Great Changes Are Made in Holy Land.

A letter to the New York Tribune from Jerusalem says that no one who knew the Holy Land in the days of the Turkish regime can fail to note the great changes that have taken place throughout the country since the close of the war. The Turkish army stripped Palestine of its animals to such a degree that when the American Red Cross arrived there were many villages without an animal, and neither sheep nor goats were seen on the hillside. Today it is not uncommon for an automobile to come to a standstill on the principal streets of Jerusalem to allow a flock of hundreds of sheep and goats to pass by and out in the country the gray hillsides are covered with thousands of these animals. Italy gets a large amount of her glove material from the kids of Palestine. Whereas much still remains to be done, a great improvement already has been made in the character of the work animals. The army left behind it tens of thousands of horses, mules and donkeys, but even better than this, the natives seem to have learned valuable lessons in the care and feeding so that today the horses of the public carriages in Jerusalem are far sleeker and finer than ever they were before the war. Farm produce of all kinds brings a much better price than formerly; hence the villagers are prosperous and indulge in luxuries undreamed of in pre-war days. The markets of Jerusalem were never before supplied with such a wealth and variety of delectable articles, and vendors of ice cream and lemonade do a thriving business. In the dry goods, clothing and shoe stores the most fastidious can find French and English and to a lesser degree American goods, for which they did not even look in pre-war days. It is interesting to note the changes in the villagers. Formerly they nearly all walked to Jerusalem, even from a distance that took them four or five hours. Now public automobiles run out into the country for ten miles and have largely monopolized transportation. Wages for skilled and unskilled labor have risen several hundred per cent and good mechanics now demand $5 per day. The hours of labor used to be from sunrise to sunset, but by the organization of labor unions, they now have in Jaffa an eight-hour day.—Robt. E. Smith, president Lumberman's Bank, Portland.

HELPFUL POINTS LISTED ON CULLING OF POULTRY

Late molting hens are practically certain to be the best layers during the following year, but poultrymen are cautioned about going to extremes in making this factor the only one in selecting the layers. How it may be wisely used to cull out the weak layers is indicated in a new O. A. C. extension bulletin, Suggestive Points in Culling the Poultry Flock, by H. C. Cosby of the extension service. The best layers have dry, ragged, frayed and brittle feathers and the tail feathers are badly worn during the summer and fall months. The poor layers will have more wing primary feathers in July and August than the heavy layers. Loose feathering is usually characteristic of the coarse, late maturing bird, and the low producing hen. Any mismanagement that checks egg production in summer will force molting, which must be considered by one culling the flock. When the hen starts laying the whole abdomen becomes dilated, the pelvic bones between which the eggs must pass become wide-spread, the keel is forced down, and the lateral processes are sprung forward. The fat goes out of the skin with heavy laying, leaving the skin soft and velvety and abdomen pliable. "It is not safe to judge a hen solely on the basis of any one of the points named in the bulletin," says Mr. Cosby. "Such procedure will result in untold errors. Only when all indications of good layers are applied to a hen can intelligent judgment on her laying ability be made." The bulletin is free to poultrymen, farmers, and others interested. Within an Inch. Pat was the man who did all the odd jobs about the place, and, owing to petty thieving, his employer instructed him to get a good yard dog. Pat was out all day and in the evening landed home with a dachshund. "What on earth have you brought along, Pat?" queried his employer. "Well, sir," said Pat, "he's the nearest I could get to a yard; he's two feet eleven inches long."—Minneapolis Tribune. Farm Reminders. Silage reduces the amount of hay required in feeding rations by one-third. Results show that two pounds of silage is equal to one pound of hay in feeding value. Two tons of silage can be put into the silo cheaper generally than one ton of hay can be put into the stack. The Union Experiment station has shown that a combination of hay and silage produced in three year trials twice the gains at half the cost of gains on hay alone. Ignition Expert. $25 will be given to him who proves that I can not find the deficiency of his machine on starting, lighting and ignition. Main street Garage. Phone Gresham 1228. Phone subscriptions to 1561.
