OREGON NEWSPAPERS.

The December issue of Oregon Exchanges published by the U. of O. School of Journalism, George S. Turnbull, editor, contains a complete and up-to-date newspaper directory of Oregon. A summary presents some interesting facts. The data covers dailies, weeklies and semi-weeklies only, of which there are 187 listed. Those published less frequently than weekly are to be given in a supplementary list, which it is believed will bring the total number up to nearly 225 for the state.

The number of daily papers in Oregon totals 23, five of which are in Portland. Six of these are morning papers, the others evening. Eight cities outside of Portland have two dailies each and eight have two weeklies each. Papers are published in 132 communities. Seven weeklies have women listed as their editors and two are owned by women. Of the nearly 800 persons working on Oregon dailies and weeklies, as owners or employes, nearly 150 are women.

It appears from the data given there are six semi-weeklies, including the Outlook. Four of these, however, are connected with dailies. Corvallis is the only city besides Gresham that has a semi-weekly published alone, but Corvallis also has a daily under separate management.

This seems to leave Gresham with the distinction of being the one city of the state whose only newspaper is a semi-weekly, and it is the only city of its size with a semi-weekly. The Outlook believes it can claim another distinction—that of being the only semi-weekly published in the state at $1.50 a year.

Oregon, outside of Multnomah county and a few counties in the Willamette valley, is sparsely settled. The census gives the state about eight inhabitants to the square mile. In some sections it must be much less to be offset by a city like Portland containing about one-third the population of the state. In the small cities of from 100 to 500 people, in sparsely settled districts, the publishing of a newspaper is decidedly an up-hill business, and there are many such places in Oregon where the weekly paper is a one man affair. In fact, in one town it is entirely a one woman affair. Even under such circumstances a newspaper is indispensable and in any case deserves the hearty moral and financial support of the people it tries to serve.

OUR EXCHANGES.

The Outlook receives a limited number of exchanges all of which are welcome and are usually carefully read. These help the editor to keep in touch with what's doing in newspaperdom throughout the state. We are pleased to count among our near neighbors the Oregon City Enterprise and Banner-Courier, the Forest Grove News-Times, the Dallas Polk County Observer, the Estacada Eastern Clackamas News, the Aurora Observer, the Mount Scott Herald and the Montavilla Times.

The Polk County Observer, the Aurora Observer and the Montavilla Times sent out their Christmas issues this year with special features, made attractive by holiday pictures, special articles and heavier than usual advertising. All of these are to be congratulated on their holiday issues.

ANNUAL OREGONIAN.

The New Year's number of the Oregonian, usually called the annual Oregonian, is the premier number of Oregonian, in fact, the Northwest's greatest paper. It is the paper one wants to read thoroughly, order several copies sent to friends and lay one away for future reference. It carries page after page fully illustrating every material development of Oregon. There are many full page illustrations which are marvels of photographic, engraving and printing art. The scenery and highways of Oregon are well covered in story, diagrams and pictures. Oregonians should know Oregon. This New Year's edition of the Oregonian will assist one greatly in acquiring an adequate knowledge of his own state and showing up its resources and attractions to others.

ETA MARKET '23.

Monday, December 25, Ezra McNew celebrated his 92d birthday by entertaining about 20 of his "young" friends at dinner in New York City, where he had gone to aid the cause of the Oregon trail. He went over the Oregon trail in 1852 and has spent most of his life on the Pacific coast. He promises to make known his secret of a long life.

Narcotic Vender Sentenced.

Dave Lightner, convicted of smuggling and wholesale narcotics vending after a lengthy and rather sensational trial before Federal Judge Bean, has been sentenced to McNeil Island federal penitentiary where he will serve terms totalling three and a half years. He sought immunity for having acted, he claimed, as a stool pigeon for narcotic officers.

The Spirit of 1923

ASSURANCE

Whate'er the year may bring Of things not understood, We certain are that everything Will have to serve our good. We may go on with joyous tread And not a single thing to dread.

SOMETHING NEW

Amid the false, amid the true, Between the laurel and the yew, Thank God for something young and new!

And may this new leaf of time's page, This fair addition to our age, Be filled with sunny wit and sage!

1923

May the New Year be threaded through With strands of blue and gold for you, Things high and precious, far and fine, To serve, inspire, delight and shine!

HOW OKLAHOMA DOES IT.

Oklahoma is about to inaugurate her new governor, familiarly known as "Jack" Walton, with what will probably be one of the biggest celebrations ever held on such an occasion. It will last two days, January 10 and 11, and the state will entertain free of charge 100,000 visitors, if the elaborate plans are carried out and all come who are expected.

The counties of the state are vying with one another in furnishing the largest amount and rarest kind of foods and most unique entertainment features. Surrounding states, it is said, are greatly interested. Three thousand members are on the committee of arrangements. There will be 500 beef cattle for barbecue, 200 hogs, 200 sheep, 10 buffaloes, 10 bears, 10 deer, 10 antelope, 5,000 chickens, 1,000 turkeys, 500 ducks and geese, 200 opossums, 1,000 rabbits, 1,000 squirrels and other wild delicacies, a hundred thousand loaves of bread, as many buns, five tons of coffee, five tons of sugar, 250 bushels of onions, tons of salt and half a ton of pepper. There will be coffee pots for making 10,000 gallons of coffee at one time and in a few minutes.

And equally elaborate plans are made for entertainment of all kinds. For its enlivening, unifying effect on the people of the state and its advertising value this plan would be hard to beat. In fact, it may be almost equal in some effects at least as the big exposition Oregon may, after several attempts to finance, hold in 1927.

Who Is After Daugherty?

The investigation of Attorney General Daugherty has fallen utterly flat. No proof of any allegation has been presented. The chief accuser, and on the flimsiest of pretenses, has even refused to testify; and the evidence which has been heard from the most honorable and independent men, like Senator Hiram Johnson, has all been in defense of Attorney General Daugherty, and in support of Attorney General Daugherty and in commendation of his acts and his activities.

What is needed now is another investigation, to find out who the big interests are who are attacking the Attorney General of the United States, and who are trying to discredit him and weaken him and weaken the force of his official procedure.

Is it the Whiskey Ring, against which the Attorney General's office has been especially active? Is it the War Profiteers, who were so powerful with the late democratic administration?

Is it the Palmer-Garvan outfit, who fraudulently confiscated alien property and delivered it to their friends, and whom the Attorney General has exposed? Most surely there is some big interest and some corrupt interest responsible for the attacks upon the Attorney General of the United States, which attacks up to this time have been so utterly baseless and futile as to make them an insult to the American people whom the Attorney General represents.—Washington Herald.

YOUR "LITTLE NEW YEAR"

By MARTHA B. THOMAS

"THE Little New Year" is a very eager youngster. He pops into view overnight; in fact, one second's difference is the margin between his being nothing at all and then appearing as something very definite to reckon with. From the minute he claps his eyes on you, he belongs; he is your "Little New Year" and you've got to decide pretty quickly what to do with him. There is no possible way of escaping this parenthood. He's going to stick to you like a burr for 365 days, every minute, every hour. It's really quite alarming.

Are you going to bring up the little fellow on underdone resolutions?

Are you going to make him a present of malnutrition by feeding him on irregular meals of procrastination?

Are you going to ruin his character (and maybe your own) by rows and rows of pleasant fibs to prevent a feeling of discomfort about his growing up into a harum-scarum boy? Like human children, he needs watching and guiding and discipline. You'll never have the opportunity of "raising" this particular lad again. He will slip from your fingers on the night of December 31—your "Little New Year" grown into whatever manhood you've permitted him.

Let's send him out a fine, sturdy fellow!

SANDY MAN TELLS OF FIRST VISIT TO GRESHAM

Ed. F. Bruns of Sandy recently related to a company of friends the circumstances of his first visit to Gresham and Portland. The family lived at Sandy. Ed. was a small boy when his father, about July 2, 1881 or 1882, started early in the day for Portland. The oxen were hitched to what Ed described as a three-wheeled wagon. "That is," said he, "there were four wheels but only three good ones. The fourth was all twisted out of shape. We had tire trouble in those days, too. I, as a boy, was placed in the back of the wagon and told to watch the tire on that wheel and let father know if it got loose.

"There were no roads in those days, only trails through the woods and after an all-day jaunt we arrived at the place now called Gresham. There were no stores and no houses. The first State Bank now stands was a campmeeting ground and a little way up the hill to the west was Sleret's blacksmith shop. We stopped at the shop and had the wheel fixed and the next day drove on to Portland."

poem by UNCLE JOHN

Though she's fickle and contrary, there's a charm in January, to the fellow that's accustomed to her curves. . . . With her north wind skallyhootin' and her temperature pirootin' in among a feller's sensory nerves! And, when she fights a duel with the little jag-o-fuel, that's waitin' out-o'-doors to keep ye warm,—O, it takes a cheerful giver, and an optimistic liver, to demonstrate old Janooary's charm. . . . But—when the neighbors gather in defiance of the weather—to taste the joys of settin' by the fire, there's an institute of learnin' where the home-fires is a-burnin'—where patriotism is parent of desire! Then we find in Janooary, not a bandit gaunt an' bleary, but a bosom friend beneath the wintry vest. . . . Where we find congenial labor, swappin' ideas with our neighbor, and adoptin' the conclusion which is best. . . . While her breath is mighty searchin' where the naked trees is lurchin' and there aint no hint of mercy in her grip,—yet the maple-sap flows sweeter, and the spring shall dawn completer, at the final crack of Janooary's whip. . . . Then, rally all ye merry, to the call of Janooary,—Awake, an' taste the real joys of life.—No season more entrancin' with fiddin' an' dancin'—Brace up, an' get acquainted with yer wife!
