POULTRY SPECIALIST TELLS WHY CHICKS DIE

About 35 interested persons attended the poultry demonstration held at the Odd Fellow's hall in Boring last Tuesday afternoon. Many had come from a considerable distance in order to be present at the meeting. H. E. Cosby, poultry specialist from O. A. C., discussed "Hatching and Brooding of Chicks."

"Many chicks die" says Mr. Cosby, "as a result of improper care of them; they are set, unhealthy stock, forcing breeders for heavy egg production, improper incubation, improper brooding, poor equipment, uncomfortable quarters, neglect or improper feeding." He also emphasizes the fact that "Vigor is the foundation of the poultry business." He urges poultrymen to kill every weak, deformed and diseased chick as soon as possible.

Modern War is Decided by Organization

Likewise the success of a bank is determined by careful organization looking toward the success of its customers.

Our organization is such that we can intelligently and carefully look after the wants and needs of the people of this community, not only in handling their deposits, but in the way of loans and giving assistance in leasing property, collecting rents, obtaining investments for idle funds, and assistance in many ways, which assistance can only be given by a well organized bank.

CONTAGIOUS DISEASES SHOULD BE REPORTED

Dr. Stricker of the Oregon state board of health working in connection with the U. S. public health service urges more care on the part of families and health authorities in handling cases of contagious diseases. He says that the practitioner who tells the family that a case of scarlet fever is nothing but a slight case of tonsillitis is dodging his solemn obligation to society and while he may please the family he and they may become responsible for one or more human lives.

We recall, says Dr. Stricker, an instance where a three-year-old child became ill. The doctor was promptly called; he examined the patient and diagnosed the case as measles. A sigh of relief immediately went around the family group, "Oh! it's nothing but measles," and then they with the "good" (?) doctor laughed at the joke. No report was made of the case, no quarantine was instituted and no precautions taken to safe-guard the community. Neighbor's children were not warned to remain away from the home. In a few days a child across the street developed the measles, in a few days another, then another and another and so the epidemic went throughout the town. In that one block where the original case developed and the joke of it was laughed at, three funerals were conducted for three little children, all three of whom died from the measles contracted from the first case that was such a joke.

This is just one instance of many that might be cited to illustrate the results of criminal carelessness on the part of dishonest and irresponsible practitioners and their allies.

Human life is the cheapest asset in the eyes of the public. Is it not a fact that an epidemic of hog cholera would not be tolerated in any civilized country? Hogs cost money and they must be protected. But children! any poor devil can have children. And why should the community become alarmed if we waste a few of them?
