WALTER'S WIGWAG.

Veal is the extremely young of the bovine. It is as innocent of the pitfalls and snares of this universe as the fair maids of these mountain slopes. The tender young veal is a guileless creature without thought of the supreme sacrifice. It aspires to be the bell cow, or have its likeness portrayed on smoking tobacco.

There are men in this ambitious village who look upon veal as an object of mirthful ecstasy; there are men in this fair suburb who would give their right eye to have the other fellow bow before the altar of ridicule and humiliation.

If the board of censors would pass the story Wigwag would gladly quote express rates and give a veal scenario in two episodes, filled with pep and tobacco sauce. As a whole, we are charitable enough to refrain from personal mention, and hale the advance showing of April first stuff. As it is, we will content ourselves with reference to a certain bachelor butcher, and his employer, a descendant of Johnny Bull. They may relate some of the finer points of this narrative if you keep at a safe distance. But that's another story.

LUSTED SCHOOL FOLK WILL MEET FRIDAY EVE

The next meeting of the Lusted Parent-Teacher association will be held at the schoolhouse Friday evening, February 10, at 8 o'clock.

A fine will be levied on all persons who do not bring the refreshments requested by the east committees: Lenora Eder, Nellie Gossett and Ada Woods.

Everyone is expected to bring all the spare nickles they can rake together for a candy sale will be held at which the association hopes to raise $10 to meet the monthly payment on the new piano which has been bought by the school board and the Parent-Teacher association. A large crowd is expected.

Say it the Want Ad way.

O. A. Bryan, living on the Troutdale road, has been suffering for nearly a month with shingles. His condition is now somewhat improved.

PLEASANT HOME

Orient basket ball team suffered defeat last Friday night at the hands of the Sellwood team, to the tune of 35 to 10. The game is described as a fast one and the boys are taking their defeat in true sportsman style.

Attendants at the Methodist church last Sunday morning were delighted with the musical treat provided by H. W. Strong, soloist and Miss Florence Honey, accompanist, both of Gresham. They were assured that their return would always be welcomed. The Cottrell orchestra furnished fine music in the evening, when a record evening attendance was reported.

The work which was undertaken by the Girl Reserves of Pleasant Home of building a new fence around the cemetery had to be postponed on account of the ground being frozen. The girls were quite encouraged, however, by spirit of co-operation which was shown by the men when they offered their services to aid in the work. The girls will again take up the work as soon as the weather permits.

Mr. and Mrs. George W. Andrews have been quite sick with colds but are now greatly improved.

CLUB WORK IS TEACHING VALUE OF GOOD BREEDING

The boys and girls who have spent one or more seasons in live stock and poultry projects have been quick to learn the value of good breeding. Some who have commenced with grade animals and have learned to handle them with profit and pleasure to themselves are now disposing of them and investing in pure breeds. Others are improving the strains.

Helen Althaus has purchased some fine, pure bred Pekin drakes from high-scoring, blue ribbon stock at Salem with which to improve her already excellent stock. She hopes to win blue ribbons for her birds at next fall's fairs.

Ralph McCullough of the Pleasant Valley school learned the first lessons of calf raising with a grade heifer which did much credit to its young owner. He is now disposing of her and expects to buy a pure bred Jersey.

Henry Meyer of Cottrell, a member of the winning stock judging team at the state fair last fall, had a grade calf but now is planning to replace it with a pure bred Jersey.

All the members of the Orient sheep club are planning to begin the new year's work with pure bred stock.

FARMERS PLAYING STRONG HAND.

The farmer has long been the butt of ridicule, mainly for his lack of organization resulting in his haphazard methods of marketing.

But the farmer is coming into his own. He is asserting himself and his influence is being felt.

He has been on the tail end of the whip for a long time. Now he is moving up near the head where he belongs.

The farmer is nature's king. He is the creator and developer of the things that supply human life. His prosperity means the prosperity of all. He will not in the future be so easily exploited by other interests.

The demand of the farmers that capital and labor share alike in the deflation necessary to bring about a restoration of normal business conditions is a clear indication that agricultural awakening is complete and that never again will tillers of the soil be led astray in the bypaths of abstruse economics.

The plain fact is the farmer has to pay high prices for the things he has to buy and he cannot get living prices for the things he has to sell. There is nothing else to the problem. Naturally, there is a panic in the ranks of the monied interests when the farmer earnestly insists that the railroads must take their share of liquidation, because the railroads have been and are insistent on higher freight rates, and higher passenger rates if they can get them. But the dominant position of the farmer is now emphasized. Even labor runs panic stricken to its old time enemy and bids the farmer halt.

The suggestion that the railroads stare in further deflation is a direct attack on wages, shouts Mr. Gompers, and so the whole pack of cards is disclosed. The sophistry reveals self interest. Capital may fight for its money bags, labor may fight for its interest, the manufacturer, the wholesaler, the retailer, the butcher, the baker and the candlestick maker may fight for theirs, all may organize to press their positions, but when it comes to an agricultural bloc then there is a united protest.

Mr. Gompers, representing labor—even if he does, as Mr. Gary of the street trust says, represent only a small part of labor—may as well realize the farmer is the cause of things, and that all the other wiggling elements are purely effects. The tail cannot wag the dog.

White Globe Turnip Best.
 The pomeranian white globe turnip out-yields all other varieties by two tons per acre for late summer and early fall seeding finds the branch experiment station at Astoria. This variety has better keeping qualities and a much longer feeding period than the commonly grown cowhorn variety. These results apply to all coast counties.
