

Cotton-Whealdon Nuptials.

The Rev. Earl Bogert Cotton and Miss Ruth Arminda Whealdon were married at the home of the bride's parents at Fruitland, Idaho, Thanksgiving day by Rev. George Todd. The bride and groom were attended by Miss Esther Russell and Mr. Emil Schmid while the bride's small niece Faye Makinson acted as flower girl. The simple but impressive ring ceremony was used. The house was decorated in white chrysanthemums.

The bride wore a simple dress of white canton crepe while her attendant wore blue crepe de chine.

Mr. and Mrs. Cotton left Friday for Portland where they spent a few days before going to the home of the groom's parents, Prof. and Mrs. Geo. W. Cotton, in Salem, where they visited until a week later when they went to their present home in Willamina.

The wedding was the culmination of a friendship extending over a period of 15 years including happy times in high school, home community and college.

The people of the Willamina church and community gave a reception for the young couple on Saturday evening, December 9. A very excellent program was enjoyed and the bride and groom were presented with a purse and a liberal gift of fruit, vegetables and groceries.

Money Moved Through Chicago Streets.

Two hundred and fifty tons of money, about $50,000,000, were moved through the congested streets of Chicago's down-town district a few days ago, when the Chicago Federal Reserve Bank moved all its valuables from its old home to the new $7,500,000 building at La Salle and Adams streets, where it is now installed. The new treasury house, protected by 3,500,000 tons of steel and enormous masses of reinforced concrete, has storage room available in its vaults for all the gold of the Federal Reserve system, more than $3,000,000,000, should an emergency ever arise to make its transfer advisable.

FAIRVIEW RESIDENTS CORRECT OUTLOOK

Mayor O. F. Cady of Fairview and other residents of the city have called the attention of the Outlook to the statement of an error in a recent issue which reported considerable damage from a sleet storm. While there was some sleet and one telephone line was out for a few hours, communication was not interrupted to any great extent and there was practically no other damage, they report.

The Outlook is glad to correct the error and happy that the conditions reported to the Outlook were untrue.

JUDGMENT IS GIVEN AGAINST MERRILL

Judgment was rendered in justice court by John Brown last Saturday against Fred T. Merrill in a suit brought by two Gresham Japanese, T. Tigima and Frank Hasegawa to recover wages for work done for Mr. Merrill in cleaning his building at the 12-mile corner. The judgment amounted in one case to $24.50 and in the other to $25.20.

PROBLEMS OF ASTORIA EFFICIENTLY MET

The main business section of Astoria now lies in ruins as a result of the $15,000,000 fire which swept through that portion of the city and left ruins where fine buildings once stood. The fire started shortly after 3 o'clock Friday morning. Some of the proprietors of hotels received word of the fire in time to awaken the sleepers but other hotel occupants barely escaped with their lives. Many attempts were made to save the contents of buildings before the fire reached them but in many cases, the work was in vain as the fire destroyed the goods even after they had apparently been placed beyond the danger zone.

The disastrous fire left many homeless people walking the streets. It was said that some people who were in comfortable circumstances before the fire, are now reduced practically to penury. As a result of the fire many people, some of whom have reached middle age, will be compelled to start in life all over again.

People are Optimistic.

In spite of the fact that 2500 people were left homeless, there is an air of optimism prevailing Astoria. Their loss has been great but the people are willing to begin life anew and build a better city than ever before. This courageous feeling of optimism is also shown in the words of Mayor James Bremner, uttered Saturday as he sat in the city hall. He admitted that practically none of the business section of the former city remained but reminded his hearers that the splendid harbor was still there.

Some of the first problems which confronted the citizens of Astoria after the fire was the restoration of order, securing of financial aid and commencing the reconstructing of the city. The first two problems have already practically been solved. The city government was placed in the hands of lieutenant-colonel, the Rev. Wm. S. Gilbert, who, with a committee of citizens, is administering the civic affairs of Astoria ably and silently.

The matter of relief is in the hands of Earle C. Kilpatrick, Red Cross director. Mr. Kilpatrick is here on indefinite leave from the University of Oregon under orders of the northwest division of the Red Cross with headquarters in Seattle. His long war experience has made him just the man for such a position. Many of the larger cities and some of the smaller ones are already sending supplies and money. Sometimes there is more than is needed at the moment but it is stored away until needed. The citizens of Portland have already pledged themselves to give to the amount of $50,000.

The Oregon National Guards, at the command of Adjutant-General White, were called upon to throw its resources into the breach and help provide food and sleeping accommodations for the homeless people in Astoria. A meeting was called last Friday evening in many towns and cities where companies of National Guards are organized. Such a meeting was called in Gresham but word was received that the Gresham company would not be ordered out at present.

A hundred "blue jackets" from the coast guard cutters Snohomish and Algonquin and the destroyer Yarborough are patrolling the burned area of the city. They are given strict rules and are told to obey them to the letter. The roads are also guarded and only those bearing special police badges are allowed to enter or leave the city.

Aim Higher, Boy.

I kissed her on her dimpled chin, The precious little dove. She seemed to think the deed a sin She murmured "Heaven's above!"

And Her Name Was Mand. "Whence the black eye, old thing?" "Oh, I went to a dance last night and was struck by the beauty of the place."

BRAZILIAN SEEKS EXPERIENCE HERE

By ROBERT FULLER.

While a great exposition is on in Brazil, and many eyes are turned toward this South American republic, a story, by Robert Fuller, reaches us of a wealthy young Brazilian who comes to this country to study our methods.

Suppose your father owned a 14,000-acre ranch in Brazil, on which he raised cattle. Would you travel 29,000 miles to a country whose people and language you did not know, and work there as an ordinary "hand" on a farm—in order to learn how to breed and raise pure bred live stock?

That is what a 26-year-old Brazilian is doing. His name is Julio Paix Cortes; and he came all the way from Bage, Rio Grand do Sul, Brazil, in order to learn how cattle are handled by the leading breeders of the United States.

The young Brazilian gets up every morning at five, helps feed at Cedar Croft Farm, near Kansas City, and then, after breakfast, puts in a strenuous day. At night he records his observations in his ever-handy notebook.

Pretty ambitious, don't you think, for a rich young man who owns 1,400 acres of Brazilian ranch land in his own right—and whose father has ten times as much more?

Yet young Paix Cortes enjoys it, because he is learning new things every day. His practical experience at Cedar Croft Farm is the climax of several months' training in this country, during which he attended the animal husbandry classes at the University of Illinois and Iowa State Agricultural College.

"I came to the United States to learn the best strains of Herefords here," he says. "Brazil already has thousands of Hereford cattle, brought in principally from England and Uruguay. In the future, we think Brazilian ranchers will come to the United States almost exclusively for Herefords."

"I wanted to acquire knowledge of your methods and cattle. Though it was very difficult for me before I learned your language, I think the effort is very much worth while; and I wish every Brazilian farmer could send his sons to study at the splendid agricultural colleges and wonderful farms of this country."

Irvin S. Cobb, the humorous lecturer, on a recent southern tour, stopped for dinner at a tiny railway restaurant in a Mississippi village.

"Well, uncle, what's the bill-of-fare?" he asked the aged colored man who came from the kitchen to look after him.

"De bill o'fare," said the old man, "am ham, eggs, cohn bread and coffee."

"Then I'll have ham, eggs, corn bread and coffee, uncle," said Mr. Cobb.

The old waiter bowed and shuffled out. But a moment later he put his head through the doorway again.

"Boss, he said, 'how ye gwine have dem eggs—blind or lookin' at ye?'"

Say it the Want Ad way.
