EUROPEAN SITUATION SERIOUS.

The situation in Germany is becoming more and more serious each day. German troops are being assembled and there are ominous movements in unoccupied territory. Russia is being aroused and urged to be prepared with a strong army and navy. She regards the attack on Germany as an attack upon the laboring masses. Measures are being taken to protect the Polish frontier.

German industrial leaders, arrested for non-compliance with French orders for delivery of coal, have been tried by French courtmartial and fined heavily.

The United States government is criticized by some for not interfering, but those doing so cannot suggest any reasonable plan for interfering. The situation is so delicate that interference on the part of this country is more liable to complicate matters than clear up the difficulties.

It is not an occasion for forceful interference, and this nation having made a separate peace with Germany, and having no part in the Versailles treaty or the League of Nations is in no position to dictate to France what she should do. And for other reasons it is not in order to interfere. The allied nations, especially France and England, are heavily indebted to the United States. France has rejected all suggestions of England and has acted on her own initiative and responsibility in invading Germany. Under the circumstances England decides to hold aloof and cannot do otherwise. What else can the United States do?

France has asked no advice or cooperation of this nation and the administration has declared it was not informed of France's intention until the invasion became an accomplished fact on January 9.

It is proposed in a bill introduced in the lower house at Olympia to tax at $5 a head all bachelors in the state from 25 to 60 years. It may develop that many would be induced to pay the $5 toward a license and marriage fee.

Governor Pierce has signed the bill designating the east and west highway across the state as the "Old Oregon Trail." The bill was the first one introduced in the senate and the first to pass both houses.

PROHIBITION ENFORCEMENT.

"As long as human nature is as it is there cannot be 100 per cent enforcement of this or any other law," said Federal Prohibition Commissioner R. A. Haynes, at Salem, last week before the members of the legislature, speaking on prohibition enforcement. Continuing Mr. Haynes said:

"Law never leads civilization but always follows in its wake. The purpose and the object of law is to regulate and control the relations of men with each other and their relations to the state. But those relations must first come—must first be established—before there is anything for the law to regulate.

"It is said that a man's life is judged by his crisis. It is the crisis that makes for his success or failure. What is true of the individual is equally true of a generation of people, or of a nation which is but an aggregation of individuals. Every indication points to the fact that this generation of Americans is facing that crisis hour. We are at the testing time when every citizen must stand up and be counted for or against the constitution, and the laws of the land, not alone as revealed in his conviction and punishment, but as revealed by his acts and personal conduct.

"As a people, we have nothing to fear from without. The enemy that is to be feared is the subtle one that, under the guise of mock-patriotism, shammed personal liberty, non-observance of law, etc., creeps up unawares and threatens to undermine the very fundamentals which have been responsible for our great growth as a nation and our marvelous prosperity and happiness as a people.

"We can not permit the open violation of any specific law without at the same time fostering the spirit of anarchy that will eventually hold all law in contempt and disrepute.

"It is not enough that a man shall obey the law and enjoy the privileges and blessings secured to him under the law, but it is the duty of the good citizen that he constitute himself as far as his abilities permit a guardian and a defender of the law. It is a spineless American who will see the flag of his land scoffed at by agitator or anarchist without protesting. It is a poor patriot indeed who will permit the Bolshevik to hold up the holy institutions of the land to scorn and derision without voicing his dissent and righteous indignation. He is a short-sighted American who fails to see in the bootlegger of today both the spirit of the anarchist and Bolshevik. It is time that the citizen upon whom we depend to uphold our Americanism awakens to the realization that bootlegging is not a mere pastime, but it is a nefarious and traitorous business.

"That it is difficult at this hour to enforce prohibitory laws we do not deny, and that there are violations of the law we do not doubt, but the laws against murder have been known on this continent since the Puritans walked our shores, and yet we have many times awakened to find that human life is seemingly held lightly in our land. It is an easy matter to prevent the violation of a law by simply repealing it, but it is extremely doubtful that you would remedy any of the evils that arise from them by so doing. To nullify the prohibitory laws or to repeal them will cure no evils that arise from the liquor traffic, but you will set a precedent and make it more easy to nullify any law that may be rendered difficult of enforcement through propaganda or un-American prejudice.

"It must be admitted that one very serious difficulty today in connection with prohibition law enforcement work is the surprising attitude of many in official and private life; men admittedly of high standing and great influence in their respective social, professional or business spheres, who would not knowingly wink at the violation of any other statute, but who will sanction and who participate in the illegal traffic in intoxicating liquor without any seeming shock to their consciences. It is not to be wondered at that bootleggers and criminals will violate the law for the sake of possible illegal gains, but it is difficult to understand how prominent clubmen, business and professional men, and men high in the various walks of public and private life become parties to such violations and create a demand for their continuance by purchasing illegally secured contraband.

"For the first time in the history of the country has concurrent power been written into the constitution. That is to say, Section II of the 18th amendment divides the responsibility. Practically all of the states have enacted appropriate legislation to this end, and it is certainly most desirable that those states which have not enacted such legislation should speedily take that step.

"I desire also to call your attention to the fact that the Harrison Narcotic Act is administered by my department. Quite properly the narcotic traffic is today attracting tremendous interest all over this great land. While I am most appreciative of the great arousa-of the people on the question of narcotics, I am at the same time thoroughly convinced that there is no great increase in the use of narcotics in America. Conditions are bad enough as they are but not as bad as some try to depict. Our narcotic appropriation is and has been, in my judgment, entirely inadequate. We have only about 175 field men, and only $750,000 with which to combat this evil."

Winter Killer--Pneumonia

Never has there been a physician who did not wish he could do more for a pneumonia patient. But it is a source of great satisfaction to every Osteopathic Physician that he does not have to stand by and only hope that some external agent will bring about an improvement in the patient. He can actively aid nature in her fight by his own personal efforts, not by the amount of work that he does but by the physiological reactions resulting from his work. There are, of course, cases in which his best efforts are unavailing but, with few exceptions if nature is able to respond at all, she will respond to Osteopathic treatment. In a case of pneumonia what more can a medical man do, after he has given his instructions for nursing and the administration of medicine? Nothing. This would be sufficient if only drugs cured the pneumonia, but they do not. Medical authorities all admit they have no curative drugs for Osteopathic Physician, on the other hand, knows from experience that his therapy can do more not only to relieve and comfort the patient but to assist nature in overcoming the disease than is possible by any other method of treatment. Statistics collected by the American Osteopathic Association following the influenza epidemic of 1918-1919 show that the death rate for pneumonia treated osteopathically was only one-third that of the mortality under medical treatment.
