Labor Day

Civilization was not built by the indolent or Shiftless—it took hard work—consistent effort. Nature intended that all of us should work and arranged that all the great rewards of life should come through labor.

The price of life, health, happiness and success—is work.

Most men work—they earn the rewards of life—but many do not get to enjoy them. The finest rewards are won through THRIFT.

Add thrift to your work and enjoy the fruits of your labor.

—Today we pay tribute to the men who work. But every day we pay tribute to the men who have also saved—

The reason why certain towns in Oregon do not have more industries and more enterprises developing their local resources is that the people have in many matters thus far failed to cooperate and to give their patronage to home industries.
