

Weekly News Notes for Berry Association Members.

D. E. TOWLE, Manager. The peak of the loganberry and raspberry harvest was passed on Wednesday and the tonnage delivery is rapidly falling.

to build up a feeling of fellowship and good will between you and your help to the end that they will tell all their friends what a fine time they had in the Gresham territory picking berries, and that they will come back next year to help you.

The truth is that the harvesting problem is the most serious one in connection with our berry industry and we should do all in our power to solve this problem, as we all should know that the increased value of berries picked at the right time, nearly covers the cost of picking, and if we are to build up or sustain our reputation for quality berries, we must pick them at the right time.

The Herman Creek Fire.

The Herman Creek fire on the Oregon National Forest in July and August, 1922, burned over 11,000 acres of timberland in the Columbia Gorge, destroyed $34,000 worth of timber and cost more than $40,000 for fire-fighting labor and equipment.

This forest fire was started by a careless rancher, and because of the hazy condition of the atmosphere due to smoke from other fires just as carelessly started, burned for a day before it was discovered.

Because of the headway the fire gained and the difficult topography where it spread, nearly a month was used in putting it under control. For some time, it threatened to enter the Bull Run watershed and do serious damage to Portland's water supply.

The careless camper spent 90 days in Multnomah county jail, and now is free again. The fire scar in the gorge will remain for many years, a monument to his carelessness.

A Spider That Made History Robert Bruce longed to free Scotland from English rule. He fought six hard battles--six times he was defeated and forced to flee for safety. After the sixth battle, while he lay hidden in a shed, he watched a spider spin its web. Six times it failed but AT THE 7TH TRIAL IT SUCCEEDED. Robert Bruce took heart from the spider--tried once more and he too succeeded! A man may be down, but he is never out until he quits. Those who have failed repeatedly to build up a savings account should take heart from the frequent attempts of the spider--and try again. Start your account in this Bank, now.
