Entered as second-class matter March 3, 1911, at the Postoffice at Gresham, Oregon, under the Act of March 3, 1879.

The wages of sin is still death: Many men and a few women seem to have lost their balance, if they ever had any.

The human mind works quickly in these days of high-strung passions but not always truly.

There is more need than ever for each individual to have a high and noble purpose to steady him in his thinking and doing.

The annual Oregonian is always eagerly looked forward to, read with intense interest and by many laid away for future reference.

Throwing away the out-of-date calendars and hanging up the new ones is an interesting and suggestive part of the new year adjustment.

Not the least in excellence of the many holiday numbers of Oregon papers, by any means, was the 20-page issue of the Gresham Outlook.

Has Postmaster General Will H. Hays resigned or has he not? One day the papers say he has accepted the $150,000 job with the movie concerns, the next day the statement is denied.

There are just 168 hours in a week—to do with as we please. The greatest success or the most miserable failure has neither more nor less than 24 hours per day—or 168 hours per week in which to attain those ends.

GO TO CHURCH ON SUNDAY You may be surprised at the big profits it pays—in peace, joy and happiness. TRY IT THIS SUNDAY In the interest of all the churches of Gresham and vicinity.

WISKEY 'BEFORE AND AFTER' The minority has a perfect right in this democracy to try to turn a majority against prohibition, but let's have no misunderstanding about the chief argument of the wets in their fight to overthrow the Eighteenth Amendment; to-wit:

"That bootleg whiskey is so bad that it is better for this nation to go back to the pre-prohibition whiskey."

The pot calling the kettle black. The whiskey made by the profiteering "distillers" during the last quarter of a century of wetness was fully as villainous as the stuff they sell today.

Just as many men fell, poisoned, on the streets and in police stations but nobody paid any attention to it in the cities. They were just "drunk."

Listen to what the official United States government census for 1900 said (Twelfth Census):

"MOST (note that most) of the distilled liquors consumed as a BEVERAGE by the American people pass through rectifying houses. The different classes of rectified spirits range from the cheapest concoctions of neutral spirits and drugs to the simple blending of young and old whiskey."

That was 21 years ago. Most of the liquors were that way then. In the next 15 years, nearly all of them became rottener and viler and more poisonous. Whiskey drinkers were told that "blending" and "rectifying" made the whiskey better and they believed it because they wanted to believe it.

The truth was that "blended" whiskey contained all the poisons that is in newly distilled whiskey, and "rectified" whiskey contained small quantities of real whiskey to which was added raw spirits, colored water and drugs. No wonder drunkenness and booze deaths increased mightily every year. No wonder prohibition came. And all for the benefit of thieving, murderous profiteers who cleaned up untold millions every year and who posed as respectable citizens. The doggerly saloon keeper was a paragon of virtue beside them!

But, anyway, let nobody tell you that bootleg whiskey of today is any worse than the poisonous chemicals men drank for 10 years before the 18th amendment.

Nobody wants to rent a vacant mind. Then there is the man who is a member of so many organizations that the only thing he is sure of is a big funeral.

The time then—that one gives each week to inspirational, constructive and uplifting work is an investment upon which we all expect returns because we all want—only success.

Some folks think "one hour" out of the 168 each week enough for spiritual investment. One hour, if it is spent at church on Sunday, is the greatest hour of the week. That one hour every week through all the ages has brought out all the best motives in man—the balance wheel which every nation must have or else perish from the face of the earth.
