SIN SEPARATES.

Your iniquities have separated between you and your God, and your sins have hid his face from you, that He will not hear.—Isaiah 59: 2.

Governor Olcott has ordered the attorney general to proceed with the prosecution of the leaders of the Ku Klux Klan in Jackson county for alleged outrages committed by night riders in that county last spring.

Jim Owens and John Rathle paid the death penalty this morning for the slaying of Sheriff Taylor of Pendleton about two years ago. Hart, whose real name was Bancroft, was hanged in December, 1920. Hart fired the shot that took Taylor's life, but all were implicated in the jail break and found guilty of first degree murder. Five men escaped but all were captured. Two are now serving life sentences.

STRANGE!

According to published report a jury in District Judge Deich's court yesterday returned a verdict of not guilty against the proprietor of the Twelve-Mile house at Terry on charges of maintaining a nuisance growing out of liquor raids about two months ago.

In each raid the officers found some liquor at tables occupied by guests, a small quantity behind the bar and in the last raid five plums were found under the rear doorstep of the place. Herring claimed that the liquor found there had been smuggled by patrons.

BACK TO THE HOME TOWN.

President Harding received a royal welcome in the "old home town" the other day when he returned to his home at Marion, Ohio, which he had not visited since his inauguration more than a year ago.

That's just like the home town and the same would have happened in any one of a thousand cities, even in Gresham, if it had happened to be Harding's home town. If Harding were from New York City or Chicago he would have slipped in and out and nobody would have noticed him and the world would have lost that fine example of neighborliness which is characteristic of the smaller American city.

The big city is a great place to visit—once in a while—when you feel flush, want to visit the circus, see your rich relatives or hear grand opera. But there's no place like the country for real enjoyment of the wholesome kind, real friendliness and a chance to be your true self.

Doubtless the pleasure of Harding in getting back to the old home where he can be one of the boys again, even for a short time, is quite as great as the pleasure of his townspeople, who call him "Warren," in welcoming their distinguished citizen.

BUSINESS CONDITION TOLD BY EXPERT

"The 'domestic tranquility' which the framers of the Constitution avowed, in the preamble to that instrument, as one of the results they sought to attain, seems as far distant as ever in the light of the recent warfare between striking miners and strike-breaking workers in southern Illinois," says Robert E. Smith in his review of financial and business conditions. "This time our domestic tranquility was shattered in a particularly heinous and fiendish manner. It seems to have been established that the slain were all killed after they had ceased working and surrendered; that men were shot down as they ran, after being tied together and told to run, and finished off with knife-thrusts,—all this while young girls and women applauded and urged the slaughter. The hitherto matchless butchery of the late war is recalled by such tales.

"Despite this tragical development of the coal strike and despite, too, the railroad strike which is just beginning—surely conditions which merit being called 'adverse'—increased activity in fundamental lines of industry in the United States continues. The production of bituminous coal in recent weeks has been considerably larger than in the earlier weeks of the strike, but the reserves are being reduced at a rate which threatens a marked curtailment in industrial activity unless the striking miners soon resume work.

"A record output of passenger automobiles and trucks was produced in May,—250,000. Figures for June are not yet available. Producers are, of course, in a state of immense gratification over this state of affairs.

CONGDON TELLS OF THRILLS AT SPRINGS

After a two-weeks' stay at the Moffitt hot springs located at Cascades, Washington, W. H. Congdon is back at his work at the Club parlors. He says he is feeling fine and that he thinks there is no place for recuperation like the Moffitt springs. He was afflicted with neuritis of the arm and shoulder which caused great suffering.

"I took a hot bath, then a sweat between blankets for about an hour," said Mr. Congdon, "then was turned over to an expert masseuse and am feeling fine. I lost eight pounds in four days and had to start eating a little more. I was trying to diet, but nothing doing when you are undergoing treatments, because Miss Marie is there with the goods. She stands six feet and weighs 180 pounds and when she starts in on you for about 30 minutes you are hers to keep, but after the fight is off you feel like a new man. You will want to take a sleep, then you are called for a 5 o'clock tea, and you sure want to eat. There is a lady cook in the kitchen who is there with the spoon."

The springs have a fine hotel, electric lighted and with hot and cold water in all the rooms. A porch extends across the front, 12 by 50 feet, all enclosed in glass and screen. It is surrounded by green trees, an ideal place for a good rest. There are cold springs as well as hot ones, and fish.

"I used to fish these same springs 33 years ago when I was railroaded through on the little narrow gauge road that used to make connections with the boat before the locks at the cascades were completed," said Mr. Congdon. "The old engine that I used to run is on her side and fast crumbling to decay."

"There is now being built a bridge just at the foot of the cascades, which will be called 'The Bridge of the Gods,' after the old natural bridge which the old Indian tradition says spanned the river at that point, but from some source unknown to me at this time it fell and formed the rapids known as the Cascades. When the bridge is finished the center piers will be 180 feet high and the highway, completed from Vancouver to the bridge, will be known as the Century Drive. It will be 100 miles from Portland up the Columbia highway and back by way of the Interstate bridge. It will be a beautiful drive."

Mr. Congdon describes the fishing in the vicinity thus: "There are all kinds of fish, trout, bass and salmon. The trout are caught in the mountain streams, the salmon in the river and the bass in the dams. There are two dams, the upper and the lower. The fish in the upper dam are claimed by the people living the closest to it and those in the lower are claimed by the mill people but the best dam fish are those caught in the upper dam and, of course, the poorest dam fish are those caught in the lower dam, because the water is warmer. If you want good fish go fishing in the upper dam, then you will get the best fish. The little trout can't be beat, but I was too weak to take much of a jaunt after them."

Mr. Congdon made two trips to the top of Table mountain, 4000 feet high.

The Value of Service.

The doctor who answers a hurry call with the greatest possible speed is more valuable than a physician of equal skill who drives up to the patients door at his own convenience. Service counts. It is worth money. Who is there who doesn't agree with this general principle? And doesn't it apply, also in the buying of merchandise?

The progressive merchant in your own trading center gives service along with the goods. He has a selection of merchandise continually in stock. You don't have to wait. When you enter the store you are able to see the article itself in which you are interested. You see it with your eyes, feel it with your fingers; note its actual size, shape and color; compare it with other goods at different prices, and, if it is what you want, take it away with you.

If you have questions to ask, you are given an explanation on the spot. The answer given your first question may suggest another query. It is answered within half a minute of the first interrogation. No time is lost. You benefit from the dealers practical knowledge, from the fact that he is on the ground and ready at all times to see to it personally that the article he has sold you gives satisfaction.

The wise buyer will not forget that such matters have dollars and cents value and should enter into the reckoning whenever a price comparison is being made.—The Oregon Farmer.

Ruins Talk!

Blackened, charred ruins tell a sorrowful tale of loss, but the insured homeowner sees new construction already begun.

Hartford Fire Insurance Co. policies have built many a home upon the very ashes of great conflagrations.
