A FAIR TEST.

Some months ago a police magistrate in Omaha, Nebraska, had brought before him an Italian charged with making corn alcohol, variously called hooch, skulcap or white mule. On the stand were several gallon glass containers containing the "stuff."

When the evidence was all in and the judge was convinced of the man's guilt he said to him, "If you will drink a half-pint, or a glass full, of this vile stuff I will turn you loose." The Italian answered, "Not me; I make it to sell and not to drink."

The judge said to the bootleggers' lawyer that if he (the lawyer) would drink a glassful of the liquor the prisoner could go free. "Nothing doing. I am employed to defend this man, not to commit suicide," he replied. The prisoner was bound over under heavy bonds and the judge made the refusal of the man to drink his own whiskey the subject of an impressive lecture.

LIVESTOCK IN OREGON.

A recent report of the United States department of agriculture shows up Oregon as a sheep raising state. As of January 1, 1923, the report shows livestock in Oregon as follows:

Table with 2 columns: Number, Value. Rows include Horses, Mules, Milk cows, Sheep, Other cattle, Swine.

In three years, however, the number of sheep in the state has fallen off about one-fourth and the value of the total number about one-half.

An analysis of the report shows an increase in number of cattle during the year. Low prices and light demand resulted in less than usual marketings.

The improved prices during 1922 for both mutton and wool have made a strong demand for lambs and ewes and have been an inducement toward increasing size of blocks. Increases would have been greater but for unusually heavy losses last spring due mainly to weather conditions.

NEW USES FOR BATTLESHIPS.

A news dispatch in the dailies states that an expedition will soon be dispatched to some of the outlying islands of the Hawaiian group to exterminate the rabbits which have become such a pest they are eating up all vegetation and threaten to end the existence on the island of certain rare species of birds.

Representative Summers of Washington has introduced in congress a bill authorizing the use of naval craft to break up the smuggling of intoxicants, narcotics and aliens into this country. The vessels would be under the control of civil authorities and those charged with enforcement of the prohibition laws.

OREGON AGAIN ON TOP.

The Literary Digest recently showed up Oregon as the highest taxed state in the union. With a circulation running up into the millions the Digest publishes a half-page diagram of highest taxed states and Oregon leads the list.

A New York bank sends out tabulations and diagrams to show Oregon is highest but one in per capita state debt.

Place upon this about $150,000,000 more of municipal and improvement district lien obligations and you can form some conception of the state tax burden and know why Oregon's development is slow.

The Third Annual Religious Book Week, with headquarters at 334 Fifth avenue, New York City, will be observed March 4 to 10 in thousands of churches, bookstores, and public libraries, with book sermons and book talks and special displays of religious books for young and old. The importance of the printed word in supplementing the spoken word will be emphasized throughout the nation.

Governor Pierce has signed the bill securing to Oregon and Portland the historic old battleship Oregon whose service in the Spanish-American war made her truly famous. This a reproach has been removed from the pages of Oregon's history and the state gains a distinction of which its present and future citizens may well be proud.

Nearly $9,000,000 was sent out of Oregon last year for pork products and it is thought this is all unnecessary. Why should not Oregon not only supply her own needs but have pork to sell to less favored states? Farmers are asked to raise more hogs.

Don't put off your income tax return. Do it early and avoid the last minute rush which always precedes the final date for filing, March 15.

WHERE THERE IS A WILL—

Do you read the bank advertising? Some of the most interesting and ingenious bits of reading matter to be found anywhere are coming from the hands of the advertising men nowadays, and the bank advertising has come to hold its own with that of the department stores and the rest of the selling news that makes newspapers and magazines so entertaining.

"They Never Found His Will" announces a big bank in a large city, and tells a story of unnecessary difficulties. He had told his wife about having made a will, but it could not be found. He died after a short illness, leaving the wife and three children.

The real property which, in the absence of a will, belongs to the children subject to the widow's dower, cannot be sold until the youngest comes of age, 19 years later, unless the mother goes through complicated court procedure. It is going to be difficult, in the interim, if not impossible, for her to educate and keep the three children on the insurance and the income from her third of the property. Yet he meant to leave her in control of the property.

The moral drawn by the bank is—have your will drawn, with the bank named as executor. It's a good plan. All sorts of complications are likely to arise in case of sudden death, and minor children need to be protected. Wives, also, who have shared in the early struggles, ought to be assured their just share of the later rewards.

No man wants to leave his affairs in a tangle for his heirs to wrestle with, particularly if his means are modest. It might be said that the smaller the fortune, the greater need of a clear and explicit will.

Wills aren't for old people in their dotage to make. They are for young people to help keep their affairs in order.

Construction of the Natron cut-off between Oakridge and Kirk, Oregon, will follow approval by the court of the Interstate Commerce commissioner's recent decision permitting the Southern Pacific's retention of the Central Pacific, according to a recent statement of J. Kruttschnitt, chairman of the Southern Pacific board of directors. The closing of the gap of 118 miles over the Cascade mountains would provide a new north and south railroad line from Weed, California, to Eugene, Oregon.

BOOKS TO BE FOUND AT GRESHAM LIBRARY

"Adventures and Letters of Richard Harding Davis." This story of Mr. Davis' career abounds in adventure, graphically and familiarly sketched, touched with humor and the glow of romance as he pursues his destiny from South America to Europe, Cuba, Japan and the Great War. "Joan of Arc of the North Woods," by Holman Day. A rousing story of a mysterious young woman and a fight between a million dollar paper mill and independent saw mills. "Shoes of the Wind," by Hilda Conklin. A new book of poems by this remarkable child poet, of whom Amy Lowell says, "She is no child despite the calendar, she is that ageless thing, a genius."

"Virgin of the Sun," by H. Rider Haggard. How long ago, a bold adventurer fared forth to distant mystic lands in search of love and fortune. Told with the author's customary imagination and vividness. "San Cristobal de la Habana," by Joseph Hergesheimer. A charming and colorful description of a romantic and altogether delightful Havana.

"Where the Blue Begins," by Christopher Morley. "Are you contented and happy?" Mr. Glassing wasn't altogether satisfied with life so he set off to find happiness. His adventures were many and varied. He drove a steam roller, steered a ship and acted as floor walker in a department store. This whimsical and delightful story is the genial Morley at his best.

"Atolls of the Sun," by Frederick O'Brien. Another tale of the Dangerous Archipelago of the equatorial Pacific, the home of the Paumotuans. This third of Mr. O'Brien's books delights us quite as much, with its vivid descriptions of native life and customs, legends and narratives, as did the earlier books. "Nicolette," by Baroness Orczy. The story of a peasant girl's love for the Count de Ventadour, and her allegiance to him despite feud, race, prejudice or greed. Among the books for children are "Secret Stairs," by Ellen D. Deland; "Gray Squirrel," by Joseph W. Lippincott; "Fortune of the Indies," by Edith B. Price; "Adventures of Gaphael Pumpelly," by O. S. Rice.

Telegram-Outlook Bargain Rate Corrected.

The bargain rate for the Portland Telegram and the Gresham Outlook has been erroneously quoted as $5. This should have been $4.50. The rate on the Telegram alone is $3.75. These rates are in effect until Feb. 28.

Sheet Music. We are carrying a full line of all the latest popular songs in sheet music. Buy a piece, take it home and if you do not like it bring it back and exchange it. Guy D. Jones, Jeweler.

PROPHYLACTICS ON THE FARM. We've bathed the bossie's tootsies, we've cleaned the rooster's ears, we've trimmed the turkey's wattles with antiseptic shears. With talcum all the guinea hens are beautiful and bright. And Dobbin's wreath of gleaming teeth we've burnished snowy white. With pungent sachet powder we've glorified the dog. And when we have the leisure we'll manure the hog. We've done all in our power to have a barn de luxe; we've dipped the sheep in eau de rose; we've sterilized the ducks. The little chicks are daily fed on sanitized worms.

The calves and colts are always boiled to keep them free from germs. And thoroughly to carry out our prophylactic plan. Next week we think we shall begin to wash the hired man.—Health First.

Chicken Raisers Given Hints

In many cases to treat two flocks alike.

The second fact mentioned was that one of the worst dangers is that too many people consider the poultry business an easy one. They also think only of the exceptional results that they read about in papers and do not look at the average results. This is why so many people go into the poultry business expecting to get large returns and then get discouraged and sell out.

Another fact that Mr. Cosby mentioned in a definite way was the size of the unit. The first is the farm flock which is kept just to supply the family with eggs and which gets practically no care. The second one is the flock of from 350 to 400 birds that serves as a side issue with general farming. The next is the commercial flock, the size of which depends upon the ability of the individual owner but usually runs in number from 1000 to 10,000 birds. Using these three cases to bring out the point, it may be stated that too many people have flocks of from 500 to 600 birds and expect to make a living off from them which is impossible. They depend too much on what they read and do not apply common sense facts.

Important Facts Regarding Poultry Slides.

In the afternoon, Dr. Johnson gave some very fine lantern slides showing the poultry diseases and how they affect the birds. This was pronounced by many present to have been the best presentation of the subject that they had ever seen.

Birds Dissected to Show Diseases.

In preparation for this meeting, a committee composed of A. H. Dowsett, H. E. Cosby and S. B. Hall had gathered up about a dozen and a half hens from various places in the community that were apparently infected with some disease and had come from flocks whose owners have been having trouble. There were also a number of poultrymen that had brought in birds with the desire to know what ailed them. These hens were dissected to find out what the ailment was. The sight was rather a gruesome one and many did not care to see it but those who stayed gathered as close as possible not wishing to miss any part of it. Most of the birds examined were diseased and had either coesidiosis germs, round worms or tape worms.

Poultry Contest Held.

A. J. Krueger of Troutdale brought some of his prize Anconas up to the hall and put them on display. During the day he created considerable interest by announcing a guessing contest. Those present were asked to guess how many eggs the hen on exhibit there had laid in the past year. The one guessing the closest would get a prize of setting eggs and the one coming next would get a second setting of Ancona eggs. The correct number was found to be 311 eggs and was guessed correctly by one man. Four persons tied for second prize, three having guessed 312 eggs and one 310. The four were asked to draw lots and Mr. Frost, who lives near Lents, won. He had guessed 310 eggs.
