Physician Summoned by Radio.

The steamship West Cahous, lying at anchor in Baltimore harbor, about nine miles from the city, needed medical help at about 3 a. m. recently and needed it quickly. A member of the crew had fallen into the hold and had hurt himself seriously. So the captain of the ship sent a wireless broadcast asking help.

The call was picked up, not in Baltimore, nine miles away, but at Cape May, N. J., about 100 miles due east of Baltimore. As Cape May was separated from the West Cahous by parts of New Jersey and Delaware and by the eastern shore of Maryland, not to mention Delaware and Chesapeake bays, no direct help from it was possible.

But the operator was on the job. Promptly he consulted the long distance list in the Baltimore telephone directory and called the surgeon in charge of the Marine hospital in Baltimore—100 miles to the west. The surgeon, roused from sleep to receive the message, asked him to radio certain emergency treatment to the West Cahous and to direct the captain to send a boat to a certain pier in Baltimore, where he would find a surgeon waiting to go out to the ship with him. And so, in the middle of the night, in less than an hour, a wireless-controlled sea-going ambulance carrying an officer reached the side of the injured sailor and brought him later to the hospital.

Salmon Loaf with Drawn Butter Sauce.

1-lb. can pink or chum salmon.
½ cup milk.
⅛ teaspoon pepper.
1 teaspoon minced onion.
1 cupful soft bread crumbs.
2 beaten eggs.
1½ teaspoon salt.
Grated rind of ½ lemon.

Drain liquor from salmon and reserve for sauce. Remove salmon bones, separate into flakes and mix with other ingredients. Mold into a loaf, pack in greased bread pan and bake in moderate oven for 40 minutes. Remove to a hot platter, decorate with parsley and lemon slices and serve with it the following:

Drawn Butter Sauce—Melt 2 tablespoons butter, stir into it 2 tablespoons flour, and when smooth add the salmon liquor diluted with enough water to make 1¼ cupfuls, adding it gradually and stirring constantly until thickened. Then add 2 tablespoons more of butter broken into bits, 1 teaspoon lemon juice, 1 teaspoon minced parsley and salt and pepper. When butter is melted, serve.

Say it the Want Ad way.

WHOOPING COUGH CAUSES MANY DEATHS

Among the contagious diseases whooping cough ranks next to diphtheria as a cause of death, says Dr. Frederick D. Stricker of the Oregon State Board of Health. Even then the seriousness of the disease as a crippling agent is probably greater than it is as an immediate cause of death. It is very unfortunate—for the children— that many parents still hold to the time-worn idea that whooping cough is one of the necessities of the early years of life and little effort is made by them to safeguard their young against the disease. We have often heard the opinion expressed that the sooner the child has the disease the less severe will be its symptoms. This idea alone is responsible for thousands of deaths annually from this disease. Statistical evidence supports the statement that 90 per cent of the deaths from this disease occur under the age of five years so the older your child is before the disease is contracted the more favorable will be the chances for complete recovery.

All children who have not had the disease are susceptible to it, and will probably contract the disease within two weeks after exposure. The disease is most contagious in the first few weeks of its onset, and it probably remains contagious until two weeks after the characteristic cough has disappeared.
