VACATION TIME

This is vacation time in Oregon and many families and parties of neighbors are motoring to the mountains, the beaches, the lakes or other scenic spots in this wonderful playground of the great west.

It is not because they are exhausted by grinding toil under the severity of winter's cold or the withering heat of summer that Oregon people take this season for travel and camping out, for no such conditions exist here. It is mainly because business and other conditions make it a most favorable time for a vacation trip. As a matter of fact there are but a few months of the year when the scenic places cannot be reached and enjoyed and they have always their seasonal attractiveness.

The Columbia river highway is beautiful land accessible at all seasons of the year. It has charms peculiar to winter and charms peculiar to summer. The same is true of the splendid beaches of the Pacific along the western boundary of Oregon. With the completion of the loop highway, Mt. Hood with all the allurements of the nearby mountains, over which it stands as a majestic white-capped sentinal, will be accessible eight months of the year. The same will be true of Crater Lake and many other beauty spots as the highway system of Oregon is further developed in the near future.

Oregonians are a favored people. They live in one of the most healthful countries in the world. They live in one of the most scenic regions in America. Gresham is almost in the center of this wonderland. A few hours to a day's drive by auto unfolds to one a panorama of nature's marvels which for grandeur and variety are unrivalled and are worth crossing a continent to behold. They have all been here during the history of man but were little appreciated and many were out of easy reach. Now they are brought nearer.

With travel and life in the open there comes a greater enjoyment, healthfulness and zest in living.

An Emancipation Proclamation

Here's the story of China in a sentence. She discovered gunpowder and used it for firecrackers, invented printing and smothered its possibilities in an alphabet of forty-thousand symbols. The Mergenthaler Linotype company has just built a forty-character Chinese type-setter, which brings education a thousand times nearer to four hundred million people.

The destiny of an empire will be recast in that machine. The news reads like a trade note; history will write it down as an emancipation proclamation.—Herbert Kaufmann.

Real Americans.

We shall never be successful over the dangers that confront us, we shall never achieve true greatness nor reach the lofty ideal which the founders and preservers of our mighty federal republic have set before us, unless we are Americans in heart and soul, in spirit and purpose, keenly alive to the responsibility implied in the very name of American, and proud beyond measure of the glorious privilege of bearing it.—Theodore Roosevelt.

President's Dad

John Calvin Coolidge, father of our new president, had the honor of administering the oath of office to President of the United States to his son.

COCONUT HAS MANY FOES

Even Land Crabs Invade the Plantations in Search of What They Consider a Delicacy.

Probably not one person in a hundred realizes that this large hairy nut is one of the most important articles grown today.

From its flesh is made coco-butter, the basis of margarine and hundreds of other foodstuffs. It also supplies oil, and the chief ingredient of more than half of our ointments.

The coco palm is one of the most difficult trees to rear, for it has foes of all kinds. Elephants and monkeys tear down nuts and branches, doing great damage in the plantations. Giant fruit-eating bats descend in dense clouds upon the trees, working havoc amongst the young nuts; squirrels gnaw holes in them and drink the milk, while there are insects that will strip an entire plantation in a few days.

One of the worst marauders is the robber crab, a queer beast which lives entirely upon land except at breeding time. This creature is so fond of coconuts that it has learnt to climb the trees in search of them and to nip them off with its great pincer claws.

Trapped by Stomach.

During the year our hens had a very bad habit of laying in the horse mangers. One evening we found a large snake in the manger. During the day he had swallowed an egg which was in the manger and had then tried to cross to the next manger by way of a knothole. When half way through he discovered eggs on the other side of the partition. These he swallowed and trapped himself very securely. The first egg kept him from going forward and the last eggs kept him from going back.—Farm Journal.

MICKIE SAYS

MADE THE ENGLISHMAN GASP

Amusing Error Which American Ambassador to England Took With Customary Good Nature.

In his book of reminiscences Mr. John Drew, the famous actor, tells this amusing incident that occurred under his own eye at one of those reconciling celebrations of the Fourth of July which have for years been held in London with both Englishmen and Americans in attendance.

After the two national anthems were sung the supper room opened, and the people flocked in and found seats for themselves. Lewis and I were sitting next to an Englishman who was evidently very hungry and very thirsty. Mr. Phelps, the American minister, walked into the room and looked round over the tables. He wore side whiskers and to a chance observer looked not unlike a maitre d'hotel. The Englishman, not knowing who he was, mistook him for one of the waiters and asked him to bring him a bottle of Apollinaris. He pointed to a bottle nearby that had been opened. Phelps good-naturedly took the bottle and put it down in front of the Englishman and started to walk away.

The Englishman was irate because Phelps had not filled his glass. He reprimanded him and as he did so stood up and called to the retreating figure: "What do you mean by this? And who are you?"

Phelps turned and answered: "My name is Phelps. I am the American minister at the Court of St. James's."

The Englishman fell back in his chair so violently that he knocked the chair over backward.—Youth's Companion.

GAME WAS WITHIN THE LAW

Officers Sent to Break Up Poker Party Found Only Harmless Players of Bridge.

Skulking figures circled cautiously and with light tread about a house on the north side. Close observation disclosed that the figures wore on their left breasts the pointed stars of officers of the law. Inside the house the sound of shuffled cards, muffled laughter, and light conversation could be heard. The moon hung low in the sky. All was peaceful. Abruptly, there came a knock at the door of the house.

The sounds on the inside of the house ceased and the door was opened. Before the startled eyes of the police raiding squad, led by Lieutenant Louis Johnson, were disclosed eight well-dressed women, all smiling graciously, and all engaged in the pleasant pastime and popular indoor sport of auction bridge.

"Aw, we were sent up here to get a poker game," Lieutenant Johnson explained, in substance. "We can't arrest any bridge players."—Indianapolis News.

To Be an Orator.

The Rev. Daniel J. Mannix, archbishop of Australia, gave some sensible advice to all young men who aspire to be public speakers. He said he had always desired to be a great orator, but he found that he could not, and now he no longer strives toward this object. He advises all who aim at a profession wherein they must seek to influence others by their voice, "not to aim for oratorical elegance, but to simply make their language mirror their thought. Do not exaggerate," he continues. "Use critical judgment." The greatest public speakers are not those who impress you with the beauty of their performance, but those who convince you by their simplicity, directness and sincerity.—Seattle Post Intelligencer.

What every banker knows is that many a man is unable to keep his balance and his automobile.

The modern executive is a man who when he sees that something must be done, finds somebody else to do it.

"Ah nevah worries erbout what's gwine t' happen, 'cause Ah don' think it will, and Ah never worries erbout whut has happen' 'cause Ah knows it has," said the colored philosopher.
