TO FOSTER MUSIC.

A meeting was held in the library Sunday afternoon to initiate a movement in this locality which it is hoped by the many interested will continue and broaden in scope and influence in the years to come and be a constructive factor in the educational upbuilding and social refinement of the locality.

It naturally cannot combine all musical activities of a locality. The school organizations and the church choirs remain as such.

The ideal is music in every home and a music loving community. It is not any one line of musical art that is to be fostered and promoted but all branches so far as conditions will permit.

The Gresham locality is well favored with musicians. The foundation has already been well laid. The Musical Arts club hopes to build carefully and permanently on this foundation a structure of beauty, attractiveness and usefulness.

JOIN THE "I CAN" CLUB.

What, another club? We already have the Greshamas (hikers), the Musical Arts club, newly organized, and other more or less definite clubs and societies.

The suggestion in the caption is meant to apply not to a new organization but to an attitude of mind with reference to any good undertaking in which one may and ought to be engaged.

In this case the individual is to organize himself or herself into a club of one with the object and motto, "I can", and adopt all the rules and regulations necessary to carrying out the purposes of the club.

Belonging to the "I can" club will best qualify one for membership in any and all other clubs and societies of this progressive community.

Years ago Chicago adopted the motto, "I will." Emile Coue, on his recent visit to Chicago, suggested changing it to "I do."

First must come the vision that a certain thing should be done. Then the conviction, "I can" do it, or can help accomplish it, and along with that the resolution, "I will" do my part. The rest is easy.

This is not Coueism, but is related to it.

Apply this method to personal attainments and see how it will help. Apply it to community undertakings and see it work like magic.

Achievement Brings Happiness.

If happiness is the aim of human beings why not do up what brings it into our lives, and having found out turn ourselves into a bunch of go-getters.

We might as well work for the thing worth while since we have to work anyhow.

Perhaps the greatest measure of happiness comes from personal achievement.

We're all stuck on ourselves.

Very well then, let us achieve. Can't be done, say you? Nonsense. There is always something a man can do perfectly. If he can't play the harp he can tackle the five string banjo, but let him learn to play the instrument so perfectly no man can say he is handing out jazz and trying to palm it off as Beethoven.

You Can If You Will.

There is an old Spanish story of a rebel soldier captured by government troops and condemned to be shot, as all the rebels were. The government army was in great need of musicians and was willing to spare the lives of the captured rebel musicians who would enter the government service.

This soldier, who did not know a note and had no musical talent whatever, had a friend, bugler, in the army. This bugler, in order to save his friend's life, told the officers that the prisoner could bugle. There were just three days before the captured man would be called on to perform, and in that time his friend undertook to teach him, surreptitiously, to read music and to play the bugle.

Realizing that not only his own life was at stake but that of his friend who had volunteered to save him, the prisoner set himself to the task with a desperate will and determination, stopping neither to eat nor sleep, nor to give a single thought to any subject other than music. When called on to perform he was found to be a skilled bugler, having accomplished in three days what required years of patient study for others. The story may or may not be true, but it is truthful; it contains a truth. You can if you will.

This old Spanish story has its counterpart in the life of almost every man. At some time or other he has been aroused, his determination strengthened, his energy let loose, and his accomplishment shot suddenly far above the average. If God asks, we can do. However difficult the task let our watchword be, "I can do all things through Christ which strengtheneth me."—Selected.

FORD DRIVE SYSTEM SAVES LIVES AT KELSO

Caught on the falling draw of the Kelso bridge over the Cowlitz river at Kelso, Washington, when this structure collapsed with a loss of life variously estimated from 23 to more than 40, C. H. Raines of 529 Lexington avenue, Portland, Oregon, saved his own life and those of the four men in the Ford sedan he was driving through the quick and positive action of the Ford low speed control.

As the draws were lowered, just before the accident which resulted in the staggering loss of lives, Mr. Raines approached the bridge immediately ahead of a huge truck carrying a load of workmen, all of whom lost their lives when the truck was thrown into the river.

Just as the bridge was opened for traffic he shot ahead and had crossed the first half of the draw when the bridge started to give way. Feeling the sudden sag he glanced hurriedly over his shoulder to see the section immediately back of him dropping into the river. The car he was driving was on the lower end of the second section of the draw which had just started to drop as the bridge gave way.

Any time lost in changing from high into low speed meant that he would be pitched into the torrent below. If the change could be made quickly enough the power of the motor might be sufficient to carry him up the rapidly increasing slope of the dropping section he was on. Although he had not driven a Ford for nearly two years, Mr. Raines maintained his composure and put his car into low speed simply by thrusting his foot down on the low speed pedal.

It responded immediately. Directly ahead of the Ford was a large touring car in which the driver was desperately striving to jam his speed controls from intermediate into low.

Determined not to stop, regardless of what might happen, Mr. Raines pushed into the rear of the larger car, with his own motor operating at its fullest power of efficiency.

The added impetus given to the car through the shock of the collision was enough to enable it to go ahead on intermediate and the driver of the larger car, after the two had reached safety on the end of the bridge which did not fall, credited the collision with having saved his car as well.

In speaking of his escape, Mr. Raines says, "Just before we reached the bridge we were behind the truck which fell in together with several other cars. At first I decided to stay back of it and then I changed my mind and drove ahead. Had I remained behind the truck as it came onto the bridge I probably would have suffered the same fate as the workmen, all of whom were lost. I never knew how much I liked the Ford system of speed control until I felt that low speed take me up the slope of the falling draw. After I realized that I was safe and glanced back to see the wreckage and the struggling people caught in the collapse the closeness of my own peril was forcibly brought to me. My car was the last one on the section of the draw on which I was caught when the accident took place. All the cars on the draw back of me were hurled into the river for they were caught on the down slope rather than on the up."
