DRUG ADDICTS MAY BE CURED.

Dr. Copeland, health officer of the big city of New York, says when the Miller bill regulating the importation and exportation of habit-forming drugs gets into operation he will guarantee to cure every drug addict in the city of New York—and there are thousands on thousands of them—by a painless method and within six months. Surely nothing is more important, nothing more clearly points to the necessity of the government commanding space in the newspapers to educate the people, especially in the rural districts, in matters affecting the public health. The anti-prohibitionists have held as their trump card of opposition to enforcement of the Volstead act the fact that drug addicts have increased as drunkards have decreased. With the drug addict cure and habit-forming drugs under government control, prohibition will have a fair chance to demonstrate its beneficial effect on the human race, at least as applied to America. Dr. Copeland is a practical man in every sense of the word, and there is no greater advocate than he of educational work by the government, municipal, state and nation alike. Not more than a week ago Dr. Copeland made the flat assertion that measles could be absolutely wiped out of America forever in 48 hours if all cases were properly isolated. The only reason this disease has not already been killed forever is that the people do not understand how easy it is to master. It is a fair assertion that if the government would educate the people in matters medical that the death rate in the United States could be lowered at least 10 per cent. This should arrest the attention of our congressmen, even from the standpoint of economic saving, if not its humanitarian angle, and it may when a number of our national legislators take a sufficient time off from rolling the pork barrel to think of the people they are supposed to serve. We will get some action.

John Brown has secured several petitions to be circulated in eastern Multnomah county for signers who wish to have the 1925 fair authorization voted on at the November election. The limit for filing petitions is June 15 and 13,000 names must be secured. It is all to be done by volunteers as there is no money to pay for circulating petitions. As this is a matter that should be voted on it is hoped many will sign the petitions and volunteers are wanted to help secure names.

FIRST STATE BANK, Gresham, Oregon

BORING GIRLS WIN FIRST HONORS IN ESSAY CONTEST

First prize in Class 3 of the First State Bank essay contest was won by Evelyn Ledine of Boring. All the essays in Class 3 were written by eighth grade pupils, and each essay was to contain not less than 300 nor more than 600 words.

All seventh grade essays were placed in Class 4. Class 3 and Class 4 were similar in that each required the essays in that class to contain not less than 300 nor more than 600 words. Adele Marx of Boring was given first prize in Class 4.

"What Lincoln's Gettysburg Address Has Meant to the World."

By EVELYN LEDINE.

Lincoln's Gettysburg Address is more beautiful, more wonderful, and more patriotic and expressive than any other piece of American literature, except the Declaration of Independence. Not a flaw of any kind has been found in it. At the time it was given, everybody thought of it as merely a simple address, but it has been proven to be not just an ordinary speech, but a speech filled with patriotism and enthusiasm, which has affected the individual, the nation, and the whole world.

At the time the address was given, the world was largely dominated in thinking by monarchial ideas. This speech helped to popularize democracy, incidentally, to give monarchism a blow. We have our president, which is elected by the people, but he is here, only, to see that things are enforced. If he had all the power, he would be likened unto a king. As a whole it has helped to break down monarchies.

Instead of Lincoln's address being forgotten, it is a hallowed memory of what he did to emancipate the human race.

It shows that a people governed by the Higher Powers will always attain to the highest degree of intelligence. As we all know, as soon as a nation, who after great prosperity, thinking themselves unconquerable by any other nation, goes away from God, and seeks worldly pleasures, will always meet destruction sooner or later.

The address gave hope to men, who were fighting age-long abuses in other lands and also strengthened the hands of those, who fought for democracy in the Old World. It encouraged the Northern soldiers, who were fighting in the Civil War, to know what their great leader, Abraham Lincoln, thought of the cause for which they were fighting.

Lincoln's Address at Gettysburg showed that ideas that express true human equality between man and man, irrespective of race, color or station in life are overpowering. The address was really an expression of the American idea of equality: That all men are created equal.

Slavery was fast losing ground in the world at this time. Had the South, and incidentally slavery, won the Civil War, slavery would have "lived up" in the world and would have revived. The crushing blow administered to slavery in the United States and the eulogy pronounced by Lincoln upon those, who fought it at Gettysburg, though these heroes were dead, killed the last vestige of slavery in the world.

The second great thought in Lincoln's mind was the preservation of the Union. The address proved that a nation that stands for human rights is more powerful than a Union that stands for privileged abuses against humanity. By doing this, we as a Republic have set a pattern for the rest of the world until, now, it has let loose toward the formation of unions that embody human rights has its central reality and whose principles are government of the people, by the people and for the people. The whole civilized world has been awakened—even benighted China is adopting the principles voiced there at Gettysburg.

The address has gone so far as to result in the great peace conference at Washington, D. C. Even the proud Kaiser William of Germany was obliged to leave his throne and become an exile. Ireland, which was under the control of England, has now been allowed her freedom.

It is as Lincoln said in his address, "That a government of the people, by the people and for the people shall not perish from the earth."

"What Lincoln's Gettysburg Address Has Meant to the World."

By ADELE MARX.

Although Lincoln's remarks at Gettysburg were written in the car on his way from Washington to the battlefield, upon a piece of paste-board on his knee, yet it is an example of the very highest oratory.

This was a great speech because it was definite, because it gave expression to the highest feeling in the heart of the nation; because in the sweep of only ten short sentences he painted the whole ideal of his country and its perpetuation and advance. This speech presented the ideal of our nation from its foundation. It expressed the ideal of those who fought to save the Union. Lincoln referred in the fewest possible words to the sacred ground on which they stood. It showed the purpose for which they had come together. It showed that the ground had already been consecrated by those who had died, and that the audience gathered there on that day could only recognize the deeds of the nation's heroes. He turns all their thoughts and their feelings to themselves to their own personal duties. He touched the deepest chords of patriotism and inspired the whole nation for all time to a truer realization of the dignity of its mission.

It was great because it stirred the noblest feeling for liberty in the hearts of his countrymen; because it thrilled the deepest emotion of the human heart; and brought harmony from chaos, and unity out of conflicting opinions and feelings.

It gave a wonderful vision of what freedom had done and would do for the country, home, and individual. It showed that freedom helped the people to develop their individual lines. That the people governed by the people will always attain to the highest degree of intelligence. It showed us our duty as American citizens to work for unity and patriotism and to keep the high ideas of those who fought and died for the cause of freedom.

With Lincoln, their great leader the republican party has become one of the nation's strongest political parties. This speech has helped this party greatly.

When the other nations seeing our progress will try and follow along the same lines until the whole world will be governed by the people. China is one of the nations that has made great progress.

I believe as Abraham Lincoln did, that a government of the people, by the people, and for the people shall not perish from the earth.
