

To Travel Heavenward

TO BE strong and true; to be generous in praise and appreciation of others; to impute worthy motives even to enemies; to give without expectation of return; to practice humility, tolerance and self-restraint; to make the best use of time and opportunity; to keep the mind pure and the judgment charitable; to extend intelligent sympathy to those in distress; to cultivate quietness and non-resistance; to speak little and listen much; to adhere always to a high standard of thought, purpose and conduct; to grow in grace, goodness and gratitude; to seek truth and righteousness; to work, love, pray and serve daily; to aspire greatly, labor cheerfully and take God at His word—this is to travel heavenward.—G. Kleiser in Y. M. C. C. Central.

BILLIONS AWAITING DEVELOPMENT.

Two outstanding facts come to us in the first report of the new governor of Alaska, the Hon. Scott Bone. He tells us in one paragraph that in our northern territory there is one hundred and fifty billions of dollars of wealth, which is, conservatively, just about the wealth of the whole United States today.

In another paragraph Mr. Bone cites the discouraging fact that the total population (civilized) of Alaska decreased 10,000 from 40,000 during the decade just ended. In other words, this vast country of six hundred thousand square miles—or nearly four hundred million acres—is occupied by only 30,000 people, or one to every 13,000 acres.

How can 30,000 people, no matter how energetic, develop a hundred and fifty millions of wealth?

Alaska needs people, good, stout, smart Americans who know what wealth is when they see it, and know how then to get it out.

Why don't some of the folks who insist on hunting new lands to conquer go where untold wealth is waiting for some one to take possession of it? The answer is that we all have settled notions about Alaska being fiercely cold. Yet Stefansson, the Iowa explorer, who has spent 14 years wandering around the arctic just north of Alaska, tells us that the 40-year old U. S. weather bureau at Cape Barrow, at the northern tip of Alaska, has never registered a temperature in all those years that went lower than about 50 degrees below zero. At the same time, millions of people live in American states and Canadian provinces, where the minimum thermometer readings have been 50 to 65, and even 75 degrees below zero.

GRESHAM LOCALS

Send in your orders early if you wish one or more of the big holiday issues of the Outlook. They would make a fine New Year's gift for your friends in the east.

Among the college students who are home for the holidays are Melvin Brugger, Glen Risher, Byard Miller, Anna Brugger, Gertrude Dowsett, Edella Towle, Gladys Neal and Virginia Curran of O. A. C. Helen and Harry Woodell and Josephine Townsend from U. of O. Mrs. Frank Wostell, who has been keeping house for Helen and Harry came home with them to spend the holidays.

Mrs. Matilda Jones and son Archie from Cottage Grove are visiting the former's sister, Mrs. J. T. Lewis, and other relatives.

The library will be open this evening (Tuesday) for all who wish to obtain books.

Edward Strong, who is a student at Leland Stanford University, is spending the holidays at the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. H. W. Strong. Maurice Botkin, who is at the same institution, went to San Francisco to spend his vacation with relatives.

John Bacon, who is salesman for the Fields Motor Car company of St. Johns, sold new Chevrolts during the past week to Miss Martha Hagberg and M. Bertus of this territory.

Robert Mereer is home from Corvallis for the holidays.

Richard H. Johnson of Yakima, Washington is here for a short visit with his mother, Mrs. Marion Johnson and his sister, Miss Elisabeth Johnson. He is accompanied by C. S. Clyne, also of Yakima. Both men work for the Yakima Sash & Box company.

Mr. and Mrs. Etsel Jones are spending the holidays with the former's father, Frank Jones, and his brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Mack.

A very pleasant evening was spent at the home of Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Hill last Wednesday, December 21, when about 30 friends and neighbors surprised him in honor of his birthday. The surprise was complete. The evening was spent in games and music after which refreshments were served. The guests departed at a late hour after a very enjoyable time.

Miss Charlotte Bostic, a freshman at O. A. C., is spending the Christmas holidays at the John Roberts home.

Mr. and Mrs. Roy Gibbs spent the Christmas holidays at the home of Mrs. Gibbs' parents, Mr. and Mrs. F. N. Mewhirter at Newberg.

Geo. Throckmorton spent the week-end with his nephew, I. T. Wood and family in the Cedar district.

FOR RENT—20-acre farm with 8-room house and large barn, about one mile from Pleasant Home on Bluff road. To be vacated February 1, 1922. For particulars write I. N. L. Shriner, Ashland, Oregon, 467 Scenic Drive.

NEW YEAR'S EGGS.

The Persians still exchange presents of eggs at New Year's just as we do at Easter. But the rest of us now do our giving of presents at Christmas parties, though we may give to each other on January 1. In Scotland and England everybody calls on everybody else New Year's day, and drinks punch. Here in America calling has gone out of style, but if we do nothing more, we at least shout "Happy New Year" to everybody we meet on New Year's morning. When we shout that, we mean good luck to them for all the new year through.

NEVER AGAIN
Ostrich—New-fangled breakfast food, eh? Well I swore off from that stuff the first of last year!

PUMPKIN PIE.

Stew the pumpkin and rub through a colander. Beat the yolks of four eggs light; add a cupful of sugar and beat until you have a quart of the stewed pumpkin. Pour in a quart of milk, a teaspoonful of nutmeg, and cinnamon. Fold in the stiffened whites of four eggs. Line a deep pie plate with puff paste, then fill with the pumpkin and bake in a moderate oven till done.

SHORT LIFE IS LONG.

As the cartoonists have it, a year comes in as a baby and 365 days later dies as an old man. How fortunate it is that the human comes in as a human and not as a year.

Seed Potatoes.

Seed potatoes may be treated with corrosive sublimate while still dormant. It is "much better to treat them now than to wait until planting time when the buds have started to grow.

What you want, when you want it, as you want it—Want ad. it.

Correcting Mr. Tumulty
The installment publication of Joseph P. Tumulty's book on Woodrow Wilson is having its joits, and evidence increases that even the testimony of the man next to the throne is not to be taken as the final word of history. Perhaps it is a good thing that these personal narratives that have been coming in increasing numbers from the recent war should be printed while the personalities of their pages are still alive, for it gives opportunity for corrections that might be missed if they did not appear until most of the figures were dead.

Certainly Brother Tumulty struck a live one when he waked up Lindley M. Garrison. It will be recalled that the one member of the Wilson cabinet who measured up to the proportions of his office was Judge Garrison. He made a distinctly favorable impression on the country, but it turned out that he had too much independence for President Wilson, and he got out. In trying to state and explain the amazing policy of Wilson toward Mexico, Mr. Tumulty said that Secretary Garrison's "only antidote was force and intervention." Mr. Garrison in his letter of correction says: "This is not accurate. My attitude was either to abstain absolutely from interference or to interfere effectually, by force if necessary."

A world war overshadowed the Mexican episode, but it must always remain among the mysteries of the human mind that its management was so obscure and shifting. Watchful waiting was the negation of everything virile and American. "I was not willing," writes Mr. Garrison in his reply to the Tumulty publication, "to agree to our constant interference with the internal affairs of Mexico by ineffectual communications which, when utterly disregarded by Mexico, were not followed up by any action on our part. It was our failure to adopt and adhere to any consistent policy of which I disapproved."

These words of the man who was secretary of war express the best opinion of that time. They conform, furthermore not only to what we know of Lindley M. Garrison but to rather plain historical fact.—Baltimore American.

Cold Frames Made.
This is a good time of the year to construct cold frames for next spring's work. Get some 3x6 feet glass sash milled out so that when received it is ready to glaze and paint. Then make a frame to hold the sash, preferably 18 inches high at the back and sloping to 12 inches in front. A good size for the frame is three feet wide by six feet long, though if more than one sash is to be used the frame should be made accordingly.

"The boy of today is the man of tomorrow."
"As the twig is bent so is the tree inclined"
"The girls are not what they used to be."

No one realizes the truth of these sayings better than the banker.

Boys who a few years ago with savings pass book in hand dressed in knee breeches, were making regular visits to this bank are now transacting business on their own account and you will find them drawing checks on this bank.

Girls are not what they used to be because they too have learned to carry a savings pass book; they have learned that therein there is power—they are becoming more and more independent and the young man of today without a bank account is not looked upon with favor.

Lessons of THRIFT in early boyhood or girlhood are patent factors in forming character and are the real key to business success.

We want every child in this community to have a "NEST EGG" Savings Bank.
