AN IMPORTANT ISSUE THIS FALL.

Prohibition will be a dominant issue in not fewer than thirty states this fall, and results will be watched with more than usual interest.

The wets contend they are certain of victory, while the dries openly state that if no other force kills the hope for "light wines and mild beers" it will die at the hands of the bootleggers who are making too much money under their present system to permit the traffic to become legalized.

New York and New Jersey are all "het up" over the issue, which also will be paramount in all of the New England states, and in Missouri, Pennsylvania will face the question, as will Maryland, Delaware, West Virginia, Virginia, Kentucky, Tennessee, Colorado, Ohio, Wisconsin, Washington, Nebraska, Michigan, California, Oregon, Utah, Louisiana, Texas, Oklahoma, and Florida.

Pennsylvania wets pretend to believe they are sure of victory, but the recent sweep of the Progressive Pinchot points the other way.

A decided dry victory will most emphatically express the will of the people, and unless the bedrock of American government is to be dynamited the sooner the expressed will of the people is obeyed the better.

And it will not hurt if Uncle Sam himself leads the way on the one or two of the seven seas he is now managing to navigate.

The Portland Telegram is to be commended for its strong stand on prohibition. In a recent issue its leading editorial was entitled "The Old Brewery." Under this heading the editorial writer says the brewery is not dead nor even asleep. In its palmy days it laid by enough wealth to keep it alive for a generation or more. "Practically the entire saloon system belonged to the brewery," says the article, and a brewery of moderate size might own or control a hundred or more saloons and the greater ones their thousands.

Continuing the writer tells some things about Gresham and Troutdale, under saloon dominance, which the Outlook surmises came under his personal observation.

"The breweries of America are joyfully promising to be back with licensed wine and beer saloons in 1923. We may well believe that the greater part of the current propaganda for the wine and beer traffic is paid for by money once taken in over the saloon counter. Let us forget what that saloon was we should often think back to the days when the saloon dominated our country. Always after every reform there is a recoil in public sentiment. After the Israelites fled from the bondage of Egypt they wept and wailed for the flesh pots of Egypt as they starved in the wilderness. They preferred slavery with a full stomach to freedom hungry. One forgets something of the sting of the slave driver's lash after his back has healed.

"Let us take the saloons of Troutdale, just east of Portland, as an example of what country saloons may be. In that little hamlet of about 200 people, three or four saloons did a thriving business. But they were not merely places where the passing man might step in and get a drink. The proprietors were busy driving their business. Up to a certain hour in the morning they gave old customers their first drink free, to prime the appetite for harder drinking through the day and start the day's business off with a rush.

"They did not confine themselves to coaxing men in to drink. Each saloon keeper had a horse and buggy for the purpose of hauling in customers. They kept tabs on all drinking farmers, and when one of them sold a load of produce, a hog, a cow, a horse, they immediately hitched up and drove to the farm to bring in the farmer with his full purse. One of these Troutdale saloon keepers used to drive regularly once a month to Fairview on the pay day of a certain skilled mechanic there, bring him to the saloon and keep him there till his wages were gone. The saloon keeping business in Troutdale was a real live, well worked business, and the brewery was back of all these methods of getting rid of its beer.

"These facts and a thousand more of the same sort were so well known and unconcealed in the old saloon days as to rouse no great comment or resentment, for they are common methods of the saloon. This sort of business made of Troutdale a regular dumping place for Portland tramps. The writer has seen more drunken men in an hour in Troutdale than he has seen in the last two years in Portland.

"Take another example, here at hand. Gresham, just outside the east limits of Portland, under saloon domination was a poor, little, unattractive, unthrifty town, molded and stunted by its two or three saloons. But immediately it voted out the saloon it began a veritable business boom. It is today a most attractive, thrifty, vigorous, clean municipality.

"These are just two little examples, close at hand, of what a saloon means to a community in a material way. A saloon is a parasite pest at the best. It lives on the blood uriant foliage form and exquisite setting.

The day was already well spent so we had to hasten on to see as much as possible while it was daylight. The Oneonta Gorge was explored and we picked our way along over the slippery rocks, hugging close to the base of the cliff and taking care not to fall. Every now and then we stopped to look back and ahead to see the many beautiful effects brought about by the windings of the gorge. There was always something new to be admired, the colors of the rock, the velvety green moss, a fringe of dainty ferns or a lovely tree growing out of the cliff and then at the last turn, another graceful waterfall.

Back to the car again through Oneonta tunnel and on as far as Horsetail Falls, then it was time to face about towards home. The sun was beginning to go down so along with the beauties at each side of the highway, we had the wonders of the sunset to watch. Fleecy clouds, rose tinted sky, the hills and valleys and river touched with the gold of the descending sun formed the closing, colorful picture of a perfect day. The Columbia Highway is a royal road. Those who laid it out, planned well, leaving all of the natural beauty spots, building only such things as add comfort and safety for travelers. Every foot of the way is as well kept as a city park and yet all the natural wildness has been preserved. "See America First" should be the slogan of every citizen of the United States, for with such wonders as can be found in this part of the country, as well as elsewhere, it seems foolish to cross the ocean, at least until every available work of one's own country has been visited.

Darkness came so fast, we did not eat supper enroute, but brought that to a close with lunch at the home of Mr. and Mrs. H. L. St. Clair who had again given "the Iowan" a trip which will long be remembered as one of the most delightful of her vacation period and their hospitality has been a pleasant feature of the visit in Gresham.

KELSO

The Woman's club met Thursday, August 24, at the home of Mrs. E. V. Erickson with the following members present: Mrs. Erickson, Mrs. Phipps, Mrs. Baumbach, Mrs. Herz, Mrs. Kligel, Mrs. Peterson and Mrs. Robert Jonsrud. The club decided to have the interior of the school rooms painted before school begins. A pleasant afternoon was spent and the hostess served delicious refreshments.

The Jonsrud-Gunderson mill, which was destroyed by fire on June 5th, has been rebuilt and is now running full blast and ready to fill orders.

E. Herz has been laid up with blood poisoning caused by a cut on his knee. At latest reports he was improving.

Helen Jarl arrived from Medford last week and will stay with her father Joel Jarl and sister Mildred for the winter and attend school. Mildred will attend the Sandy high school. Mrs. Jarl and Verne will remain in Medford for the winter. The machine in which Helen came from Medford was in a collision but no one was seriously hurt.

The Kelso school will open September 11 with Miss Varietti and Mrs. Baumbach, teachers.

Dorothy Jonsrud has returned to Portland to attend the Jefferson high school.

The Robert Jonsrud family recently moved to their new home on the Bluff road.

Among those who have gone to the hop fields are Mrs. Patterson and Besie Patterson, Mrs. E. V. Erickson and son Roland.

Mrs. Baumbach and daughters, Marie and Ruth, recently returned from a trip to Aberdeen.
