushes to be held at 2:30 o'clock next Sunday afternoon at the Rose City Park clubhouse in Portland, is to be filmed and shown throughout the world. Governor Olcott will speak at the exercises. Before the dedication there will be a parade, in which it is expected a large number of motor cars will take part and in which the Royal Rosarians will march.

A picturesque feature of the planting ceremony will be the appearance in native costume of little girls representing Austria, Sweden, Denmark, Japan, Norway, Peru, Spain, Armenia, Italy, the Netherlands, Great Britain, Finland, China, Belgium and France.
