WHITE INDIANS PRESENT NEW SCIENTIFIC STUDY

By ROBERT FULLER (Autocaster Service)

Yes, we have white Indians. The question now, however, is: "What makes them white?"

Many of the leading scientists in the United States are discussing the subject, poking, prodding, twisting ears and looking down the throats of three homesick little tots in New York, brought here by Richard O. Marsh, American explorer, who last summer discovered a tribe of 400 in the San Blas country of Panama.

Brought from the jungle where they wore no clothes, garbed in civilization's modern dress and thrown suddenly into the world's largest city—the three children, Chepu, Olo, and Margaret, submit to a critical examination without seemingly a flicker of feeling passing across their stolid countenances, beneath shocks of bristling tow-colored hair.

The children are not alone. Older members of the tribe and parents were brought along—safe return to their Darien region of the Panama being assured and guaranteed. Most of the older members are of brown skins of normal Indian characteristics.

It was at first thought that Mr. Marsh had brought a group of stray albinos out of the forests of Panama and was calling them white Indians. After a critical examination by a large group of our best scientists it was agreed that they were white Indians—but abnormal and pathological cases.

Explorer Tells How Tribe was Found

Mr. Marsh described how he first saw white Indians in Panama last summer and determined to return with a properly equipped expedition. He told how he approached the Smithsonian Institution at Washington, the Museum of Natural History here and the University of Rochester in order that they might send representatives on the expedition, so that its results would obtain the confidence of the scientific world.

These representatives were present when he left New York last January and when he got to Panama he received help by the detailing of additional observers from the United States Army, the Panama Canal Zone government and the Republic of Panama.

He told of the march to the interior in which great difficulties were overcome. Before the trip ended all the entire party had been taken seriously ill, and two members, the representative of the Smithsonian Institution and the Republic of Panama, died of fever.

It was not until the very end of the trip, he said, that any white Indians were seen, because the rumor had preceded the party that its object was to take such Indians into captivity and bring them away.

Finally, after making friends with an Indian chief of a coastal tribe, and curing him and many others of various ills, he got the opportunity to win the friendship of all the tribes of the region by stamping out two epidemics of smallpox.

Then he was allowed to see the white Indians whose presence had always been denied. He persuaded the native chiefs that their difficulties would be solved if a kinship could be established between the white Indians and the white people of the north. He saw about 400 of these Indians of all ages and photographed about a hundred of them.

Discovery Valuable Aid to Medicine

One scientist is of the opinion that the condition under which white Indians are produced is by leucoderma. He is Dr. Cuthbert Christy, of the Smithsonian Institution, and an expert on tropical diseases. He has made a thorough examination of the white Indian children.

"I believe Mr. Marsh has made a great discovery," he said. "But not so much in the field of anthropology as in the field of tropical medicine. There is an interesting disease especially prevalent in the West Indies which is known as leucoderma. When I examined these children I found markings on them more symmetrical than those you observe in the West Indian cases."

"If we could get a commission here to investigate these cases I think it would lead to important results. There has never been any success at getting at the cause of the disease from the West Indian cases, and it has been tried repeatedly. But with these observations localized as they are, it seems to me there may be hope of finding the cause and devising a cure."

This trip from their native jungles to the very heart of civilization means little to the three little white Indians. They are, perhaps, the loneliest children in the world. And quite the most bewildered.

"The little girl had worn clothes, but neither of the boys had worn a strip until I got them," said Mr. Marsh. "I tied a red bandanna handkerchief on each. When I got them to Colon I put them in shirts and pants, but I had a lot of trouble at first to keep them from undressing right in the hotel, they were so hot and uncomfortable."

In New York they do nothing, but stare. They blink their queer, squinting blue eyes at the crowds, the buildings, the traffic. Sometimes Margaret cries. Also and Chepu shed never a tear; they are men, and their stoicism is as typically Mongolian as are their prominent cheek bones and flattened noses. But they do not smile, either; and one feels that perhaps when they crawl into strange beds at the Waldorf, and the lights go out, they hug each other quite tightly, in their utter darkness.

What do you think of two 13 and 14 year old boys exhibiting seven pure-breds? Tracy and Walter Andereg are doing it.

Champ of Champs

Osborne, of Illinois, greater even than our former Indian athlete, Jim Thorpe, smashed all records when he won the Olympic Decathlon, which is made up of 10 events. He made a record score of 12,775.

Fair Notes

While listening to the W.C.T.U. program Thursday morning J. T. McCreary, a middle-aged man residing about five miles southeast of Gresham, fell from his seat to the ground with an apparent attack of epilepsy to which he is said to be subject. Dr. Adix was summoned but before his arrival, the man was able to walk.

There was one event pulled off Tuesday afternoon which was not on the official program when during the progress of the races the "cattalo" representing its present civilized state of existence, threw its rider and made a dash for the grain fields near the grounds. It was recaptured after a short struggle.

Floyd Johnson, a 12-year-old boy from Portland, is in the hospital as the result of a distressing accident which occurred Wednesday morning. He with other boys was exploring the scene of Tuesday evening's sham battle when he discovered a shell that had been dropped by one of the men. He started to burn off the wax paper wad of the cartridge when it exploded, seriously injuring the first finger of the right hand and lacerating both hands considerably.

A motorcycle squad from Sheriff Hurlburt's office consisting of Officers Wilson, Bailey, Burt and Mullenhouer acted as a special guard for Queen Patricia on the day of her coronation.

A remarkable likeness to Mt. Hood may be seen in the art department at the fair, which was found in the peculiar grain of a piece of board by J. A. Bushong and was finished by him in a manner to bring out the likeness to the mountain almost as clearly as if painted. The board was from a crate enclosing plumbers' supplies and is thought to be from a gum tree. When discovered it was in a rough board.

Mrs. Vera Tucker, superintendent of the art department at the fair, had a narrow escape on Wednesday from a serious accident. Some workmen were driving nails outside the wall of the art room and Mrs. Tucker hurried out to put a stop to it before her exhibits should be damaged. She did not notice the big Reo truck following its circular course without a driver and was struck by it and knocked down and rolled over in the dirt. Quick action by men close at hand, who pulled her out of the way of the wheels, saved her from serious injury or possibly from death.

About forty patients from the veterans' hospital in Portland enjoyed the fair on Wednesday as guests of the fair board. They were furnished with

The City Bureau of Parks, also Clark Bros., of Portland, have each added a wonderful contribution to the exhibit. The Troutdale Flower club's display of cut flowers is attracting much attention, and won the blue ribbon for display of cut flowers. The Crissey Gladiolus farm near Bull Run has two tables of their magnificent plants, and Mrs. Crissey is in charge ready to take orders for future delivery.

Canaries and Curios Blend. Mrs. Bethina Kessler has her exhibit in the balcony of the main pavilion about evenly divided between her Indian curios and canaries. Speaking of the former we noted four large deerhides which are attracting much attention. They are painted by Myra Helm, a noted Indian artist, one being of Princess Angeline, mother of Chief Seattle, also one of Sitting Bull of bygone fame. She has a number of burnt wood plaques, two of which are ornamented with Indian heads. Her baskets came from a mission near Tucson, Arizona. One, an urn-shaped affair which will hold water, has been pronounced a perfect specimen by one of the visiting Indian chiefs, who says that huckleberries placed in this basket would keep for at least ten days in perfect condition.

Mrs. Kessler has but 20 or 30 of her 300 St. Andrewsberg Roller canaries on exhibit and but a few of the cabinets to demonstrate the training of the young birds. She is also displaying two of her thief-proof cabinets in which birds are shipped to her from Europe, arriving in perfect condition. She is expecting a shipment this month. It will be noted that the booth is decorated in cerise and blue. These are the colors of the International Roller Canary Breeders association, of which Mrs. Kessler is a life member. She is planning a more extensive exhibit for another year.

tickets and grandstand seats free of charge. The Women's auxiliary to the American Legion gave them dinner and the Post furnished a lunch just before they returned to Portland. The auxiliary arranged for the transportation by a number of Gresham car owners, whose courtesies they greatly appreciated. Two nurses accompanied the boys.

Sawdust

That word "exhibit" is being worked overtime this week.

Which girl is going to win that Ford coupe?

Those Baptist building fund people surely serve an excellent lunch.

There is the cunningest Indian baby on the grounds only three weeks old.

Have you seen the bees making honey in the horticultural section upstairs in the pavilion?

"Couldn't see it for smoke." What's that? Why Gresham after the sham battle Tuesday night.
