NOTABLE LABOR CONVENTION.

The national convention of the American Federation of Labor is in session in Portland, opening October 1. This is the 43d annual convention, the fourth to be held on the Pacific coast and the first in Portland.

Portland and Oregon consider it a great honor to entertain this great body of a thousand delegates who will attend this great national convention.

The selection of Portland as the convention city of 1923 is a greater honor when it is considered that Oregon labor did not ask for the convention this year, but had intended to extend an invitation for a few years later, says the Oregon Labor Press.

"A Typographical union delegate, whose home is in Omaha, Nebraska, placed Portland in nomination without consulting anyone, and the popularity of Portland was attested by the fact that more than two-thirds of the votes were cast for this city without any campaign having been made.

"Arrangements have been completed for entertaining the thousand visitors who are expected, and convention plans have been made. The convention will be opened by G. A. Von Schritzl, president of the Portland Central Labor council. Rev. Walter Taylor Sumner will deliver an invocation. Addresses of welcome will be delivered by Mayor George L. Baker on behalf of the city, by Governor Walter M. Pierce, on behalf of the state, and O. R. Hartwig on behalf of Oregon labor. Samuel Gompers, president of the American Federation of Labor, will respond."

The conventions are held in the municipal auditorium and many will be the attractions shown the visitors. Among them will be the Portland Labor Temple, the largest building in America, if not in the world, owned and exclusively used by labor. A number of delegates, coming from cities that contemplate erecting temples, will inspect the temple with critical interest and will make a study of the methods of financing adopted here.

The building cost $375,000, including site and equipment. It is a six story building, 100 by 150 feet. All stock is owned by labor unions and members. The capital stock of the association is $175,000 and a bond issue of $200,000 supplied the balance of the funds for the enterprise.

In connection with the convention, or rather as a pre-announcement of it, the Oregon Labor Press issues a big 72-page annual, well illustrated, and crowded with information on all phases of labor unionism. It is an achievement worthy of the Labor Press and the occasion it celebrates.

RAILWAY EVENTS TO BE CELEBRATED.

All the rest of Oregon is invited to join with Klamath county in a big celebration at Klamath Falls on October 12 and 13 in recognition of two important railway events, the beginning of work on the "Natron cut-off" and the completion of the Strahorn line to its first objective, Sprague river.

The one undertaking, when completed, will give a new through main line between Portland and San Francisco. It is the largest piece of railway construction undertaken for a considerable time and means a great deal for the prosperity of the state.

The second event, the partial completion of the Strahorn line, the Oregon, California and eastern railway, opens up a considerable territory, bringing it into touch with outside markets.

The people of southern Oregon consider these to be momentous events. The people of Oregon have waited for these developments for a long time. Klamath Falls promises a great two-day celebration. They aim to make it an all Oregon celebration. There will be excursions, speeches and festivities.

INCREASING FARMERS' EARNING POWER.

It has been figured out that an Agricultural college course increases a farmer's efficiency three and a half times. This conclusion is based on figures supplied by the Kansas Agricultural college, and is confirmed by results obtained in Wisconsin, Iowa, Indiana, Ohio, Illinois and New York, where investigation led to practically the same conclusions, according to Sunset Magazine for October.

Stating it concretely it looks like this—annual earnings according to education of farmers—common school, $422; high school, $554; college short course, $559; agricultural college, $1452.

The hand that rocked the cradle now works the steering wheel.

An advertisement refers to a motor car as "a home on wheels."

HIGH SCHOOL ROSTER SHOWS FULL CLASSES

The following roster of the high school students was intended to be published in connection with the high school story in the last Outlook but was crowded out for lack of space. Some changes in the student body should be noted. Estelle Imah has registered in the senior class and Harry Curry in the junior. The name of Tacy Racine should be in the sophomore instead of the freshman list. Four pupils, all in the sophomore year, registered at the close of school last fall but failed to return. Their names were included in the list by mistake. They are Erma Dugger, Katherine Lambert, Violet Langford and Ada Lovelace. The list as given in the Outlook last week is as follows:

Putting Castor Oil on Its Feet. If the present plans to have the consumer take thought of the producer keeps on extending we shall all soon be practical economists, says Sunset for October. To help gold we shall wear more jewelry and gold teeth; to help silver, we shall abandon porcelain and eat from white metal dishes; to help copper, we shall construct more private stills; to help the desperate wheat farmers, we shall eat another barrel of flour a year; to help the cattlemen we shall eat an additional ounce of meat a day, etc. Incidentally, castor oil will be put on its feet.

A Want Ad will do it for you.

Champion Farm Girl of U. S.

Peggy Keith, of Warrenton, Va., 15 years old, is "America's Most Distinguished Farm Girl." She was selected by the U. S. Department of Agriculture from 600,000 contestants representing every state. With all expenses paid by the Department, she exhibited her livestock and judging; farm products and canning; poultry and collie puppies in the Eastern States Exposition in Massachusetts this month. She is the champion all-around farm girl of the nation.

Rural Carrier Examination.

The United States Civil Service Commission has announced an examination to be held at Portland, Oregon, on October 27, 1923, to fill the position of rural carrier at Gresham and vacancies that may later occur on rural routes from that postoffice. The salary of a rural carrier on a standard daily wagon route of 24 miles is $1,800 per annum, with an additional $30 per mile per annum for each mile or major fraction thereof in excess of 24 miles. The salary on motor routes ranges from $2,450 to $2,600 per annum, according to length. Separate examinations for motor routes and wagon routes are no longer held. Appointments to both positions will be made from the same register. The examination will be open only to citizens who are actually domiciled in the territory of the postoffice where the vacancy exists and who meet the other requirements set forth in Form 1977. Both men and women, if qualified, may enter this examination, but appointing officers have the legal right to specify the sex desired in requesting certification of eligibles. Women will not be considered for rural carrier appointment unless they are the widows of U. S. soldiers, sailors, or marines, or the wives of U. S. soldiers, sailors, or marines who are physically disqualified for examination by reason of injuries received in the line of military duty. Form 1977 and application blanks may be obtained from the offices mentioned above or from the United States Civil Service Commission at Washington, D. C. Applications should be forwarded to the commission at Washington, D. C., at the earliest practicable date.
